TICKER ERROR CAUSES CRASH

UNCORRECTED 40 MINUTES

Then a "Bear Panic" Sends List Up More Rapidly Than It Went Down.

BROKERS ARE INDIGNANT

Stirred by Losses, They Insist on the Facts in Case—Thousands Dropped in the Whirl.

Erroneous reports flashed from Washington on the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Macomber case, as to the taxability of stock dividends, played havoc with Wall Street calculations yesterday and caused losses running into thousands of dollars. The two ticker services which operate in the financial district and which have lines running into nearly every brokerage house, Dow, Jones & Co. and the New York News Bureau, both sent out a version of the decision which was directly the opposite of the fact.

The first flash was on the Dow-Jones ticker, which stated that stock dividends were income, whereas the actual ruling by the Supreme Court was that such disbursements were not income and were not subject to tax. Some six minutes later the New York News Bureau carried word which appeared to confirm the Dow-Jones erroneous report, and heavy selling of stocks took place throughout the general list, especially in the shares which, it was believed, would benefit by a decision by the Supreme Court against taxing dividends.

The Dow-Jones report appeared at 12:09 P. M., and it was not until many minutes later that the text of the decision began to appear, and then it was seen that the first flashes had been in error. The News Bureau ticker, however, did not make a positive correction until 12:53, when a line appeared reading as follows: "Stock dividends not taxable." In the time between the false report and the denial the houses with private wires from Washington made big profits in the market, prices which had weakened firming up and moving forward with a buoyancy that was inexplicable to those who were without any guiding news other than the first reports.

Blame Their Correspondents.

The tenor of the explanation put out by both of the news bureaus was to the effect that the Washington correspondents of the two services had missed the point of the decision as it was read.

The United Press made the same error as the financial news bureau, but it was asserted last night by a United Press representative that the error was corrected six minutes after the erroneous flash was sent.

Traders were greatly incensed over the erroneous reports sent out and complaints were long and loud, especially on the part of those who had closed out long stock to go short of the market when the first false report appeared. These men were whipsawed. A big trader in one house taking the first news for fact sold his long stock, went short of the market and then confidently went out to luncheon. When he returned he found prices going forward by leaps and bounds, and a big loss piled up against him.

Some of the old timers were a bit wary. In one large commission house a member of the firm on reading the first Dow-Jones flash cautioned customers not to take the news too seriously. "Mistakes have been made in sending other important decisions," he said, "and that which has happened before may prove true now." A few minutes later he brought forth a private tlegram from Washington which was just the opposite of the first news ticker bulletins. Other houses were similarly situated and it was the knowledge gleaned from private wire telegrams which led to some big profits on the long side of the market, while the biggest portion of the trading element was in the dark.

Prices Soar Quickly.

Definite knowledge that the Supreme Court had ruled that stock dividends were not taxable led to one of the biggest flurries in stock market quotations that has been seen in many a day. In the terms of one trader it was a "bear panic." Few had anticipated that there was a short interest in the market of the proportions indicated by the forward movement which took place when the good news broke. For a long time the shorts had been content, apparently, to bide their time, feeling confident that the market would go lower. The good news of last week failed to disturb them, but there was the greatest concern when the favorable Supreme Court decision came forth. It was not a question of covering carefully, but rather one of getting stock at any cost. General Motors ran up some 40 points. Crucible Steel and Baldwin soared rapidly, both being directly affected by the stock dividend decision.

Crucible Steel some time ago announced that it would make stock distributions, but the decision was dependent on a favorable verdict in the Macomber case. Baldwin has long been

The following explanations were given last night of how the error was made in the first reports of the Supreme Court delsion in the stock dividend tax case:

Dow, Jones & Co. said:

"Flashing bulletins from Washington which are sent from the Capitol, in which the Supreme Court sits, concerning the stock dividend tax decision were incorrect and directly contrary to the actual decision of the Supreme Court. Not only were the flashes to financial agencies wrong, but those sent out by news services were also incorrect. It was only when the statement that the lower court was upheld, which appears several hundred lines down in Justice Pitney's decision, came over the wires that it was realized that the first flash was wrong and corrections were immediately sent out by all services."

William H. Hurst, Treasurer of the New York News Bureau, said:

"I understand that the mistake was due to a misunderstanding of the meaning of the decision by our representative and other news representatives, who sat in the courtroom and heard the decision read.

"It is surprising that mistakes of this kind do not happen more often, because of the manner in which the Supreme Court decisions are rendered. No copies are furnished. They are read in the courtroom, generally in a low or mumbling tone. It is necessary to strain your ears to catch the words, and under the circumstances mistakes in interpreting the meaning are not surprising.

"Of course, since this occurs in the Supreme Court of the United States, there is no one to complain to and no way to bring about an improvement, as far as I know. I have heard that a committee of stockbrokers is going to investigate the occurrence. I wish they would. Such an investigation might result in a better method of getting the Supreme Court decisions before the public."

Joseph Cashman, general manager of Dow, Jones & Co., said that his firm made the correction on the ticker within about ten minutes of the time when the erroneous report was sent out.

"We get our service through our own branch in Washington," Mr. Cashman said. "As soon as we got the correction we put it on the ticker I think it was about ten or ten and a half minutes after the first report went out. Some of the other services were very late in getting the correction on the ticker."

Explanations from Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—According to the local representative of the Dow, Jones & Co. agency, forty minutes elapsed between the time when he sent out the first erroneous report and the time when he was able to correct it. This was when further reading of the opinion showed that he had reached a wrong impression from the early paragraphs of the decision.

"I think that it was fully forty minutes before I was able to finally make a correction to my earlier report," said Henry Eland, who represents the Dow, Jones & Co. agency.

The United Press, which furnishes news service for one of the ticker companies, also sent out an erroneous flash on the stock dividend decision. Hugh Baillie, Washington manager for The United Press, said:

"The correction followed within two minutes after the first flash. I do not think that the erroneous information carried in the first flash got into any newspapers, but it was probably carried by one of the ticker companies."

Mr. Baillie said he did not know what ticker agency took The United Press service.

NEW STOCK ISSUES MAY FOLLOW RULING

Distributions Among Higher-Priced Stocks Looked For, Following Court Decision.

STANDARD OIL MENTIONED

One of Its Companies with $5,000,000 Capital Has $50,000,000 Surplus.

The stock dividend decision in the Macomber case has been looked forward to by Wall Street for the last six months, and during that time the prospective verdict has been a market factor of the first importance.

Many of the so-called high priced issues hold their present position, largely as a result of the possibility of stock disbursements. Investors have been eagerly scanning balance sheets in an endeavor to discover the asset position of companies with relation to outstanding stock, and trying to determine whether a capitalization of surplus was a possibility that should be reckoned within the market price of the shares.

The belief has not by any means been universal that the Supreme Court decision would be favorable. In fact, there have been sharply conflicting ideas on the subject, with a preponderance of opinion lately that the decision would be unfavorable. This undoubtedly was a factor in influencing some of the heavier short selling that has taken place.

The letters of brokerage houses have dealt at great length with the prospective stock dividend decision, and frequent compilations have appeared, showing the position of those companies which, it was believed, would be favorably affected by a decision holding that stock distributions were not taxable. Certain companies, it was said, had already planned stock distributions, and were awaiting only the Supreme Court ruling before putting the plan in operation.

One such instance is to be found in the case of Crucible Steel. The Chairman of the board not long ago announced that a big stock dividend would be paid over a period of time, but there was the proviso that such disbursement awaited a ruling by the Supreme Court. Without a ruling holding that the dividends were not taxable it was argued that the distributions would be of little avail to large stockholders, in that a big proportion of the declaration would be taken by the Government in taxes.

This, it is believed, has been an important factor with relation to the Standard Oil group of companies. Stock dividends have come to be of great importance with relation to these companies, and some of the largest distributions of stock have been by these organizations. The Standard of Indiana, for instance, some years ago declared a 2,900 per cent. stock dividend. Since the heavy taxes went into effect, stock

GOVERNMENT LOSES $100,000,000 TAXES

Refunds for Two Years and Loss of Revenue for This Year May Exceed That Amount.

GENERAL EVASION FEARED

Representative Hull, Who Framed the Law, Deplores the Supreme Court Verdict.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Supreme Court today declared, by a five to four decision, that the taxing of stock dividends under the income tax section of the 1916 revenue law is unconstitutional. This decision declared broadly that stock dividends are not income and cannot be taxed, as such if declared by corporations out of their profits accrued since March 1, 1913.

The immediate effect of this decision will be that taxes collected for 1917 and 1918 on stock dividends, and paid under protest, must be refunded by the Government. According to Mr. McCoy, Actuary of the Treasury, the refund for these years will reach $35,000,000, although he said in a letter sent to Representative Longworth today that this amount might be slightly exaggerated. If the decision had been handed down before January 1, it is estimated that the loss to the Government would have reached $75,000,000, as it affects the present tax returns, and all those who have returned stock dividends as tax income will be permitted to deduct them from their taxables.

Despite the fact that the Government will not lose more than $100,000,000 at the outside by the decision, this falling off in the revenue may force Congress to adopt other sources of taxation to meet the expenses for the next fiscal year.

The effect of the decision was discussed informally by members of the Ways and Means Committee today, but no decision was reached as to whether a new source of revenue must be found. If necessary, the loss can be met temporarily by Treasury certificates until such time as Congress finds other sources of revenues.

There was some talk by the more progressive members of requesting the Government to submit a new specific amendment to make the rejected tax constitutional.

Hull Predicts Tax Evasion.

Representative Hull of Tennessee, author of the income tax section of the revenue law, and regarded as the foremost exponent of this system of taxation, characterized the decision as following closely the same line of judicial thought and reasoning that ruled in the Pollock decision, which destroyed income taxation in this country in 1894.

Plan to Use Airplane to Rush Senator To West Virginia to Save Suffrage

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Ratification of the Federal woman suffrage amendment by West Virginia may depend on whether State Senator William Bloch will make the trip tomorrow from Chicago to Cincinnati by the airplane route.

The State Senate is deadlocked 14 to 14 on ratification. Senator Bloch, who is for ratification, is hurrying home from California on a Santa Fé train that arrives here at 11:30 tomorrow morning, if it is on time.

W. H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee made arrangements tonight for an airplane that will be ready to start as soon as Senator Bloch's train arrives in Chicago. The idea is to get him to Cincinnati before 7 o'clock tomorrow evening—the last chance to get connection for Charleston to vote on Wednesday.

If the West Virginia Senator will not agree to go by airplane, a special train will rush him to Cincinnati.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 8.—Suffrage forces in the Legislature, determined to hold the body in session until Senator Bloch can arrive to vote on the Federal amendment, succeeded today in defeating efforts of anti-suffrage leaders to adjourn the Senate and House of Delegates sine die.

ARCHBISHOP HAYES ANSWERS ANDERSON

Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes last evening broke the silence he has maintained from the beginning of the attacks of William H. Anderson upon Roman Catholics, alleging that they were against the Eighteenth Amendment. The statement of the Archbishop follows:

Archbishop's House,
452 Madison Ave., New York.

STATEMENT BY ARCHBISHOP HAYES.

While yielding to many pressing demands for a statement on the slanderous attack of the leader of the Anti-Saloon League on the Catholic Church, I feel that, in taking notice of it, I should apologize, first of all, for not leaving the matter to the decent sentiment of New York, which long since has passed judgment on this zealot, his tongue and his methods.

I am gratified indeed to observe the attitude of the Protestant clergy, who, if I may judge by the press, are not in sympathy with the anti-Catholic utterance of Mr. Anderson.

My purpose in speaking is not to resent the abuse heaped on the Catholic Church because the Archbishop of New York dared to disobey the mandate of the leader of the Anti-Saloon League, by non-attendance at his meeting. Abuse always confounds the abuser.

My sole anxiety is that a single person, in or out of the Catholic church, may be possibly deceived by this sinister figure in American politics, a sower of strife, who sinks so low as to play the un-American rôle of a brewer of bigotry.

Let me say most emphaticallly that The Catholic Church is not affiliated with any political organization, local, State or national; much less is the church in conspiracy to contravene, directly or indirectly, the law of the land.

No honest man, no matter what he may otherwise think of the Catholic Church believes the Church to be an enemy of law and order.

I repeat my public statement of a former occasion that the Catholic Church preaches and practices conscientious obedience to every law, and does not discriminate in favor of one more than another. The Church further demands that law be obeyed, whether we like it or not. Not so Mr. Anderson, who possesses and stresses the Eighteenth Amendment, because he wants it observed and is paid for so doing. He seems but little concerned about other fundamental laws guaranteeing personal liberty, protection against unlawful search and seizure, religious freedom, free-speech, free press and free legislatures.

At a time when every sane, constructive and conservative force and element in the community should be working for a united America, it is deplorable—and discouraging, too—that any man should be permitted to foment distrust and breed mischief.

Woe to him who, in these critical days, sets aflame industrial, social, racial, or religious dissensions! Better for America that he had never been born.

JOS. P. DINEEN,
Secretary.

Although he declared that he or the Anti-Saloon League had never attacked the Catholic Church, William H. Anderson yesterday noon in an address before the Methodist Ministers' Association of New York and vicinity, in the Methodist building, 150 Fifth Avenue, proceeded to attack Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Hayes, "an element in the Catholic Church," "certain Catholics," "the leaders in the Catholic Church," and, in the last part of his address, to criticise the Catholic Church itself.

Applauded by Clergymen.

Mr. Anderson was repeatedly applauded by the 500 methodist preachers present, and at the conclusion of his address they adopted unanimously the following resolution:

"Resolved, by the Methodist Preachers' Association of New York and Vicinity that it heartily indorses and supports the Anti-Saloon League of New York, not alone for the work it has done, but in the struggle which is now on, and the work it is now doing to beat back the vicious counter-attack, which seeks to discredit the League and break down national prohibition."

Among those in the audience was Bishop William Fraser McDowell, resident Methodist Bishop in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Anderson spoke without notes

WILL ACT AT ONCE TO COERCE TURKS

Lloyd George Tells Commons Allied Agents in Constantinople Are in Accord.

FRENCH SENDING MORE MEN

Allies Decide to Sound Wilson as to Their Course Regarding Turks.

LONDON, March 8.—Varying rumors as to developments in Constantinople and Asia Minor were in circulation today, including one of a collision between allied and Turkish forces in the capital, and another that Great Britain had acted alone in taking the decision to occupy Constantinople, but official pronouncements were lacking, except that made by Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons, in which he forecast "immediate drastic action" at Constantinople.

The Premier told the House that prompt measures had been taken by the French Government to send reinforcements to General Gouraud, Commander in Chief of the French forces in the East, for the purpose of re-establishing his position and preventing further attacks on Armenians.

French Ships Sent to Cilician Port.

Mr. Lloyd George made this statement in answer to questions regarding measures taken for the protection of the Armenians. He also said that French ships had been sent to Mersina [a seaport, 36 miles from Adana].

Regarding Constantinople, the Premier said that identical instructions for immediate drastic action had been dispatched to the allied representatives there, who were acting in complete accord. It would be inadvisable, he added, to disclose these instructions until a reply had been received.

The Premier was asked whether in drafting the final peace terms the Supreme Council would take steps to prevent "the further misuse" as a mosque of the Church of St. Sophia at Constantinople and restore it to the use for which it was built as one of the great shrines of Christendom. Mr. Lloyd George replied that the Allies, as at present advised, did not contemplate any change in this matter.

Rumor of Constantinople Disorders.

Reports were in circulation here today that there had been a clash between Allied troops and Turkish forces in Constantinople, but these were discredited at the War Office and the Admiralty, as well as at the Foreign Office. Officials stated that they had received no messages indicating disorders in Constantinople, and that they believed the reports to be untrue.

While definite news of Allied occupation of Constantinople is still awaited, it is stated in some quarters that such action is rendered all the more inevitable owing to information that Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist leader, is strengthening his forces in Asia Minor, and that Turkish bands are concentrating in Eastern Thrace in contravention of the terms of the armistice.

Commenting upon unconfirmed reports that British troops and seamen have actually occupied Constantinople, The London Times says this morning:

"Cardinal Gibbons, James W. Gerard, former American Ambassador at Berlin, and other notable Americans demand that the Turk be expelled from Constantinople, and that Armenia, from Ararat to the sea, be given the fullest autonomy. This manifestation of the best American opinion will be exceedingly welcome to the Allies, but we do not observe that it contains any proposal for American assistance in carrying out the policy which is approved. Allied peoples will not hear of schemes which involve the sacrifice of more money and blood, except for object which constrain them in conscience and honor to attain. They will not fight for concessions to communities or tribes, and international concession hunters are now very active in plans for carving up Asiatic Turkey according to their own desires."

50,000 Allied Troops in Turkey.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 9.—The Daily Chronicle's Peace Conference representative says:

"One material step forward was made yesterday in the treatment of the Turkish crisis: the effective agreement of the three major Allies directly concerned, Great Britain, France and Italy are acting together and in constant communication, and the instructions to their High Commissioners and commanders in Turkey are identical in spirit.

"They are, in fact, all threatened with defiance, not merely in such events as the massacre of Marash, of which shocking details have come to hand, but in the execution of the forthcoming Turkish treaty. Great Britain has taken, and France and Italy have accepted the initiative of what the Prime Minister yesterday called drastic action in the belief that the sooner and more strongly this defiance is dealt with the easier will be all subsequent measures.

"Any hesitation there could have been on the part of France to the coercion of the Sultan has been eclipsed by the

WILSON SAYS CHANGES NULLIFY TREATY; INSISTS ON OBLIGATION UNDER ARTICLE X., BUT SENATORS SEE NO COMPROMISE BAR

Democrats See Opening Left by the President In Not Declaring He Would Reject Compromise

WASHINGTON, March 8 (Associated Press).—Democratic Senators were quick to see today that the President did not advise them to vote against ratification of the treaty as he did last November, nor promise to put the treaty in a White House pigeonhole if it were ratified with more than interpretative reservations.

In that respect they contrasted the letter with his letter to the November Democratic caucus, when he suggested that the treaty with the Republican reservations be voted down.

It was also pointed out on the Democratic side that Mr. Wilson did not centre his objection on any specific form of reservation, and from this hope was revived in some quarters that he would take under protest such a compromise as is under negotiation.

Wilson Appeals for 'Life' of League In a Letter to Senator Hitchcock

Has "No Objection to Explaining Again What Our Constitutional Method Is," but Hopes America Will "Welcome the Opportunity to Share the Responsibilities of Article X."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The text of President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock on Article X. of the League of Nations covenant and the general question of treaty reservations, reads:

THE WHITE HOUSE.
WASHINGTON, March 8, 1920.

My dear Senator Hitchcock:

I understand that one or two of your colleagues do me the honor of desiring to know what my views are with reference to Article X. of the League of Nations, and the effect upon the league of the adoption of certain proposed reservations to that article. I welcome the opportunity to throw any light I can upon a subject which has become so singularly beclouded by misapprehensions and misinterpretations of every kind.

There is no escaping the moral obligations which are expressed in positive terms in this article of the covenant. We won a moral victory over Germany, far greater even than the military victory won on the field of battle, because the opinion of the whole world swung to our support and the support of the nations associated with us in the great struggle. It did so because of our common profession and promise that we meant to establish "an organization of peace which should make it certain that the combined power of free nations would check every invasion of right, and serve to make peace and justice the more secure by affording a definite tribunal of opinion to which all must submit and by which every international readjustment that cannot be amicably agreed upon by the peoples directly concerned shall be sanctioned."

This promise and assurance were written into the preliminaries of the armistice and into the preliminaries of the peace itself and constitute one of the most sacred obligations ever assumed by any nation or body of nations. It is unthinkable that America should set the example of ignoring such a solemn moral engagement.

For myself, I feel that I could not look the soldiers of our gallant armies in the face again if I did not do everything in my power to remove every obstacle that lies in the way of the adoption of this particular article of the covenant, because we made these pledges to them as well as to the rest of the world, and it was to this cause they deemed themselves devoted in a spirit of crusaders. I should be forever unfaithful to them if I did not do my utmost to fulfill the high purpose for which they fought.

I think, my dear Senator, we can dismiss from our minds the idea that it is necessary to stipulate in connection with Article X. the constitutional methods we should use in fulfilling our obligations under it. We gain nothing by such stipulations and secure nothing which is not already secured. It was understood as a matter of course at the conference in Paris that whatever obligations any Government assumed or whatever duties it undertook under the treaty would of course have to be fulfilled by its usual and established constitutional methods of action.

Once or twice in meetings of the conference, when the treaty was under consideration, "reservations" were made to that effect by the representatives of individual powers, and those "reservations" were invariably received in the way in which men who have met for business and not for talk always receive acts of scrupulous supererrogation—listened to with indifferent silence, as such men listen to what is a matter of course and was not necessary to say.

There can be no objection to explaining again what our constitutional method is and that our Congress alone can declare war or determine the causes or occasions for war, and that it alone can authorize the use of the armed forces of the United States on land or on the sea. But to make such a declaration would certainly be a work of supererrogation.

I am sorry to say that the reservations that have come under my notice are almost without exception not interpretations of the articles to which it is proposed to attach them but in effect virtual nullifications of those articles.

Any reservation which seeks to deprive the League of Nations of the force of Article X. cuts at the very heart and life of the covenant itself. Any League of Nations which does not guarantee as a matter of incontestable right the political independence and integrity of each of its members might be hardly more than a futile scrap of paper, as ineffective in operation as the agreement between Belgium and Germany which the Germans violated in 1914.

Article X. as written into the Treaty of Versailles represents the renunciation by Great Britain and Japan, which before the war had begun to find so many interests in common in the Pacific; by France, by Italy, by all the great fighting powers of the world of the old pretensions of political conquest and territorial aggrandizement. It is a new doctrine in the world's affairs and must be recognized or there is no secure basis for the peace which the whole world so longingly desires and so desperately needs.

If Article X. is not adopted and acted upon, the Governments which reject it will, I think, be guilty of bad faith to their people, whom they induced to make the infinite sacrifices of the war by the pledge that they would be fighting to redeem the world from the old order of force and aggression. They will be acting also in bad faith to the opinion of the world at large, to which they appealed for support in a concerted stand against the aggressions and pretensions of Germany.

If we were to reject Article X. or so to weaken it as to take its full force out of it, it would mark us as desiring to return to the old world of jealous rivalry and misunderstandings from which our gallant soldiers have rescued us and would leave us without any vision or new conception of justice and peace. We would have learned no lesson from the war, but gained only the regret that it had involved us in its maelstrom of suffering. If America has awakened, as the rest of the world has, to the vision of a new day in which the mistakes of the past are to be corrected, it will welcome the opportunity to share the responsibilities of Article X.

It must not be forgotten, Senator, that the article constitutes a renunciation of all ambition on the part of powerful nations with whom we were associated in the war. It is by no means certain that without this article any such renunciation will take place. Militaristic ambitions and imperialistic policies are by no means dead, even in counsels of the nations whom we most trust and with whom we most desire to be associated in the tasks of peace.

Throughout the sessions of the conference in Paris it was evident that a militaristic party, under the most influential leadership, was seeking to gain ascendancy in the counsels of France. They were defeated then, but are in control now. The chief arguments advanced in Paris in support of the Italian claims on the Adriatic were strategic arguments; that is to say, military arguments, which had at their back the thought of naval supremacy in that sea. For my own part, I am as intolerant of imperialistic designs on the part of other nations as I was of such designs on the part of Germany.

The choice is between two ideals; on the one hand, the ideal of democracy, which represents the rights of free peoples everywhere to govern themselves, and on the other hand the ideal of imperialism which seeks to dominate by force and unjust power, an ideal which is by no means dead and which is earnestly held in many quarters still.

Every imperialistic influence in Europe was hostile to the embodiment of Article X. in the covenant of the League of Nations, and its defeat now would mark the complete consummation of their efforts to nullify the treaty. I hold the doctrine of Article X. as the essence of Americanism. We cannot repudiate it or weaken it without at the same time repudiating our own principles.

The imperialist wants no League of Nations, but if, in response to the universal cry of the masses everywhere, there is to be one, he is interested to secure one suited to his own purposes, one that will permit him to continue the historic game of pawns and peoples—the juggling of provinces, the old balances of power, and the inevitable wars attendant upon these things.

The reservation proposed would perpetuate the old order. Does any one

WILSON ADVISES SENATORS

HOPE FOR TREATY PERSISTS

Letter Does Not Change Situation, Hitchcock Says—France Attacked, Lodge Declares.

SENATE SPURS PROGRESS

Passes Four Reservations and Reaches Voting-Power Change—Article X. Next.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—President Wilson reiterated today his unqualified opposition to any attempt by the United States to evade obligations under Article X. of the League covenant.

In a letter to Senator Hitchcock the President made it clear that to his mind "there is no escaping the moral obligations which are expressed in positive terms in this article of the covenant;" that the doctrine of Article X. is "the essence of Americanism. We cannot repudiate or weaken it without at the same time repudiating our own principles," and that "we should enter the League fearlessly, accepting the responsibility, and not fearing the rôle of leadership which we now enjoy * * * or we should retire as gracefully as possible from the great concert of powers by which the world was saved."

The President swept aside all the reservations to Article X. which withhold acceptance of the moral obligation, and, to the minds of most Senators, took his stand upon the ground of ratification without any reservation to Article X. except the most obvious interpretation, or no ratification at all.

"I have been struck by the fact," wrote the President, "that practically every so-called reservation was in fact a rather sweeping nullification of the treaty itself." And again, he said: "I am sorry to say that the reservations that have come under my notice are almost without exception not interpretations of the articles to which it is proposed to attach them, but in effect virtual nullifications of these articles."

There were some Senators, however, who professed to read in the President's letter a warrant for continuing their efforts to arrange a compromise on Article X. For that reason the negotiations which have been going on between Senator Simmons, representing the Democrats, and Senator Watson, representing the Republicans, were continued after the receipt of the letter. These negotiations, it was stated, had almost reached the point of an agreement when the letter was received by Senator Hitchcock.

It is too early to state what the ultimate effect of the letter upon these negotiations will be. Obviously there is no use negotiating if the letter makes it impossible for the necessary number of Democratic Senators to agree to the proposed compromise. In the opinion of those directly concerned in the compromise efforts, the letter does not do this, but they have not heard from the ones whose votes must be depended upon to consummate the compromise.

The hope of the compromisers was pinned upon this paragraph in the President's letter:

"There can be no objection to explaining again what our constitutional method is, and that our Congress alone can declare war or determine the causes or occasions for war, and that it alone can authorize the use of the armed forces of the United States on land or the sea. But to make such a declaration would certainly be a work of supererrogation."

Back Bipartisan Basis.

Those seeking compromise believe that the reservation they have in mind simply explains the constitutional method, as the President puts it, in going to war. The reservation which the compromisers are considering reads:

The United States assumes no obligation to employ its military or naval forces, its resources, or the economic boycott to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country under the provisions of Article X., or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any other article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the Congress, which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war, shall, by act or joint resolution, so provide.

This is the bipartisan conference reservation with the addition of the words "its resources" in the enumeration of means not to be used in fulfilling an obligation without the approval of Congress. That there is some warrant, according to one view, for the assumption by Democrats that this reservation comes within the terms of the President's definition of an interpretation or an explanation is maintained from the fact that forty Democratic Senators agreed to support the reservation; that they did so after Senator Glass's recent visit to the White House, and that Senator Hitchcock today, after reading the President's letter, said he would still support it if it was offered by the Republicans.

The President's letter definitely disposed of the plan to have Senator Simmons and possibly other Democrats go to the White House to discuss the compromise with the President. Though it was a response to Senator Hitchcock's suggestion that Senator Simmons receive an appointment for a visit the letter did not refer to this. It commissioned Senator Hitchcock, however, to convey the President's view to the "one or two" Democrats who he understood wanted to know his views.

The immediate effect of the letter, as reflected in comment based upon the most casual reading of it, was to confirm Senators on both sides of the chamber in the belief that the gulf between the President and Senator Lodge is unbridgeable; that the political arena must be the scene of the final decision upon the question of American participation in the League of Nations, and that the President desires that decision to be rendered upon the clear cut issue of unqualified ratification or no ratification.

"Attacks France," Lodge Says.

The passages which most challenged the attention of Senators were the references to the imperialists and militarists of France, the lumping of "nullifiers and mild nullifiers" under one head, and the viewpoint that if the United States rejects Article X. we will have gotten nothing out of the war but regrets that we ever went in.

Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, said that "there are some delightful passages in it, particularly the one in which he attacks France. But I'm not going to make any statement tonight."

Mr. Lodge said he did not know whether the letter would make any difference in the Senate treaty contest.

Senator Hitchcock said that in his opinion the letter would not change the situation. He commented:

"The President declares there is no difference between having no League and an attempt to nullify the League with reservations. It is better, he says, for us to stay out gracefully than to go in disgracefully."

Mr. Hitchcock added that there had never been the remotest possibility that enough Democrats would vote for the Lodge reservation on Article X., or for one which, like it, denies any and all obligations under the article, to bring about ratification.

"Do you think the President's letter rejects the Taft and the bipartisan conference reservations on Article X.?" Senator Hitchcock was asked.

"I don't thing he goes that far," he replied. "He disparages them."

Senator Borah, leader of the bitter-enders, said:

"The President makes the issue of League or no League, which is in the proper form. As I understand it, he stands pat. He even rejects mild reservations."

"Mild" Leader Sees Obstacles.

For the mild reservationists, Senator Kellogg, to whom is attributed the renascence of compromise effort, commented thus;

"If President Wilson by his letter means, as he evidently does, that we must adopt Article X., obligating this country to send an army to Europe every time any foreign country demands it, or to furnish money and resources to maintain every country in the world, then I must say I will not vote for such a proposition.

"I do not believe the people of this country desire to be bound to maintain the political independence of every country in the world, or to furnish the men and money to do so. Shall we obligate ourselves to maintain Japan's rights in China, or Turkey's in Europe? That question should be passed upon by the people or by the people's representatives in Congress when the occasion arises."

Senator Fletcher, of Florida, a Democrat, said he was "still hopeful that we will get reservations that will not destroy the terms of the covenant, but if they do nullify it as the President says, I do not believe we should vote for the ratifying resolution."

Senator Curtis of Kansas took the view that "the President indicates squarely and clearly that he is against protecting the interests of the United States. If the members of the Senate who have been following him adopt the doctrines he lays down there can be no ratification, because the majority of the Senate are determined that American interests be fully protected."

Four Reservations Adopted.

Before the letter was received at the Capitol today the Senate put an end to its dilatoriness and under a unanimous consent closure agreement adopted four reservations. This brought the Senate to reservation No. 14, covering voting power. Consideration of this was expected to consume a day or two and Article X. was expected to come up by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest.

Over Sunday conferences resulted in Senator Lodge consenting to ask the Senate to agree that in the interest of speedier action debate on the minor reservations be limited. He did this to conform to the wishes of Senator Borah and the other irreconcilables. Mr. Borah gave notice on Saturday that unless some step was taken to hasten the discussion so that the real issue might be brought up, he would move to take up Article X. at once.

Mr. Lodge's request was that Senators be limited to twenty minutes each on all reservations except those covering voting power and Article X. There was no objection. Immediately after this agreement was reached the Senate began disposing of reservations almost without debate, and the roll calls upon the four which were adopted showed about the same lineup each time.

Reservation No. 8, covering disarmament, was first disposed of. A substitute for the Lodge reservation was adopted with an amendment by Senator Cormick of Illinois. The result was that the substitute reservation was about the same as the original Lodge provision. It reads:

"No plan for the limitation of armaments proposed by the council of the League of Nations under the provisions of Article VIII. shall be held as binding the United States until the same shall have been accepted by Congress, and the United States reserves the right to increase its armament without the consent of the council whenever the United States is threatened with invasion or engaged in war."

Steady Lineup in Votes.

The reservation as amended was adopted by 49 to 26.

By a vote of 44 to 28, reservation No. 11 was then agreed to. It gives the United States discretion to allow nationals of covenant-breaking States who live in the United States and against whose countries the economic boycott of Article XVI. has been invoked, to continue their commercial, financial and personal relations with American citizens.

No. 12 was agreed to by 45 to 27, without debate. It is intended to protect Americans who have some interest in the property of enemy aliens in the United States, which property might be disposed of under certain clauses of the treaty.

No. 13 also was adopted without discussion, 44 to 27. It refuses the adherence of the United States to Part XIII of the Treaty, the labor clauses.

REPLY SATISFIES SALVADOR.

Will Join League Following Washington Answer on Monroe Doctrine.

SAN SALVADOR, March 8.—The Republic of San Salvador has issued an official decree stating that, in view of the answer of the Washington Government to Salvador's request for an interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, Salvador accepts the proposal to join the international convention of the League of Nations.

This step, it is added, conforms to the national sentiment of Salvador.

COUNT ON PALMER TO BACK UP WILSON

THIRD TERM HINT IS SEEN

Comment on Passage in Letter on "Opportunity" to Appeal for Humanity.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Political leaders were busy tonight discussing the attitude which candidates for the nomination for President on the Democratic ticket would take in the event that President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock prevented ratification of the treaty of peace on a basis satisfactory to the White House and the President himself did not seek a third term. There were few who expressed further doubt that the treaty would be one of the great issues of the election.

It is expected here that Attorney General Palmer, who has announced his candidacy, will accept the President's stand "without reservation" and enter the fight on that basis. Up to this time he has said that he was with the President, but that was before the President's letter to Mr. Hitchcock was made public, late today. Political strategists hold to the opinion that Mr. Palmer will now go as far as the President in his declarations on the treaty, and endeavor to take over the rôle of heir apparent on that ground.

The interesting point was made here tonight that unless Mr. Palmer goes into the race as an unqualified exponent of President Wilson's attitude, as expressed in the letter to Senator Hitchcock, the President may have no candidate among those who are mentioned prominently now to carry the fight into the campaign for ratification without reservations which do not kill the moral obligation expressed in Article X. of the League covenant—unless, of course, Mr. Wilson is prepared to come out as a candidate himself.

If such a contingency arose there are some who believe that President Wilson would assume the burden even though his health might make such a step a precarious one, but the general feeling is that Mr. Palmer will offer himself as the logical candidate for the support of the White House, on the treaty issue, and that Mr. Wilson will not run.

Herbert Hoover, when publicity was given recently to reports that he had written to the President urging ratification of the treaty with due respect to the opinions of the Republican Senators, asserted that his stand on the treaty was represented by that of the League to Enforce Peace. Further than that he has not gone, and in an address in California he was quoted as stating that he was not in sympathy with attacks upon Senators for making objections to unqualified acceptance of the League of Nations.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury and the third of the candidates who are looked upon as having more than an even chance for the nomination, in the event that the President does not enter the race, has not defined his position in any detail or stated whether he would favor a compromise or unqualified ratification. It is not believed that Mr. McAdoo will appear as a candidate on a platform of ratification without reservations.

The question whether President Wilson will appear before the people soon in the role of a candidate for a third term was revived today when the letter he sent to Senator Hitchcock was carefully digested by the political strategists who have been vainly trying to obtain a definite announcement in that direction. Attention was called by more than one of the leaders who are vitally interested in this phase of the situation to the following sentence in the President's letter to Senator Hitchcock:

"Our responsibility as a nation in this turning point of history is an overwhelming one, and, if I had the opportunity, I would beg every one concerned to consider the matter in the light of what it is possible to accomplish for humanity rather than in the light of special national interests."

This passage, some felt, might be accepted as an indication that under certain circumstances the President would go before the people as a candidate, but admittedly no definite conclusion could be reached. And there the matter rested after much fervent discussion which got nobody anywhere.

President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock coming on the heels of a statement issued by William Jennings Bryan, published today, demanding ratification of the treaty even though the reservations put forward by the Lodge group in the Senate have to be accepted, apparently has served to widen the breach between the President and his former Secretary of State, and in fact places them in exactly opposite camps. The situation may very well bring on a sharp conflict for control of the San Francisco convention, with Bryan supporting a candidate who would accept ratification with reservations and the President throwing his weight in behalf of a candidate who indorses his viewpoint in opposition to reservations.

WILSON APPEALS FOR 'LIFE OF LEAGUE'

really want to see the old game played again? Can any one really venture to take part in reviving the old order? The enemies of a League of Nations have by every true instinct centred their efforts against Article X., for it is undoubtedly the foundation of the whole structure. It is the bulwark, and the only bulwark, of the rising democracy of the world against the forces of imperialism and reaction.

Either we should enter the league fearlessly, accepting the responsibility and not fearing the rôle of leadership, which we now enjoy, contributing our efforts toward establishing a just and permanent peace, or we should retire as gracefully as possible from the great concert of powers, by which the world was saved. For my own part, I am not willing to trust to the counsel of diplomats the working out of any salvation of the world from the things which it has suffered.

I believe that when the full significance of this great question has been generally apprehended obstacles will seem insignificant before the opportunity, a great and glorious opportunity, to contribute our overwhelming moral and material force to the establishment of an international régime in which our own ideals of justice and right may be made to prevail and the nations of the world be allowed a peaceful development under conditions of order and safety hitherto impossible.

I need not say, Senator, that I have given a great deal of thought to the whole matter of reservations proposed in connection with the ratification of the treaty and particularly that portion of the treaty which contains the covenant of the League of Nations, and I have been struck by the fact that practically every so-called reservation was in effect a rather sweeping nullification of the terms of the treaty itself.

I hear of reservationists and mild-reservationists, but I cannot understand the difference between a nullifier and a mild nullifier. Our responsibility as a nation in this turning point of history is an overwhelming one, and if I had the opportunity, I would beg every one concerned to consider the matter in the light of what it is possible to accomplish for humanity, rather than in the light of special national interests.

If I have been truly informed concerning the desire of some of your colleagues to know my views in this matter, I would be very glad if you should show this letter to them.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.
Hon. GILBERT M. HITCHCOCK,

KURDS MAKE PEACE WITH ARMENIANS

BRITAIN SAID TO FAVOR IT

Proposed State Would Form a Barrier Between Turkey and the Persian Route to India.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 3 (By Associated Press).—The Turkish press is much agitated over the understanding between the Armenians and the Kurds and the efforts of the Kurdish leaders in Paris to obtain autonomy for Kurdistan.

Abdul Kador Effendi, representing Kurdistan in the Senate, when approached today by the newspaper men, confirmed the report of an agreement between the Armenians and the Kurds to cease fighting. He also stoutly defended Kurdistan's claims to autonomy.

Consequently, Abdul Kador Effendi has become the storm centre for the rage of the Mussulman press, which is quoting many alleged messages from Kurds saying that they do not desire to break away from the Caliphate. Abdul Kador says the leaders of the Society for the Betterment of Kurdistan, which is generally supported, do not want to abandon religious connection with Constantinople, but that because of the notoriously bad administration they want political autonomy.

The Turkish newspapers insist that it is proposed to sever religious ties, and they attack the Kurdish leaders on religious grounds. The Tasvir-i-Efkiar (Mirror of Opinion) says:

"What good can come to a Kurdistan which is not a part of the Ottoman Empire and the Mussulman world? It is ridiculous that an Ottoman Senator should cherich such ideas."

The nomadic population of less than a million, it is asserted, is incapable of giving an expression of public opinion, and diplomats acquainted with Turkey's affairs generally regard the Kurdish autonomous movement as the desire of a small political clique whose members they declare are endeavoring to create better jobs for themselves.

An autonomous or independent Kurdistan, it is argued, connecting on the north with an independent Armenia and on the south with Mesopotamia under British control, would form an effective barrier between Turkey and the English-controlled Persian project for a route to India. Therefore diplomats here assert that they would not be surprised to hear of an autonomous or even an independent Kurdistan receiving the hearty support of Great Britain.

The Supreme Council's decision with regard to boundaries is being awaited eagerly by the Turks, Armenians and Greeks in Turkey. Since the Greeks form a large percentage of the population of Trebizond and apparently are reconciled with the Armenians, it is now generally believed in Constantinople that Trebizond will be the Black Sea port of Armenia and that the two provinces of Trebizond and Erzerum will comprise the Armenian Republic, with possible additions.

The Armenians are claiming Adana on the Mediterranean and a strip connecting with the Black Sea on historic grounds; but it is considered that there is little likelihood that the Supreme Council will create such a State, as great armies would be required to defend it against hostile Turks.

The representative of the Armenians and the Patriarchs of the Catholic, Orthodox and Protestant Churches have declared a month of mourning because of the Marash massacres. In the churches no bells are to be rung, and theatres and other places of amusement will be closed.

18,000 KILLED AT MARASH.

British Relief Agent Says 8,000 Armenians Are Still in Ruined City.

LONDON, March 8.—Dr. Kennedy, in charge of the Lord Mayor's Relief Fund at Adana, where there are about 35,000 Armenian refugees, has sent a message to Aneurin Williams, member of the House of Commons, confirming the report that 18,000 Armenians were massacred in the Marash district.

The city was burned and has not been relieved. Thirteen hundred women and children perished in snowstorms on their flight to Adana. Eight thousand Armenians are still at Marash, and many of them are wounded.

Adana, the message adds, is not immediately threatened, but there is anxiety, and no confidence in the security of the district.

Army of 150,000 Reported to be Concentrated Along the Dniester.

LONDON, March 8.—The Bolsheviki are expected shortly to enter Bessarabia, according to Reval advices transmitted by the Central News correspondent at Copenhagen.

Bolshevist troops to the number of 150,000 have crossed the Dniester at various points, the message says, and their entrance into Bessarabia within a short time is considered probable. A number of Rumanian troops encountered by the Bolsheviki have been dispersed.

HUNT FOR REVENUE FOR SOLDIER RELIEF

House Committee Discusses Proposals with American Legion Men.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—How to obtain new sources of revenue to provide relief for former service men was discussed today by the House Ways and Means Committee with representatives of soldier organizations, but without common agreement as to the best mode of procedure.

Colonel E. Lester Jones, commanding the District of Columbia Department, American Legion, announced that the Legion's Executive Committee would meet March 22, and expressed belief that it would work in close co-operation with all service men toward obtaining help from the Government.

David I. Scanlon of Philadelphia, a former soldier, suggested that the interest on the Government's foreign loans be used for a soldier fund, but it was explained that this money had been allocated in making up tax schedules. Other witnesses urged cash payments, but objected to use of the word "bonus."

Discussing the farm settlement proposal, Colonel Jones said he had found that about 350,000 former soldiers desired an opportunity to take over farms. While he approved in principle a land settlement scheme, he said it should not be confined to vacant public lands or remote cutover lands in the South and West, but vacant lands in the vicinity of cities should be condemned and purchased for soldier use.

Chairman Fordney read a letter from Baltimore, signed "Dough Boys," protesting against the recent statement to the committee by Captain Walter Burns that ex-soldiers did not desire a cash bonus or to further embarrass the Treasury.

SUNDAY LAW URGED.

Jersey Senate Hears Arguments on Liberal Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 8.—A hearing on the Smith "Liberal Sunday" bill to enable municipalities to pass ordinances for the opening of amusement and business places on Sunday developed into a lively discussion before the Senate tonight. Dr. Hesp of Jersey City, President of the New Jersey Motion Picture League; Mayor Gillen of Newark, and City Recorder Goldenberg of Atlantic City spoke for the measure.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Johnson, representing the Lord's Day Alliance, conducted the argument against the bill. In advocating the passage of the bill Mr. Goldenberg said it was designed to make New Jersey "safe for democracy and not for hypocrisy." Another bill before the Legislature provides for a referendum as to whether the Sunday laws shall be relaxed.

disaster to the expedition of General Normand and Colonel Bremond to Marash. General Franchet Désperey and General Gouraud have the one as Allied Generalissimo in the Turkish capital, the other as French commander in Syria—the first responsibility for this phase of the situation. The reinforcement of the troops of occupation in Constantinople is a comparatively simple matter. A graver and more lasting problem is that of order in the interior of Asia Minor and the effective protection of Armenians and other minorities.

"The French Government have sent additional troops to restore the position in Cilicia. Some of these arrived at Alexandretta and Beirut last Friday from Marseilles and are proceeding to Marash. They are understood to number between 6,000 and 7,000. The French Government also sent three warships to Mersina in support. At present the French are estimated to have 15,000 to 20,000 troops in the neighborhood of Constantinople.

"The British troops of the Army of the Black Sea number about 10,700 British and 18,000 Indian, with over 8,000 laborers, muleteers and followers. There are also some Italian troops near Constantinople, and some Greek troops can take guard duties outside; so that the Allies, it is estimated, have between them a force of pretty nearly 50,000 troops practically on the spot.

In case of any emergency several British home battalions have been warned that they may be moved at short notice, but at the moment their use in the Near East is not decided on."

Discredit Story of Reinforcements.

PARIS, March 8.—It is officially stated today that the recent sailing of French troops on the steamer Austria for the Near East had no connection whatever with the recent events in Turkey. The troops were partly soldiers rejoining their regiments in the army of occupation after leave of absence, the announcement adds, while the others were replacement troops such as are constantly sent to replace sick and otherwise disabled soldiers.

French losses in Cilicia from the end of January to Feb. 15, which includes the period during which disorders occurred at Marash, were 158 killed; 279 wounded and 181 missing, according to the Temps. Losses of French regulars and native troops are included in these figures.

British Squadron Reaches Bizerta.

BIZERTA, Northern Africa, March 8.—A British squadron which arrived here from Oran has proceeded for Constantinople.

This is probably the British squadron of four battleships, one cruiser and ten destroyers, which arrived at Algiers on March 4. Algiers lies about midway between Oran, to the south—southwest, and Bizerta, the most northern point on the coast of Africa.

ALLIES SOUND WILSON ON TURKISH TREATY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 8.—The following article by "Pertinax" will appear in the Echo de Paris tomorrow:

"The attitude of the French Government toward the important decisions taken by the Allied Supreme Council in London at the end of last week on the subjects of the economic manifeste and Turkey is somewhat as follows:

"Sunday evening Premier Millerand requested that two new amendments be made in the famous documents. One of these amendments laid down in very formal terms the proposition that the powers of the Reparation Commission as provided for in the Treaty of Versailles should not be in any way whatever changed under the pretext of a loan issued in neutral countries for the purpose of aiding German recovery.

"The second amendment stipulated that the loan intended for the reconstruction of the ruined districts of France should have the advantage of priority over that for reconstructions in Germany. Further safeguards are likely to be asked by the French Government before it will give its approval to the London manifesto. It is well aware that public opinion in France will not countenance any weakness or evasion.

"With regard to Turkey, the state of affairs is as follows:

"Mr. Lloyd George and his colleagues proposed on Friday last that in order to summon the Turkish Nationalists to keep order the allied powers should at once make a theatrical demonstration in Constantinople, occupy the Ministry of War, force the Nationalist Ministry to resign and the Sultan to nominate a new Ministry pledged to a moderate program, and friendly relations with the Allies, and deprive Mustapha Kemal of his functions as Governor of Erzerum.

"France considers that the High Commissioners of the powers at present at Constantinople should be consulted as to the advisability of such a demonstration. While waiting for a reply she has drawn the attention of England to the following points:

"First—That the forced resignation of the Nationalist Ministry will not loosen its hold on popular sympathy, but will rather strengthen it.

"Second—That as a consequence of the measures taken at Constantinople there may easily result further massacres in Armenia and Cilicia. England declares that she is ready to support the French troops in Cilicia, but in Paris it is considered that such collaboration may easily give rise to fresh Anglo-French difficulties such as those that arose in the Near East last Autumn, which were settled only with difficulty.

"It becomes obvious in this way how slowed allied accord on the London resolutions is being realized. These resolutions as far as they concern Turkey are also, as every one knows, menaced by another peril, the eventual veto of President Wilson. We understand that the Cabinets of London, Paris and Rome, anxious to avoid any such contingency, have charged their Ambassadors at Washington to present the Turkish treaty plan as it has been elaborated during the last three weeks and to request him [the President] to communicate to them his opinion as to what will eventually be acceptable to America, and whether America will associate herself with the Allies in sharing the responsibility."

FRENCH VIEW TURKISH OUTLOOK AS HOPELESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 8.—Though there has been plenty of French comment on the Turkish imbroglio and the proposed occupation of Constantinople, it has not been very clear just what the French point of view was. There are very many words, but very little expression of opinion. Thus, in a long editorial in the Temps setting forth the facts of the situation, the only definite thing one could gather about what the writer thought was that it was a pretty hopeless mess.

In point of fact, this is precisely what the French do think—that it is a mess so hopeless as to be well-nigh incapable of remedy. "What is the use," they say, "of worrying about British intentions regarding Constantinople, or whether President Wilson will approve the allied policy when we know that nothing any of us can do will bring the Turkish problem any nearer solution?"

The reasoning on which this attitude is eased logical enough. Briefly, it is as follows: The Allies have sent a sharp note to Turkey protesting against the behavior of the Nationalists—the butchery of Armenians, etc—and propose to back up this note by the "occupation" of Constantinople—that is, presumably, by seizing the Ministries and putting sentinels at their doors, by putting the Sultan and such Ministers as they can catch under virtual arrest and by generally taking over the government.

Unfortunately, this will have about as much effect on the Nationalists as the bite of a mosquito. The latter are practically independent of the Sultan's Government, and are certainly not going to be overawed by any pressure the Allies may bring to bear upon it.

It is not in the Turkish capital, but in the heart of Asia Minor, that French troops are being attacked and Armenians massacred, and the only way to bring the Nationalists to order is by a direct expedition or expeditions against them.

In other words, a new and costly war in a difficult country. Will all or any of the Allies care to undertake it? "Not we," say the French; "not if we know it, and we don't think Italy will, either, or even our enterprising British friends."

For, even should England take on the job and accomplish it successfully, she would gain little or nothing. She would simply have been giving herself a great deal of trouble and expense in order to make practically possible—which it is not now—the carrying out of the Turkish Treaty, with which neither she herself nor anyone else is satisfied.

"Balkanization" of Turkey.

To review the situation: Here is a treaty which involves the Balkanization of the Turkish Empire on the worst scale—its division into a dozen different and mutually jealous States, protectorates and spheres of influence.

It will take a good size war to force it upon the Turks, and then who is to say that President Wilson will not veto the whole scheme? Even if he did not, the confusion would only be worse confounded.

At the stage matters have been allowed to reach only two solutions are practically possible. First, one power—England, or perhaps Greece, if she could do it—might be allowed to conquer Asia Minor and thereafter assume a protectorate over it and Constantinople as well. America, of course, could do it if she wanted to—perhaps even France or Italy, though that is more doubtful.

In that event Turkey would be decently governed, and the rights, financial and others, of foreign creditors and Christian minorities would be protected. It would require some sacrifices on the part of other powers and give the power chosen a nasty little war, which might become rather a big war, to tackle.

The other solution is to recognize the Nationalists, let them have Asia Minor and Constantinople, too, on condition that they promise to be good.

It is not very dignified, it is simple and inexpensive, and if the Allies can swallow their pride regarding the Soviets they can do the same regarding the Turks. Besides, it should not be difficult to make the Nationalists see that they had more to gain by playing the game fairly with the Allies than by running crooked.

Those are the only solutions the French can see. They do not like the first one very much, and they admit that the second does not help the Armenians or other distressed nations toward the free disposition of themselves. "But that," they say, "is, after all, Mr. Wilson's idea, as was the League of Nations. If America had not backed out of the League and out of the allied concert, doubtless one or the other might have been able to do something in Turkey that Mr. Wilson would have liked better. As it is, we have little choice."

There is no other alternative, but the French do not think it practical. It is to maintain the occupation of Constantinople and such pressure as can be brought upon the Asia Minor Nationalists in the meantime, morally or by blockade or by armed force. To begin with, it is very unlikely that such pressure would be efficacious. Secondly, who will occupy Constantinople, and for how long?

Then experience of international control at Tangiers has given the French a perfect horror of being associated with anything of the kind. They know it leads only to friction and jealousy, without accomplishing anything useful.

But it is hardly to be admitted that any one power will be allowed to have sole control of the Turkish capital and the Bosporus. Therefore the French disapprove this suggestion—all the more because it appears to be the very line of conduct toward which the Allies are drifting.

In fact, as it is seen today by French eyes, the Turkish problem is just one more big reef added to others that are threatening to wreck the storm-tossed bark of European civilization.

MOSCOW ORDERLY UNDER RED RULE

FEW RED FLAGS ARE SEEN

Street Cars Used by the Municipality to Transport Fuel and Other Stores.

By ARTHUR E. COPPING.

MOSCOW, March 8 (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle).—Moscow in midwinter under Bolshevist rule and after five and one-half years of war is outwardly as dull and tame as her blue skies and fair vistas of dainty architecture allow. Her inhabitants do not promenade or saunter; they walk straight ahead with preoccupied, downward gaze and with definite if unhasty footsteps.

The Winter cold has something to do with this, for masses of snow rise and fall in confusion of mounds and depressions amid which sleighs have cut deep channels and horses' hoofs have hammered out ladders or ridges, while deep down between the miniature embankments lie exposed street car lines.

In places the sidewalks present stretches and patches of ice polished by thousands of shuffling feet. Elsewhere roadway and sidewalk are indistinguishable, save for irregular communications of snow and broken slabs of ice, for the Socialist Republic has adopted the sound rule of making every citizen responsible for removing the snow from the stretch of communal thoroughfare in front of his abode. But how is one to sweep away several tons of material as hard as rock and cemented to the ground?

Families Wield Pickaxes.

Here and there you see a strenuous family at work with pickaxes. It is splendid exercise and if they persevere long enough a lot of stuff gets loosened. Then arises the baffling problem, where is one to put these bulky chunks of solidified water? To hurl them to the right or the left is merely to court unpleasantness with the people who live next door, so there is practically nothing for it but to add a new story, so to speak, to the white barricade under which the gutter and curbstones were long since buried.

Citizens labor under another obligation, namely, to remove snow accumulations from their roofs, and since failure to obey this regulation is attended with risk of the structural collapse of the home it is almost impossible to look out of an upper window in Moscow without seeing groups of one's neighbors busy among the chimney pots with great wooden spades.

I have said the population streams through the streets of this city like people intent only on their destination. That statement may be taken as applying both to topography and politics. Everybody seems to be thinking all the time about revolution but only about Part 2 (reconstruction). Part 1 (destruction is finished and recognized as done with.

Few Red Flags To Be Seen.

Unlike Pskov, which was in an area of recent warfare, Moscow is almost entirely innocent of red flags. I saw none in fact until one day visiting a child-welfare exhibition I found two hanging outside the entrance. Since then I have seen two more publicly displayed, but again as a means of drawing attention to an exhibition. No ruddy bunting flutters over military and Government establishments. The flagpost of the palace and other buildings of Moscow stand naked.

Nor have symbols of the deposed order entirely disappeared. Wherever placed within reasonable reach on walls and buildings the crowned eagles have been taken down. Crimson cloth hides those that occur in the vast opera house auditorium. Only as the final metal decoration atop of several Kremlin towers and steeples does the insignia of Czardom remain in sight. "As a matter of fact," says a young Communist friend of mine, "those decorations have both historic and architectural value." Besides, not everybody would fancy the job of climbing up and knocking them down.

I have said that Part 2 of the revolution is ever present to the minds of the people one sees streaming through the streets of Moscow. To begin with, papers are full of Part 2, and long queues form to buy papers. To enter into general conversation with anyone is to find some aspect of the revolution uppermost in his or her mind. To overhear conversation is to find the achievements or difficulties or prospects of the revolution under discussion.

No Moscow citizen can look at other Moscow citizens without being reminded of the revolution. The absence of rich dresses from the crowd prevents one forgetting what has happened. Of course the dispossessed classes are strongly represented in the streets, but they are scarcely otherwise to be recognized except by their cultured faces. Their clothes are unassuming even if the cut be neat, and if fur be the choice factor it occasionally also distinguishes the clothing of the workers. But the note of sombre uniformity is uninterrupted. There are no human peacocks in Moscow, none who strut or are of gorgeous plumage.

No Trace of Class Tyranny.

Also I have nowhere seen any surviving trace of class rancor or tyranny. Armed proletarians do not loaf at street corners to scowl or sneer at those who once were more favored by fortune than they. I have entered no Government office or other institution without finding cultured women and girls content, smiling and lending a hand. They are subjects neither of envy nor of pity. In the name of the children, in the name of Russia, in the name of common sense they are working with a will. Despotism, war, corruption, revolution, have scattered the old Russia; it behooves every educated person to help to build the new Russia out of the ruins.

True, the architects who have taken over the gigantic job are intent on novel foundations and strange designs. Their brains are hot with enthusiasm for their pet set of political theories and social ideals. For them the experience of the past ages yields nothing but precedents to be avoided. They are bent on canceling the history of the world up to the present date and starting society all over again.

But note the crucial fact that these dreamers are the only practical people. They alone have proved capable of holding the reins of power, of organizing a large and victorious army, of erecting an orderly Government out of chaos. Therefore they and their Government command material support.

As I write the municipal election is proceeding in this city. Of 853 newly elected members of the Soviet or Council there are 762 Communists, twenty-seven sympathizers with Communism, fifty-four Independents, nine Mensheviki and one Anarchist. During the election it has been a common experience to hear a workman say: "Although I am not a Bolshevik myself, I voted for the Bolsheviki because the Bolsheviki are running the Government and we want in Moscow a Soviet that will help things forward, instead of pulling against the stream."

This reminds me of statements made by a friend who loyally supports the Government, although not himself a Communist, and who, having long been identified with agriculture, speaks with authority concerning rural politics.

Administrative Ability Attracts.

"In our village," he says, "the Communists are an insignificant minority, but we always manage by hook or crook to find one to send up as our representative on the District Soviet. Other villages do the same. Then the District Soviet is careful to send Communists to the County Soviets, and so it goes on until the Soviets of the Provinces send a large majority of Communists to the All-Russian Soviet from which the Government is chosen. We recognize that the Bolsheviki have high administrative powers and that by their devotion to the people's service they have safely brought the revolution through the many dangers that at one time threatened it. Therefore they receive the support of those of us who do not share their ultimate political aims. We feel that the great thing is to get the country organised on a satisfactory footing and, after all, economic laws can be trusted in the long run to look after themselves." Of friends, whose judgment commands respect, I inquired whether the existing electoral machine would be sensitive and respond to a desire for political change if and when the great mass of Russian people thought fit to inaugurate one.

"Yes," he replied, "the village Soviets are the base of the electorate structure, and a political ripple starting in the village Soviet must grow. In the All-Russian Soviet it becomes a wave, carrying all before it; in other words, in the will of the peasants lies the future of Russia."

"Are you satisfied?" I asked, "that the establishment of a new Government, should Russia later desire one, can be brought about peaceably?"

"Yes," he replied, "the Soviet system, to whatever criticism it may be open, certainly registers the will of the workers and peasants, and under it a political change would take place automatically without occasion for further bloodshed."

Nor can I forbear in this connection quoting a remark recently made to me by an educated Russian lady who works with hearty enthusiasm in one of the Government offices.

"Many Communists," she said, "are so set on establishing a great free Russia on the ashes of Tzardom, that it is as if their own Government were superceded they would place their services, I am sure, at the disposal of whatever Government were set up in its place." A high compliment, but one I believe richly deserved.

Yet here I have gone off into a long political digression about the revolution. It may at least serve to illustrate my point, namely, that the revolution is everywhere visible and continuously present in all minds throughout the city.

Take vehicular traffic, for instance. The electric street cars are running, but not for the carriage of passengers. Moscow's municipality uses the cars as well as thousands of sleighs for the transport of fuel and other stores, for in this novel community the feeding and clothing of the people, as well as the illumination of their homes and institutions is done by the State. In Russia, private enterprise has been deposed from the position of sole responsibility for all that sort of thing.

Going out shopping the other day, I bought twenty eggs from a dirty-looking old lady, who declined to do business at a kopeck below the price she mentioned—1,500 roubles for ten eggs, so I counted out 3,000 roubles, which, at the rate of exchange ruling when the war broke out, is equivalent to £300 (or $1,500).

570,000 Votes Cast in Moscow.

MOSCOW, March 8 (By Wireless to London).—The first plenary meeting of the newly-elected Moscow Soviet has just taken place. In the elections 570,000 votes were cast, or 97 per cent. of the voters. There were 588,000 who had no right to vote, of whom 468,000 were children. The others were criminals and those whose incomes were not derived from labor. Under the Russian Emperor only 15,000 voted, while under Kerensky 45,000 were permitted the franchise.

GERMANY TO INSIST ON NECESSITY OF LOAN

Memorandum to Allies Will Ask for 45,000,000,000 Marks, It Is Said.

PARIS, March 8.—A dispatch to Le Journal from Berlin says that the German Government will hand to the Allies in May next a memorandum insisting on the necessity of granting to Germany a loan of 45,000,000,000 marks. The memorandum will also demand modification of the rules governing the Allies' occupation, the dispatch adds.

BERLIN, March 7.—Discussing editorially the prospective financial aid of the Allies to Germany, the Vossische Zeitung says today: "The proposed international loan is not an expression of altruism, but must be construed as springing from egotistical motives."

The newspaper declares Europe has reason to fear that Germany will reject the loan and therefore Germany need not consent to all the terms demanded, but can even name her own conditions. It also suggests that if the Entente demands surety for the loan such securities must be proposed by Germany and not be of such a nature as would permit intervention in the nation's finances or restriction of her economic activities.

DELAY TOLEDO REFERENDUM

Doherty Protest Changes Plans for Vote on Street Cars.

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 8.—Hope of submitting the proposed service-at-cost street car ordinance to the voters at the April 27 primary was abandoned today because of a protest against the franchise plan telegraphed from New York by Henry L. Doherty, head of the Toledo Railways and Light Company.

It was decided that the vote must be postponed until Aug. 10 at the earliest. In his telegram, Doherty suggested that he pay the cost of a special election, but this offer was not favored. Mayor Schreiber predicted that the company would not again take its cars out of operation.

POLICE ARREST SIX IN SILK THEFT CASE

HAD GOODS IN CANVAS BAGS

Material Alleged to Have Been Stolen from Virgil Thurkauf Sons—Additional Arrest.

In the arrest of six men yesterday in a loft building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Houston Street detectives under Captain McQueeny of the Tenderloin Detective Bureau believe they are on the trail of a band of burglars responsible for thefts of silk from firms in Paterson, N. J., and on the west side amounting to upward of $500,000.

Detective Sergeants Lees, Lowenthal and Quinn yesterday received word that about $45,000 worth of raw silk had been carried to the third floor of 605 Broadway late Saturday afternoon. The detectives recalled that a general alarm had been sent out Saturday morning for a considerable quantity of silk which had been stolen the night before from the silk dyeing establishment of Virgil Thurkauf Sons at 440 West Fifty-fourth Street.

Detectives Lees, Lowenthal and Quinn hurried down to the loft at Broadway and Houston Street, where they found, they allege, Louis Groner, 31 years old, of 130 Twelfth Avenue, Paterson, N. J.; and his two brothers, Abraham Groner, 29 years old, of 209 Harriman Street, Paterson, and William H. Groner, 22 years old, of 130 Twelfth Avenue, Paterson, aiding Morris Karvitz, 35 years old, of 21 Benson Street, Paterson, to unpack raw silk from canvas bags. The detectives asked the men how they came into possession of the silk, and, the detectives said, Karvitz who acted as spokesman for the four, warned his companions not to answer.

The detectives started to examine the silk, they said, when Harry Kurian, 47 years old, of 472 Union Avenue, Paterson, and Julian Arlington, 29 years old, of 108 Water Street, Paterson, hurried into the place and demanded that Karvitz supply them with samples of the silks as they had customers who would purchase it immediately. The detectives thereupon put Kurian and Arlington also under arrest, and then summoned patrol wagons, and took the prisoners and the bags of silk to the West Thirtieth Street station.

After questioning the men they learned they were connected with several warehouses in Paterson, and Captain McQueeny immediately notified the police of that city. Detectives were hurried to the West Thirtieth Street Station from Paterson and an inventory was taken of the silk found in the loft at Broadway and Houston Street. The detectives also sent word to Thurkauf, and, they allege, he identified some of the silk found in the place as having been part of the loot taken from his dyeing establishment Friday night.

Soon after the six men were placed in cells Detective Sergeants Lees, Cassassa and Lowenthal went to a tenement house in Rivington Street, where they recovered raw silk valued at $3,000, which, they later said, was part of a burglary on Feb. 11 last in the loft occupied by Kalish & Miller at 131 West Twenty-eighth Street. They arrested Emil Berry, 38 years old, who described himself as a jobber residing at 145 Second Avenue, and took him and the silk to the West Thirtieth Street Station. The detectives said the silk was identified by a member of Kalish & Miller. All the prisoners will be arraigned in the West Side Court this morning.

CONFESSES MURDER OF THREE WOMEN

Kentucky Negro, Condemned to Die Thursday, Tells of Crimes in Three States.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., March 8.—Will Lockett, slayer of Geneva Hardman, 10 years old, and central figure in the riots at Lexington, on Feb. 9, confessed today to the murder of two other persons, the probable murder of a third, and another frustrated attempt. All his victims were women. Each was strangled, except the Hardman child, whose head was crushed with a stone.

Lockett's victims, he told Warden Chilton in the Eddyville Penitentiary, were a white woman whom he attacked and killed at the junction of the Louisville & Nashville and Big Four Railroads at Carmi, Ill., in 1912 or 1913; a negro woman choked, assaulted and left for dead at Governor and Canal Streets, Evansville, Ind., in 1917, and a woman of whose color he is not sure, assaulted and choked to death near Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, in February, 1919, while he was in the army.

Lockett further confessed that his true name was Petrie Kimbrough, and that he was reared near Pembroke, Christian County, Ky. He fled from that locality, he said, in 1905, after he had attempted to assault a white woman on the farm of Ben Miller in Todd County.

entire problem," he said, and added: "The court, from the viewpoint of many lawyers, might at least well have held that Congress had the power to tax a stockholder with respect to profits accruing during the time he held the stock, whether distributed or not. No one, I think, seriously questions the soundness of this view in other and older income tax law countries.

"But the court did not even go this far. The decision not only destroys the last vestige of Congressional power to tax stock dividend transactions, as contained in the present law, but in its wider application sweeps from the statute books Section 200 and other provisions relating to the taxation of 'personal service corporations.' It was naturally to be hoped that the court, keeping at all times within judicial bounds, would undertake to make as practical an application as possible of these tax provisions to our general economic situation. This, of course, cannot be done in every instance by following lines of decisions relating to the controversies on rights among individuals, such as those between life tenants and remainder men.

"The effect of the decision is that any group of individuals may ad libitum form artificial entities and screen themselves behind or within them, and thereby avoid a large amount of their just and fair share of taxation. It is not enough to say that when a stockholder receives a new share of stock in connection with a dividend transaction he can be made to pay a supertax when he sells it at a commercial profit, because he can defeat all supertaxation by holding the stock or avail himself to a large extent of its cash benefits by mortgaging it, and even get a deduction of his interest paid, and therefore live upon its value without selling it, and, of course, without ever paying supertax."

Large war profits would also escape taxation, Representative Hull predicted, and evasions to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars would be possible, he said.

Representative Claude Kitchin, under whose chairmanship the Ways and Means Committee adopted the plan of taxing stock dividends, said that the decision would have the effect of losing many millions of dollars to the Government, as two-thirds of the surtaxes from dividends came from the stock dividend incomes.

"The decision will force up the value of stock from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000," he added, "and will permit the corporations which have been holding billions of undivided profits in their treasuries to pay them out in stock dividends."

SUMMARY OF THE DECISION.

Majority Declares Stock as Dividends Are Not Realized Assets.

WASHINGTON, March 8 (Associated Press).—In the majority decision by the Supreme Court on stock dividends, read by Justice Pitney, Chief Justice White and Justices McKenna, Van Devanter, and McReynolds concurred. Of the four dissenting members of the court Justice Holmes read a brief opinion in which he was joined by Justice Day, while Justice Brandeis delivered a long opinion in which Justice Clark concurred.

In holding that stock distributions are not dividends, on account of no separation of corporate assets being involved, Justice Pitney, in behalf of the majority, declared that stock shares "are nothing except paper certificates" in undistributed assets, are not realized profits, and therefore are not taxable.

The attempt of Congress in the income tax law to tax stock distributions the majority decided to be unconstitutional and not permitted by the Sixteenth, or income tax, Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Stock dividends, the majority held, may be taxed only after stockholders realize upon them by sale, in which case the Government may levy income taxes on such profits.

All four dissenting Justices contended that Congress had power to tax stock dividends, holding that such dividends are "income" the same as if in cash. The Sixteenth Amendment, the minority declared, is broad enough to justify the tax.

Justices Brandeis and Clarke characterized the majority view as "narrow" and "bizarre," and said it would permit many corporations to escape taxation on a large portion of what "is actually their income." Declaration of dividends in cash or in some other medium, the two Justices added, is "wholly a matter of financial management" and therefore, "if a dividend paid in securities represents a distribution of profits Congress may, of course, tax it as income."

The other dissenting opinion expressed the belief that the word "income" in the Sixteenth Amendment should be read in a sense most obvious to the common understanding at the time of its adoption. Most people other than lawyers it was added, supposed when they voted for it that they put at rest the question of direct taxes, including levies on stock dividends.

The Court upheld Federal Court decrees denying the authority of Congress to tax stock dividends and awarding to Myrtle H. Macomber $1,367 which she had paid under protest on 1,100 shares of new stock received in January, 1916, as a stock dividend from the Standard Oil Company of California. The case was one of a series in which J. P. Morgan, Herbert L. Pratt and others had questioned the validity of the act.

Court officials said the case was one of the most important at this term, and that determination of the question involved affects thousands of investors.

Justice Pitney, in his majority opinion, said a stock dividend "is in essence not a dividend, but rather the opposite.

"No part of the assets of the company is separated from the common fund," he said; "nothing is distributed except paper certificates that evidence an antecedent increase in the value of the stockholders' capital, interest resulting from an accumulation of profits by the company, but profits so far absorbed in the business as to render it impracticable to separate them for withdrawal and distribution.

"Far from being a realization of profits of the stockholder, it tends rather to postpone such realization, in that the fund represented by the new stock has been transferred from surplus to capital and no longer is available for actual distribution.

"The essential and controlling fact is that the stockholder has received nothing from the company's assets for his separate use and benefit; on the contrary, every dollar of his original investment, together with whatever accretions and accumulations have resulted from employment of his money and that of the other stockholders in the business of the company, still remains the property of the company and subject to business risks which may result in wiping out the entire investment.

"Having regard to the very truth of the matter, to substance and not to form, he has received nothing that answers the definition of income in the meaning of the Sixteenth Amendment.

"We are clear that not only does a stock dividend really take nothing from the property of the corporation and add nothing to that of the stockholder, but that the antecedent accumulation of profits evidenced thereby, while indicating that the shareholder is the richer because of an increase of his capital, at the same time shows he has not realized or received any income in the transaction.

"It is said that a stockholder may sell the new shares acquired in the stock dividend; and so he may if he can find a buyer. It is equally true that if he does sell, and in doing so realizes a profit, such profit, like any other, is income, and so far as it may have arisen since the Sixteenth Amendment is taxable by Congress without apportionment. The same would be true were he to sell some of his original shares at a profit.

"But if a shareholder sells dividend stock he necessarily disposes of a part of his capital interest, just as if he should sell a part of his old stock, either before or after the dividend. What he retains no longer entitles him to the same proportion of future dividends as before the sale. Yet without selling the shareholder, unless possessed of other resources, has not the wherewithal to pay an income tax upon dividend stock.

"Nothing could more clearly show that to tax a stock dividend is to tax a capital increase and not income than this demonstration that in the nature of things it requires conversion of capital in order to pay the tax."

I. C. C. Must Value Railway Lands.

WASHINGTON, March, 8—The Supreme Court held today that the Interstate Commerce Commission was required to comply with the provisions of the Railroad Valuation act and estimate what would be the present cost of condemning land of carriers. The Court reversed Federal court decrees, dismissing mandamus proceedings brought to compel the commission to receive evidence along that line from the Kansas City Southern Railway Company. The Commission asserted that it was impossible to comply with this provision of the act.

Upholds Award Against Wabash.

WASHINGTON, March 8—Judgments for $51,366,000, awarded by the Federal District Court in Missouri to the Equitable Trust Company of New York against the Wabash Railroad Company, will stand; the Supreme Court today refusing to review the case. The case grew out of foreclosure proceedings brought by the trust company after the railroad failed to meet interest payments in 1912 on a mortgage for $40,000,000.

Minnesota Wins Boundary Suit.

WASHINGTON, March 8—Minnesota today won its suit in the Supreme Court against Wisconsin to determine the boundary between those states along the upper and lower St. Louis bays, and also the St. Louis river. The Court supported the contention of Minnesota that the boundary was the centre line between the shores of the two bays and also the river.

distributions have been almost nil with the Standard companies, but the market price of the securities has held far above the prices that would be warranted by normal dividends, chiefly because of the expectation that stock distributions would be resumed if the Supreme Court ruled that they were not taxable.

One of the outstanding cases of a company which is in a position to declare stock distributions is that of Atlantic Refining. The capital is only $5,000,000, yet the surplus is more than $50,000,000. The price of the stock has been as high as $1,700 a share, and yesterday it gained 100 points in over-the-counter trading on the news of the dividend decision. This stock was only recently listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and is the highest-priced issue on the big board. It has been contended all along that the shares would be either split up or that a stock dividend would be declared, which would amount in either case to a capitalization of surplus.

Other Standard Oil companies mentioned prominently in connection with possible stock dividend distributions or share subdivisions are Standard Oil of New Jersey and Standard of Indiana. The stocks of both companies were strong yesterday, advancing quickly when the true text of the Supreme Court decision made its appearance. Standard of New Jersey is about to list its shares on the New York Stock Exchange, and there have been rumors that the position of the company would more than justify stock dividends. The surplus and reserve at the end of 1918 amounted to more than $463,000,000, as compared with a common capitalization of slightly less than $100,000,000.

The fact has been pointed out with this company that the stocks of other companies held by the Standard of New Jersey are carried at merely a nominal figure on the books, representing in no wise the real equities in the subsidiaries. The Standard of Indiana, which has made big distributions in the past in the way of stock dividends, at the close of last year stood at more than $105,000,000, against a capital of $30,000,000. A number of the other Standard Oil properties stand in a like position.

On the big board Baldwin Locomotive, Republic Iron and Steel, Crucible Steel, Texas Company and several others have profited marketwise by the possibility of stock dividends. In the case of Baldwin there have been persistent rumors that some plan had been determined upon for a distribution of assets, but the stock has been more or less in the "mystery" group. The balance sheets and earnings of the company have been subjected to profound study in commission houses in the endeavor to discover hidden assets. Republic Iron and Steel has also been bought freely on the strength of the big surplus which the company accumulated during the war period, it being the belief that new stock might be issued against this. The poor earnings statement put out by Republic not long ago, however, dampened enthusiasm for these shares, but they made a marked recovery yesterday.

Armour & Co.	..	..	..	400	400

It was pointed out yesterday that the favorable decision by the Supreme Court might pave the way for mergers, about which there was considerable talk last year. Steps were undertaken by a number of men to bring about such mergers, but the stumbling block always encountered was that of taxation, especially where the shares of one company which might go into the merger were selling at a high price as compared with those of another. A merger of steel companies was contemplated during the Summer of 1919, but it came to nought for the reason mentioned.

considered as a speculative possibility in the way of stock dividends.

The advance in prices gathered headway as the afternoon wore along and there was a rousing market in the final hour with many issues touching their high of the day during that period of trading. There were rumors that a large short interest had been trapped in General Motors, and many were of the opinion that it had been impossible entirely to cover commitments in the short afternoon period. Except by the professional element it was considered that there was little buying for long account, the public being largely out of the market as a result of the liquidation that has taken pace in the last few months.

	Final Price.	Low to High.	Net Gain.
Am. Car & Fdy	137½	5⅞	5⅝
Am. Woolen	129	16	10¼
Baldwin	149¼	11	7⅞
Beth. Steel pf	91½	5⅜	4⅞

Rep. Iron & Steel	95¼	8⅜	6⅛

The news bureau tickers which made the error which led to yesterday's hectic market are in no way connected with the New York Stock Exchange, being run by interests entirely apart from the Exchange. The latter does not assume any burden for the news appearing on such tickers. The ticker quotation from the New York Stock Exchange is simply a record of quotations, showing the volume of trading and the prices for transactions, and no news bulletins appear on this ticker.

William H. Remick, President of the Stock Exchange, said last night that the Stock Exchange had no power to investigate the false news incident.

"We have no more authority than any private firm or person," said Mr. Remick, "to investigate a news service. It seems to have been an error due to an attempt to make a hasty interpretation of a Supreme Court decision. I have not heard any charges of fraud. But under any circumstances, it is a matter where we have no jurisdiction in the world."

The Associated Press issued the following statement:

"The service of the Associated Press was accurate in every particular. We find it necessary to make this statement because the Dow-Jones Ticker Company, after correcting its own erroneous statement, declared: 'Not only were the flashes to its customers wrong, but those sent out by newspaper services also were incorrect.'

"As this statement contained the intimation that the Associated Press, in common with other news associations, had made the same error that was made by the Dow-Jones Ticker Service, the Associated Press asked the Dow-Jones Company to make a correction. The Dow-Jones Company specifically refused to do so, and therefore the Associated Press takes this method of presenting the facts."

AMORTIZABLE FRENCH LOAN.

According to instructions received from the French Government through the French Ambassador at Washington the French Consul General will receive, WITHOUT ANY CHARGES, subscriptions for the new 5% AMORTIZABLE FRENCH LOAN.

This loan is redeemable in series by semi-annual drawings in the course of the next 60 years with a premium of 50% or at 1,500 frs. for every bond of 1,000 francs capital par value. Drawings will take place on March 16th and September 16th, 1920. Bonds not yet drawn at any date may be redeemed at 150% of their capital par value at any time at the option of the Government.

The interest is payable May 1st and November 1st. The first coupon will be paid November 1st, 1920; it will amount of 3 f. 50. PRINCIPAL, INTEREST AND PREMIUM OF THIS LOAN ARE EXEMPT FROM ALL FRENCH TAXES, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

The principal attractions of the above loan are: 1—Drawings, semi-annually and annually, respectively at 150%. 2—Possibility of full profit of exchange on: (a) Capital invested, (b) redemption premium, (c) yield.

The Consul General of France suggests every one to consider carefully this issue on account of the above features and urges this investment as a means of improving the rate of exchange, which is of the greatest and most vital importance at this very moment for the development of the commerce and industry of both countries, the high rate of exchange acting as a barrier against the importation of American commodities into France.

On the other hand, as a friend of France, no one will hesitate to help her to rebuild the devastated parts of the country, as the greatest part of this loan will be devoted to that purpose. Moreover, this loan will prove a particularly advantageous investment; at the present rate of exchange 1,000 francs correspond about to $73, and the bond of 1,000 francs, which is redeemable at 1,500 francs, will correspond at the normal rate of exchange (5.20) approximately $290, viz., four times the value of your present subscription.

The amount to be paid is calculated in dollars at the official rate of exchange of the day previous to your subscription; the payments to be made either by check on a New York bank or in U. S. currency.

FRENCH GUNBOATS AID POLES IN FIGHT

REDS HALT IN KARELIA

Stop Advance After Defeat on Condition That Finland Open Negotiations for Peace.

LONDON, March 8.—A Moscow official wireless dispatch says that in the Mozir (government of Minsk) and Ovrutch (government of Volhynia) regions stubborn fighting is in progress.

Near Ptchakov, the dispatch adds, French gunboats have exchanged fire with the Bolshevist land artillery.

General Skobelstein is in command of Finnish and Russian anti-Bolshevist forces which have broken through the Soviet lines west of Repola, in the Murman region, says a dispatch from Abo, Finland, to The London Times.

A week ago, the message says, a dispatch was sent to Moscow by the Finnish Government, stating that the region of Karelia, near Repola, never belonged to Soviet Russia, but wished to come under Finnish protection.

M. Tchitcherin, Bolshevist Minister of Foreign Affairs, said in reply that Bolshevist forces had been ordered not to enter that district. He expressed the opinion that the two Governments should begin peace negotiations, adding: "The sooner this is done the better for Finland."

HELSINGFORS, March 8.—The Bolshevist forces have stopped their advance on the Karelia front on condition that Finland open peace negotiations.

The opinion that the White armies of Finland would be able to withstand any atacks of the Bolshevist armies was expressed yesterday by Herman Montagu Donner, poet and President of the Finland Constitutional League of America. Mr. Donner, who was born in Helsingfors, and is a cousin of the Finnish Minister to Great Britain, returned last Autumn from Finland, where he made an extensive tour under the auspices of the new Finnish Government.

After the newly organized White armies had succeeded in putting down the Red revolt in Finland about a year ago, Mr. Donner said, their morale became even better under expectation of renewed attacks by the Bolsheviki. He said that the present force comprised 50,000 regular troops and 100,000 home guards, all of them veterans with years of war experience. All are well equipped, with the best artillery and rifles.

Although General Mannerheim, who organized the first White army, resigned several months ago, Mr. Donner said the understanding with the new President and members of the Finnish Cabinet was that he would return as Commander in Chief at any time they thought his services were needed in opposing the Bolsheviki. Mr. Donner said his private advices from Finland were that the confidence of the Finnish people in their White army had not waned and that no Red wave would be able to submerge the constitutional Government centred at Helsingfors.

HINDENBURG BOOMERS APPEAL TO SOCIALISTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 7, (via Copenhagen.)—The launching of Hindenburg's candidacy for the Presidency has created the greatest astonishment in all political circles. Though it was generally known that the reactionaries had some such plan in mind, it was not believed that Hindenburg would lend himself to it. However, there can no longer be any doubt that the old Field Marshal has yielded to the persuasions of the plans promoters, the former Prussian Minister, von Loebell, Helfferich and Ludendorff, represented to him that his candidacy would be popular even among the 100,000 Socialists and Independents who served under him.

About a week ago they arranged for a deputation of citizens, "representing all classes," to visit Hindenburg at Hanover, telling him that his country expected him once more to take the lead to save it from final perdition. Nothing was said about a return to a monarchy, and doubtless most of the men forming the deputation honestly believed that Hindenburg would be elected on a nonpartisan ticket. So did Hindenburg himself, and he told the deputation he would accept their nomination if the reception of his candidacy in the public press of all shades warranted the belief that he had the support of the whole nation. He made it quite clear, however, that he would absolutely refuse to run merely as a candidate of the old Conservative or Monarchist Parties.

It is for this reason that the Kreuzzeitung, Deutsche Zeitung, Lokal-Anzeiger, Reventlow's Deutsche Tageszeitung and all the other reactionary papers all of a sudden use quite human language in trying to persuade the Democrats, Centrists, Socialists and even the Communists that although they are republicans they may vote for Hindenburg, since in November, 1918, he accepted the situation created by the revolution and did not desert the army, but stood by until it was safely disbanded. This is their principal argument for Hindenburg's non-partisan candidacy, and they quote Marshal MacMahon, the second President of the French Republic, as a precedent.

A certain American showman is trying to purchase the so-called iron Hindenburg statue, covered with iron nails, which forms a part of the bankrupt estate of a certain military veteran institution. The Government has been asked by the Nationalist members of the National Convention to prevent its exportation.

FRENCH ASK ACTION ON ELEVEN TANKERS

Move to Force Reparations Commission to Distribute Ships Claimed by Standard Oil.

WASHINGTON IS NOTIFIED

France Will Demand Settlement Independent of United States if Reply Is Not Received in 15 Days.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 8.—An incident has arisen which would indicate a disadvantage to American interests in the United States not having a member on Allied Reparations Commission in the assignment to the commission of eleven oil tankers which belonged to a German subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company and which the Standard Oil Company claims as its property. The French Government has asked that the United States be notified and announces that if no reply comes from Washington within fifteen days it will demand that the Reparations Commission act independently of the United States. Former President Poincare is President of the Reparations Commission.

These tankers have long been the subject of litigation. The attitude of the English, French and Italian Governments has been that these ships are German ships, and therefore should be handed over to the Allies for distribution among them. When Frank Polk left Paris it was supposed an agreement had been reached by which these ships would be handed over to the Allies tentatively, and that later the Standard Oil Company would have an opportunity to plead its case before the Reparations Commission.

What the French Government therefore seeks to do is to bring the Standard Oil Company into court so that its claim may be heard. The Reparations Commission will then vote whether these ships are German ships, and should therefore be owned by the Allies, or American ships and therefore the property of the Standard Oil Company.

America, not having ratified the treaty, will have no vote.

Le Matin today devotes a two-column article to an attack on American diplomacy, charging that the Standard Oil Company was permitted unduly to influence the action of the American diplomats.

At a meeting of the Allied Economic Council in Brussels last Summer it was decided to allow these tankers to be separated from the rest of the German shipping, and on the request of the Americans it was agreed that they might be used to take oil to Germany. In August the allied maritime executive at London, in the absence of an American representative, decided to order the Germans to deliver these vessels at once. This order was never delivered, because the Americans protested.

The matter was again considered in Paris and the French consented that these ships make one voyage to America and return, and later be handed over to the Allies, which meant that France would get the most of them under an arrangement between her and England. But when it was proposed that these ships fly the German flag on their trip the French again protested and the matter was held up.

In September it was announced in Paris that the tankers were to be divided among the Allies. But the Americans again objected that the decision had been taken in their absence and that they could not approve it.

On this point Le Matin says:

"The purpose of this system of obstruction by the Americans was to enable the Standard Oil Company to keep these steamers, which belonged to the Allgemeine Deutsche Petroleum Gesellschaft, a German company, but related to the great American company, and thus get them back as American property."

French experts made a report on this claim, regarding which Le Matin says:

"It is recalled that the Standard Oil Company, which has not ceased to intrigue to have these eleven ships assigned to it, to the detriment of France, Italy and Belgium, even after it held seventeen German tank ships which it obtained in 1915 in American ports. More than that, this company offered openly to furnish to the German Government long-term credits for supplying petroleum to Germany, while it would not consent to credits for France, despite the purchases made by us in America."

Le Matin declares that on October 19 the German Government asked that the eleven tankers be given to it and that the Allies refused. Le Matin continues:

"On Oct. 31 our representative at New York cabled that an ultimatum was to be sent to Germany demanding that the ships be handed over immediately, but that the Standard Oil Company obtained at Washington new instructions from Mr. Polk to contest this decision."

Nevertheless, adds Le Matin, the order was sent to Germany to hand over the tankers, and subsequently ten of them were sent to the Firth of Forth, where they have been held idle for four months. Le Matin continues:

"Do you think this finished the affair? No. For the Standard Oil Company, which for long months has prevented these ships leaving Hamburg, succeeded in mobilizing them in the Firth of Forth, where they stayed, while we had to import our oil in foreign ships as best we could, and while we had a dangerous shortage of oil. But that surely is the last thing in the world the Standard Oil Company worries about."

Le Matin then quotes a letter from the new French Minister of Finance to the Reparation Commission which says:

"This question has been settled many times, not only by the Supreme Economic Council but also by the Council of Five, but these decisions have never been put into force because of perpetual difficulties caused by America."

The Minister then says that the condition of France demands that these ships be assigned to her, and adds:

"In the case where a reply to these propositions does not come from Washington after fifteen days the French Government will be obliged to demand that the Reparation Commission go ahead and act."

ASK SPECIAL UNION RULE FOR BOSTON ORCHESTRA

Management Is Willing to Recognize Union on These Terms, the Players Report.

BOSTON, March 8.—A committee of three of the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who have joined a union affiliated with the American Federation of Musicians conferred today with Frederick P. Cabot, President of the Board of Trustees of the orchestra.

They reported back to a union meeting that they had been informed that the Trustees would not object to union affiliation "if the American Federation of Musicians will make special rules for the Boston Symphony Orchestra, granting this organization privileges neither granted to nor asked for by any one of the other sixteen organizations of this kind in this country."

No action was taken on this report. Earlier in the day the thirty-five players who had refused to participate in the regular concert last Saturday night because of the dismissal of Frederic Fradkin, concert master, joined the other members of the orchestra in a rehearsal. They took this action upon the advice of Mr. Fradkin.

BILL LIMITS HEAD ON MURDER ARTICLE

Assemblyman Lord Would Restrict Caption to 36-Point Type, One Column Wide.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—If a bill introduced tonight by Assemblyman Bert Lord of Chenango becomes law it will be illegal to put a headline more than one column in width over a report of a murder or a murder trial. The bill also restricts the size of the type to be used in building the heads.

Violations of the provisions, which are added to the penal law and would be known as Section 1525, would involve $1,000 fine for the publisher, if a corporation, and imprisonment on a misdemeanor charge for every officer of the corporation and for everybody from editor to printer's devil shown to have assisted in any manner in doing the forbidden thing.

> An act to amend the penal law in relation to publications of homicides and homicide trials.
> The people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:
> Section 1. The penal law is hereby amended by inserting therein a new article, to be Article 147, to read as follows:
> ARTICLE 147.
> Section 1525. Publication of homicides and homicide trials.
> It shall be unlawful for any newspaper or other medium through which news or events of the day are publicly disseminated to publish or report the happenings or details of any homicide or the proceedings of any homicide trial in any article or writing containing a caption, heading or headline in type larger than 36 point or in width extending over more than one column.
> Any corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine of not more than $1,000, and every officer, editor or reporter of such corporation, newspaper or medium or other person who shall assist in doing the acts prohibited by this section is guilty of a misdemeanor.
> Section 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

Mr. Lord said tonight that he was impelled by motives of morality in presenting his bill. He declared that the idea of introducing it had originated with himself.

"If I could do it without violating the United States Constitution, I would place severe restrictions on the length and the contents of articles dealing with murders," said Mr. Lord.

"Of course, there should be no obstacle placed in the way of publishing the fact that a person has been murdered, and whom the police has arrested for the crime, but I would bar all gruesome details as tending to impair the morals of those who read such accounts.

"There is no organization, but I trust a strong moral sentiment Up-State behind my bill. I shall press it to final passage, not without hope of favorable action by the Legislature."

McADOO ANSWERS CRITICS.

Defends His Plan for Lower Taxes During the Next Two Years.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, issued a statement yesterday in reply to the criticism of his plan to simplify the present tax system by Representatives Kitchin and Mondell. The statement said:

"I have seen the statements of Mr. Mondell and Mr. Kitchin concerning my suggestions for the amelioration of the tax burden for the next two years. I have much respect for their opinions, but it is absurd to say that a beneficial reduction of taxes through rigid economies in expenditures, postponement of sinking fund for two years and the issue of not exceeding $1,500,000,000 of bonds, as I have suggested, will cause a panic.

"It is more likely to prevent trouble by helping the business situation during a coming period of essential readjustment, when the load should be lightened and enterprise stimulated so that prosperity may be preserved.

"I believe that a safe and sound plan for easing the tax burden, simplifying the present complicated tax law, and distributing the burden of taxation more equitably can be found if we all approach it not in a partisan spirit, but with a genuine desire to deal wisely with a very serious problem which should be taken up immediately.

"For six years that I was in the Treasury I became accustomed to the cry of 'panic' from opponents of Treasury policies, or proposals when there was no other way to combat an argument or meet a situation. No panic occurred during those six years."

JERSEY RENT PLAN IMPRESSES MAYOR

SERIOUS STUDY PROMISED

Lawyer Says Brooklyn Landlords Insist on Race Suicide—24 Families Evicted.

Mayor Hylan said yesterday he would take under serious consideration the "Jersey plan" of dealing with rent profiteering submitted to him yesterday by James F. Gannon, Jr., Commissioner of Revenue and Finance of Jersey City.

Mr. Gannon was with the Mayor for an hour and went into the experiences of Jersey City in dealing with rent profiteering. After the conference the Mayor said: "Commissioner Gannon's plan of dealing with rent profiteers has proved very effective in Jersey City and I was deeply interested in the details he very ably laid before me. I feel very grateful toward the Jersey City official for his visit and I shall certainly give his excellent scheme very serious consideration."

Mr. Gannon said: "I was very much impressed with Mayor Hylan's sincerity of purpose. He feels toward the rent profiteer as I do. The entire Jersey City plan, a plan that has brought unscrupulous property owners to time, was laid before Mayor Hylan. He appeared to be very much impressed. The rent profiteers of New York City can be assured of one thing, the Mayor means business and he will act quickly."

Some Brooklyn landlords are encouraging race suicide, according to E. W. Engel, a Brooklyn lawyer, in a new lease with a clause saying the apartment is to be occupied "for dwelling purposes only by father, mother and not more than two children." Mr. Engel believed no court would sustain such a lease. A committee representing thirty-nine families living in a tenement called on him regarding their troubles with the landlord, he said, and he found the thirty-nine families included seven expectant mothers.

City Marshal David Goldberg evicted twenty-four families in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn yesterday. They were members of the Tenants' Union, organized last year. Thirteen families were evicted from 453 Powell Street and eleven from 520 Powell Street. The property is owned by Mrs. Sina Basin of 2,412 Ocean Avenue. Mrs. Fannie Nedoff, one of the evicted tenants, said her rent had been raised from $19 to $27. Most of the families evicted have no shelter. Neighbors took them in temporarily. A crowd of 1,000 witnessed the evictions, but there was no disorder.

Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland will determine what power he possesses as Health Commissioner and member of the Board of Health to stop the eviction of tenants unable to pay high rents. His action followed a letter from State Senator John J. Dunnigan alleging that rent profiteering in the Bronx had resulted in so many evictions as to constitute a menace to public health.

The Commissioner will sit on the bench in the Seventh District Municipal Court, in West 125th Street, today with Justice S. Clinton Crane and listen to the eviction cases. "I want to sit and listen to some of the cases that are daily coming up in the Municipal Courts of the city," said Dr. Copeland, "and find out actual conditions. If I find there is a condition that menaces health then I will act. While this seems to be a proposition that affects the individual rather than the general health, I am going to the limit to stop this gouging of the public."

PLEDGES SOLUTION OF RENT PROBLEMS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—Within the next week Republican Legislature leaders expect to offer the Legislature a solution of the rental and housing problems.

Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet declared tonight the Legislature must not and would not adjourn "until a way has been devised to effectively curb the rent profiteer." He expressed this sentiment in communications to the Chairman of the Assembly Committees on Judiciary, Codes, Cities and Taxation.

In the Senate majority Leader J. Henry Walters made the same declaration, showing that legislative leaders and the Governor are united in an effort to solve the rental problem.

"This Legislature will have lived in vain if it does not do something to aid the rent payers of New York," declared Senator Walters tonight in announcing that the Republicans had given the situation serious consideration and that within the next ten days he, with Speaker Sweet, would be in a position to submit a party bill which would be passed by the Legislature and approved by Governor Smith.

Speaker Sweet, writing to the committee Chairmen, said:

"I desire to call your attention to legislation dealing with the subject of rent profiteering in the City of New York. This is one of the most serious questions confronting us. I appreciate the Constitutional difficulties that arise in dealing with the subject involving the right of contract, but I believe this situation can be overcome by appropriate legislation."

In the senate considerable debate developed over the rent situation. Senator Loring M. Black, Jr., of Brooklyn, declared that unless something was done by May 1 there would be a social revolution in New York City.

Democrats in the Senate, led by Senator Bernard Downing, joined in the debate and asked that something definite be done to alleviate the situation, particularly in New York City.

The Democratic minorities in both houses have held a series of conferences in an effort to line up their support for some measure which would effectively meet the entire situation.

ALBANY, March 8 (Associated Press).—A bill introduced in the Legislature tonight by Assemblyman John Damico, Republican, of Queens, is designed to add a new section to the tenement house law so as to limit rentals to 10 per cent. of the actual value of the house and lot on which it stands, over and above necessary and actual expenses.

The paragraph you are now reading is not "justified." That is, it is set up just like typewriting with a "space" of equal width between all of the words. Each line starts all right at the left-hand edge, but ends where it will. Now, typesetting differs from typewriting in that the right-hand edge must be as straight as the left-hand edge. This result is achieved by inserting "spaces" of varying width between the words, and sometimes "letter-spacing" the words themselves. This is called "justification."

OSBORNE AGAIN RESIGNS.

Wants to Quit Navy and Command of Portsmouth Naval Prison.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 8.—Lieutenant Commander Thomas Mott Osborne today announced that he had again forwarded his resignation as commandant of the naval prison here, and from the navy, to Secretary Daniels. Commander Osborne withdrew a previous request for relief pending disposition of charges against his conduct of the prison which Assistant Secretary Roosevelt declared last week after investigation to have been unfounded.

In reciting the record of his two and one-half years' command he said that 6,844 prisoners had passed through the institution, of whom 2,664 were returned to service during the war. The only friction during his administration, he said, developed not from the prisoners but from politicians on the outside.

CITY PIERS REFUSED TO SHIPPING BOARD

Hylan Says It Is Only Pretending to Aid American Shipping.

HULBERT'S ACTION UPHELD

Clearly insinuating that the United States Shipping Board, while pretending to be working in the interest of American shippers, is in reality working with foreign shipping interests, Mayor Hylan yesterday wrote a letter to Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert in which he warmly commended the action of the latter in refusing to revoke certain temporary pier permits in order that they might be acquired by the Shipping Board.

A request for help in procuring additional docking facilities was received recently by Commissioner Hulbert from John Barton Payne, Chairman of the Shipping Board, who pointed out that the Shipping Board was now operating more than 300 ships from this port, where it had an average of 150 tied up daily. Chairman Payne explained further that the Shipping Board's operations here were proving highly expensive, due to the small number of piers it controlled, and that there were evidences of profiteering here in the fixing of berthage charges.

Mayor Hylan, in approving Commissioner Hulbert's reply to Chairman Payne, wrote:

"You properly informed him that he should secure accommodations at the army base piers in South Brooklyn, under the control of the Government, which I understand are being used by the same foreign interests that would have secured the ex-German ships from Mr. Payne if the sale had not been stopped by the court.

"Under no circumstances revoke the pier permits of American shippers for the benefit of anybody who pretends to be working in the interest of American shippers when, in fact, they are sympathizers with foreign shipping interests."

Profiteering Is Charged.

In his letter to Commissioner Hulbert, Chairman Payne asserted that the United States Shipping Board is the largest single shipping operator in the Port of New York.

"Due largely to the fact that the Shipping Board controls no piers in the Port of New York," he wrote, "operations from that port are proving highly expensive, and the board has evidence that profiteering methods are pursued in that port in fixing the berthing charges."

He then asked that Piers 86 and 31, North River, now operated under revokable permits, and other piers that from time to time may become available, be leased to the board.

In reply, Commissioner Hulbert, referring to Chairman Payne's complaint that the Shipping Board had found operations from this port highly expensive because it controlled no piers, said:

"Has it not been possible for the Shipping Board to secure control of or obtain accommodations at the army base piers in South Brooklyn and the Government piers in Hoboken?

"Of course, if the Government is going to operate a Federal Dock Department in New York, it will result in all sorts of confusion and friction, as is especially evidenced by your appeal to this department for accommodation, when we understand that ships of foreign registry are being accommodated at Government piers.

"It would seem to me that all available berthing space under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government should be taken up for the accommodation of its own ships before your board looks to this department to revoke existing permits under which American ship owners are operating.

"However, as I have stated to you on several occasions in Washington, I am not only willing, but anxious to coöperate with the Federal authorities, of which, I think, I have given substantial proof."

Army Controls Ten Piers.

Supplementing the statements in his letter, Commissioner Hulbert pointed out that the army now controlled four piers in South Brooklyn and six in Hoboken. He added:

"The Government took over these piers for army purposes under a war emergency, and that deprived the city of the right to collect taxes. We think that if the Government doesn't require them any longer it ought to turn them back to the municipality.

"But why should the Shipping Board be put to the necessity of appealing to the City of New York to dispossess present tenants while the Government itself has these ten piers, some of which are being utilized to accommodate other than Shipping Board boats, and in some instances, notably at the South Brooklyn piers, vessels flying foreign flags? I expect to appear on Wednesday afternoon before the Transportation Board of the War Department in Washington in relation to this matter."

It was learned from Commissioner Hulbert that the International Mercantile Marine and the Cunard Line had already submitted offers for Pier 86, which is now held under a temporary permit by the Oriental Navigation Company, operating Shipping Board vessels in addition to vessels of its own.

Pier 31 is held by the United States Transport, Import and Export Company, which, Mr. Hulbert explained, was an offshoot of the United States Shipping Company owns Pier 32, just north of ernment ships at Alexandria, Va. This is one of the steamship lines of Charles W. Morse, whose Hudson Navigation Company owns Pier 32, just north of Pier 31. Mr. Hulbert said that the Morse interests were paying $77,000 for Pier 31.

O'CONNELL DEPLORES "SINISTER FEMINISM"

Cardinal Says Growing Weakness of Men Is a Menace—Warns on Extravagant Spending.

BOSTON, March 8.—Growing weakness on the part of the men of the country in developing a sinister feminism, Cardinal O'Connell told a gathering of men at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross last night. Man, as the head of the house, he said, should assert his proper authority in the home.

Failure to do this, the Cardinal asserted, leads to a false feminism, which, unless it is curbed in time, will have disastrous results for humanity.

"The women are becoming maculine, if you please, and the men are becoming effeminate. This is disorder," he said.

Cardinal O'Connell questioned how a father could "look on and see his children, especially the girls, running rampant without any consideration for modesty." Headship of the family, he said, meant that the father should look after the morals of the whole family.

The evil of extravagant expenditure, he predicted, would cause a financial reaction in America to some degree similar to that which has caused Europe's virtual bankruptcy. The Cardinal argued also against what he said was a continual clamor for more pay by workingmen, and advised that they be on their guard against a spirit working underhanded for perpetual strikes with the purpose of destroying organization and industry.

LATECOMERS IN TUGS CATCH THE IMPERATOR

Big Liner Halts in Response to Whistled Appeals—Man Arrested on Gangway.

Just after the departure of the Cunarder Imperator shortly after noon yesterday with 2,015 passengers, two tugboats dashed out into the river after her with two passengers delayed by snowbound trains and two, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hammerstein, who were tardy because of earlier neglect to get passports viséd at the British Consulate. All the tugs caught the vessel.

The last passenger to reach the West Fourteenth Street pier was Lieut. Travers Williams-Taylor, son of Sir Williams-Taylor, manager of the Bank of Montreal who ran up waving two $50 bills and shouting: "The man who puts me on the Imperator gets $100 and the one who makes a good try and loses gets $50." The tugboat Lewis Bulver won the money when the Imperator stopped off the Statue of Liberty in response to whistled appeals.

One passenger, David Sussman, 47 years old of 376 Hooper Street, Brooklyn, was going up the gangway when a detective arrested him on a charge of grand larceny made by Aaron Cohen of Newark, N. J. Detective and prisoner fought until the latter had his coat torn off and Edward Mallen, chief of the company's private police, lent a hand. Cohen alleged that Sussman, at the Hotel McAlpin, got $360 for a promised position as a traveling salesman in Europe which Sussman failed to provide. Magistrate Levine in Jefferson Market Court held Sussman in $2,000 bail for examination today.

Samuel M. Vauclain, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, left to visit Poland, Rumania and Turkey to see what American locomotives could do on their railroads. He expressed a belief that the people in Europe were honest and said he was giving them five years' credit and believed they would pay for what they get.

"We are doomed to grief," Mr. Vauclain continued, "if we lend our money to Europe. If we lend our articles of production to our European friends, we will find prosperity within our midst beyond our present facilities. Our labor will be content and the busybody will have lost his occupation.

"We should keep our capital and our raw materials at home and put our own house in order. We should produce here in America and retain, not only for our people, but for all those who may adopt our country as their own, the advantages of our national inheritance."

Mr. Vauclain occupied the Kaiser suite used by Theodore Roosevelt on his return from attending the wedding in Madrid of his son, Kermit.

Other passengers were Raymond Fosdick, Sir Ernest Glover of the British Ministry of Shipping and Lady Glover, Patrick Francis Murphy, Marquis de Pons, Sir Newton Moore and George N. Nairn, jute merchant, of India.

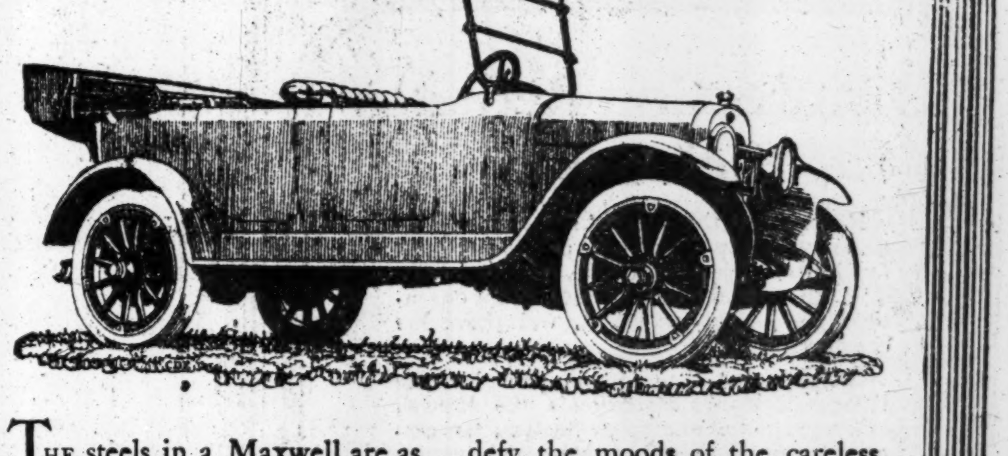
Steels in a Maxwell that Defy Time



THE steels in a Maxwell are as good as the steels in any car built.

For the very mission of a Maxwell is economy of transportation.

One single superfluous pound burdens the car's efficiency.

Therefore it had to be light—but it had to be strong; it had to endure; it had to stand the worst of road shocks.

To make it strong but light in weight meant the very generous use of those rare steels that provide both.

In that way a Maxwell came to be endowed with steels that defy time, defy wear, defy shock, defy the moods of the careless driver.

You will find a Maxwell delivers extended mileage—as long life as any car built, no matter what the price.

And not only long mileage but economic mileage. Because fine steels give little trouble and light weight spins out the mileage on a gallon of gasoline.

Such traits have made friends for the Maxwell in ever growing numbers—nearly 400,000 to date.

Only 100,000 can be built this year. That means 60,000 will have to take another car besides Maxwell—a second-choice car.

MORE PACIFIC BASES WANTED BY DANIELS

THREE REPORTS ON MEDALS

All Agree Morale Has Not Been Hurt and That Enlisted Men Did Not Get Sufficient Recognition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Secretary Daniels, testifying before the House Naval Affairs Committee today, urged the need for more naval bases on the Pacific. He made no explanation for enlarging the facilities other than that more bases are needed to accommodate the fleet, which is now divided equally between the Atlantic and Pacific. Members of the committee declared, however, that this policy was adopted because the military authorities had decided that the next war would be waged in the Pacific.

Secretary Daniels's statement in part said:

"Since a Pacific fleet has been established consisting of half of our modern units, the inadequacy of the Pacific bases, although always realized, has become strikingly apparent. The Pacific fleet alone is much larger than the whole fleet which sailed from San Francisco on its famous trip around the world.

"Adequate docking and repair facilities are absolutely necessary to permit a fleet to maintain itself in efficient condition. There are at the present time but three completed drydocks on the Pacific Coast capable of taking the battleships now building—one at Panama, one at Pearl Harbor and a commercial dock in San Francisco Bay.

"Before I enter upon a discussion of the proposed development of Pacific bases, I desire to invite your attention to the distance some of our possessions extend beyond the continental limits of the United States. Alaska, a country with a wonderful future, depends primarily upon the navy for its defense. This is also true of the Philippines, which are 7,000 miles distant from San Francisco. Regardless of what may be the political future of these islands, this country will always be charged with the moral responsibility of their welfare. Hence, even the most cursory estimate of the situation in the Pacific points to the necessity of bases suitably located to enable our fleet to move at will in the area bounded by our possessions.

Secretary Outlines His Plans.

"From a careful study of the reports and of the general situation, I recommend the immediate development of the bases in the Pacific as follows:

"Pearl Harbor, to be developed as a supply base for the vessels of the fleet with facilities for repair and routine upkeep of these vessels.

"Guam, to be developed to an extent that will permit of its serving as a fueling and repair station for vessels bound to the Philippines. The distance from Honolulu to Manila, 5,500 miles, is too great to permit of certain types of vessels making the voyage without refueling enroute. Attention is invited to the suitability of Guam as a stepping stone for our merchant marine in the Pacific.

"A navy yard on San Francisco Bay should be developed which will permit of the docking and repair of the capital ships now building. On account of the draft of these vessels, it is considered by naval experts that the attempt to deepen the channel to Mare Island sufficiently to utilize that yard for the repair and upkeep of the great dreadnoughts and battle cruisers is not justified. Mare Island, which made the world's record in destroyer construction during the World War, will always be taxed to the limit as a repair and supply yard for cruisers, destroyers, submarine and auxiliary craft, and for new construction. It will be needed, and there will be more ships there in the future than heretofore, for though the new navy yard on deeper waters is needed for the largest type of ships, even with that yard in operation there will still be less facilities than will be needed for the larger and expanding navy.

"The navy yard at Bremerton should be enlarged to permit of its caring for a large quota of the fleet. This yard should become one of the main repair and docking yards for capital ships.

Want Base for Manoeuvres.

"The principal drill ground for the Pacific Fleet will be off the coast of Southern California. To enable it to carry out such drills and manoeuvres, a base in the vicinity is necessary. San Diego is admirably located for such a base and the navy has been given the land by the city of San Diego. At San Pedro a submarine base is now in existence and its continuance and development is recommended.

"The development of all these bases is necessary for the maintenance of our fleet in the Pacific and the sums necessary to authorize their early construction are urgently recommended to the committee.

"In the course of time a fueling and supply base in Alaska will be necessary, but at the present time the question of a suitable location has not been thoroughly studied, and until this has been done I will not make any specific recommendation.

"Criticism may justly be offered if the number of naval bases is unduly increased, especially if no sound strategic considerations govern the increase; but, given an area as large as the Pacific, in which naval operations must be conducted, it becomes essential that there shall be adequate repair and upkeep facilities in more than one or two ports, in order that such operations may not be rendered futile, especially when our obligations in respect to the Philippines are considered.

"The World War taught us that we needed every navy yard on the Atlantic Coast. They more than paid for themselves when the emergency made a greater call upon docking, repair and building facilities than could be afforded in Government and private yards. This was so true that, because the navy not only utilized all its own plants, but 70 per cent. of the plants of private shipbuilding establishments, the Shipping Board was compelled under the stress of war to create facilities at heavy expense.

"The Pacific fleet as it now exists has a tonnage of over 5,000,000, and with the mighty capital ships under construction within a few years facilities much greater than I am now recommending will be needed."

PRESIDENT OUT DRIVING IN OPEN AUTOMOBILE

Stays Out an Hour and Is Described as Looking "the Picture of Health."

WASHINGTON, March 8.—President Wilson went riding today in an open automobile. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Rear-Admiral Grayson and Wilmer Bolling, Mrs. Wilson's brother, and was out just an hour, driving through Rock Creek Park. A bright sun was shining, but some of the snow from last week's blizzard was still on the ground and a sharp wind was blowing.

The President wore a heavy cloth overcoat and a golf cap. He looked the picture of health. It was his second public appearance since he took to his bed last October after his western tour, but on his first ride last Wednesday he used a closed car.

The police again prohibited photographers from taking pictures of the President.

Cost Keeping Instruction in the Truck Owners' Conference—a semi-formal association of Motor Truck Users. Its "National Standard Truck Cost System" is the first complete and impartial method for determining what each truck actually costs per ton-mile of transportation. Not only wages, gasoline, oil and tires—but repairs and replacements on his assembled trucks as compared with a truck built from the ground up as a homogeneous Engineering unit

Who Pays for High Costs

DR. LOUIS PASTEUR started to help the vine-growers of France. He ended by raising the health standards of the whole civilized world.

Every positive forward step brings benefits no man can foresee.

The merchant, the industrial man, starts to keep running costs on his trucks. Before he gets through he has searching figures on which trucks to keep and which to scrap—and what make of truck to put his money on in the future.

Here are facts summarized from the National Standard Truck Cost System as kept for over 1700 Packard Trucks during 1919.

Efficiency in operation secured through the help of the National Standard System has resulted in an average gasoline saving of 10 per cent.

Many unusually low records for gasoline have been scored.

The National Standard System used in connection with Packard Trucks has shown it possible to reduce cost per ton mile.

90% of truck owners who have used the System for a year or more and have compared the Packard with other trucks are standardizing on Packards.

To get the full meaning of a record you must scrutinize the facts behind it—and the Organization that made the facts possible.

The Packard Organization has attained a precision in machine finish unknown elsewhere. It has achieved production of top-grade parts in quantity.

It has shown the world a radical advance in the improvement of metals by heat-treating.

Even the Packard owner often finds it startling to see his advantages put down in cold figures—though he has known all about it in practice ever since 1906.

THE STOCK DIVIDEND DECISION.

The Supreme Court decides, as was expected, that stock dividends are not taxable as income merely because Congress enacted that they were income. The law remains as it was before Congress undertook to annul the decision of the court to the same effect under the law of 1913. Both decisions turn on the distinction between capital and income, and they will apply to future statutes as well as to those of 1916 and 1913. Congress assumed that the earlier decision was not on principle, but on the words of the earlier statute, and thought to alter the principle by altering the words of the law. That cannot be done any better hereafter than heretofore, any more than legislation can make black white. Income is not capital, and capital is not income. Neither can be taxed as the other, although both can be taxed by suitable laws. The two decisions are so alike in reasoning that it is unnecessary to review at length the one just rendered. One additional point, or different presentation of the same point, will suffice. The court agrees that a stock dividend may show that the stockholder's capital is more valuable, but asks where the stockholder can get the means of paying his income tax except from his stock dividend, that is to say by lessening his capital by sale of the stock:

> If a shareholder sells dividend stock he necessarily disposes of a part of his capital interest, just as if he should sell a part of his old stock, either before or after the dividend. What he retains no longer entitles him to the same proportion of future dividends as before the sale. Yet, without selling, the shareholder, unless possessed of other resources, has not the wherewithal to pay an income tax upon dividend stock.
> Nothing could more clearly show that to tax a stock dividend is to tax a capital increase and not an income than this demonstration that in the nature of things it requires conversion of capital in order to pay the tax.

Careful reading of the dissenting opinions is necessary before it can definitely be said that the two decisions are as alike as the majority opinions indicate. There are two dissenting opinions, and one of them is by Justice HOLMES, who rendered the opinion of the court in the earlier case. It is not yet possible to say how he explains his differing opinions, or reconciles them. In his earlier opinion he said that the 1913 case turned upon the construction of the Constitution, and not on the language of the statute. There are now two statutes, but only one Constitution, and there would seem to be an indication that the minority of the court has found some reason to take the position of Congress which the majority condemns. There can be no turning of capital into income by statutory definition that they are the same, but there are many sorts of dividends not paid in cash, and there is plenty of opportunity to inquire what is a stock dividend, or even to ask whether the source of the dividend alters its character as a stock dividend.

Thus Swift & Co. paid a $25,000,000 stock dividend, not out of earnings, but out of surplus arising from a reappraisal of assets by independent accounting. This dividend has been challenged by the Treasury, and there are other cases which require distinguishing. Some railways have declared dividends in Liberty bonds or shares of other railways. They are not stock dividends in the meaning of the two decisions under discussion, but are they within the reasoning which declares why stock dividends are not taxable? Has there been in such cases such a separation of income from capital and such a distribution of assets as to justify a tax? Justification for leaving such questions to the court may be found in the decision published today, sustaining the lower court. The lower court said that the case was brought on the theory that the Supreme Court made an error in the decision of 1913, and the lower court would leave the responsibility of correcting that error, if any, to the Supreme Court itself. Now no error is found, but it does not follow that there may not hereafter be surprises in the stock dividend litigation.

As the matter stands there is no such rebuke to the Treasury for its persistence in pursuing the income tax payer to his last ditch as there is to Congress for the same sort of stubbornness. A decision under the 1913 statute could hardly bind the Treasury against proceeding under the explicit language of the statutes of 1916 and 1917. But there is now a pretty kettle of fish to cook. There are of course millions of taxes to be refunded, but that may not let the Treasury out. Some have sold their stock dividends to pay their tax, and may have incurred a loss for which they may think the Treasury should be held. The Treasury may, perhaps, recoup by re-examining the accounts when the tax is refunded, and asking for a profits tax instead of an income tax. There is a multiplicity of cases arising under the dates when stock dividends were earned, or declared, or realized by sale of the stock dividends, and into that morass the boldest will not venture without the guidance of the court. Guidance by the Treasury or Congress is discredited as to two statutes, and there are more existing and to be enacted.

GREAT UNKNOWNS IN THE PRIMARIES.

History begins to repeat itself under the primary laws. "Under the operation of the South Dakota primary "law," says The Kansas City Star, "the delegates to the Republican Convention at Chicago will be compelled "to vote for GEORGE WASHINGTON "WEBSTER for the nomination of Vice "President, a candidate of that name "being the only one to file his petition "in the State." Mr. WEBSTER appears to be unknown in politics. There is, indeed, a very distinguished Chicago physician, Dr. GEORGE WASHINGTON WEBSTER, who happens to be a Republican. Is it possible that some of his friends are playing a little joke on him in South Dakota? Or has he a namesake, who escaped renown until this South Dakota petition?

On the list of candidates certified to be placed on the Michigan primary ballot for President is the name of Mr. WILLIAM GERALD SIMPSON of Michigan, doubtless a gentleman known to all who know him among the Wolverines, but not yet shining with full radiance outside of his State. In 1916 Mr. ROBERT G. ROSS, an amiable livery stable keeper of Lexington, Neb., was a candidate for the nomination for President in both the Democratic and the Republican primaries of that State. He got a vote of from 15,000 to 20,000, divided about equally between the two parties. Most of the people who voted for him seem not to have known or cared who he was. About a tenth of the Republican and Democratic voters of Nebraska regarded the Presidential primaries as a joke. Moreover, in that year, Mr. HENRY FORD lost the Republican delegation from Nebraska to Senator CUMMINS by a scanty margin. In several other States there was evidence of a disposition to regard the primary as a jest, to name men for President as jocosely as candidates for the obsolete posts of Fence Viewer or Poundkeeper used to be nominated in a New England town meeting.

Are the wags, the triflers, the mystifiers to be as active in the primaries of 1920 as they were in those of 1916?

NAVAL EXPANSION THE ALTERNATIVE.

When he appeared before the House Naval Affairs Committee on Saturday Secretary DANIELS said that the question for Congress to decide was whether the United States should complete the three years' program of construction and add units needed by the navy, such as more light cruisers and submarines, or expand the fleet until this country would have nothing to fear from any other sea power. If the United States failed to ratify the Peace Treaty and accept the covenant of the League of Nations, which, as planned, was to prevent war on a large and costly scale and lead to an era of peaceful industry, each nation would have to look to its own defenses and depend upon its resources.

It was not necessary for the Secretary of the Navy to tell his countrymen that the alternative to staying out of the League of Nations would be naval expansion. Nothing could be more obvious, although Senators, besides those composing the so-called Battalion of Death, have been blind to the isolated and detached position that the United States would occupy if the Treaty and covenant were rejected. Furthermore, supporters of the covenant realize that it would be a rope of sand for the late allies of the United States if this country refused to join them in the peace compact. Competition in armaments would begin all over again, however the European nations and Japan might dedicate themselves to economy by lip service. Great Britain, which is expanding her merchant fleet to obtain the lion's share of the trade of the world, would follow her traditional policy of keeping up her navy with the ingenuity in construction for which she is justly famous. Economy in naval armaments would fly out of the window as profits in trade increased.

It is true that Great Britain has reduced the number of her warships in commission, but she continues to build great fighting dreadnoughts like the Hood and the Renown, always striving to keep in the van of invention and military prowess. Her navy is still the most powerful on the seas, counting her dreadnoughts in reserve, which could be mobilized on call. Japan's program is not as ambitious as the uncompleted three years' program of the United States, but Japan is always planning to be as strong in the Pacific as her resources permit. The Japanese are an intensely practical people. Only if the United States were to ratify the Peace Treaty and agree to join the League of Nations would Great Britain and Japan practice the economy in naval expenditure they preach with mental reservations. Nor are they to be blamed for not abandoning naval expansion altogether when almost a year has elapsed since the document of the Peace Treaty was finished and the United States still remains obstructive and apparently indifferent.

Never had a nation a more golden opportunity to bestow the boon of peace upon the world than has come to the United States because of its moral influence and its vast resources. It has but to approve of the covenant and stand forth as the most powerful champion of a new era of humanity, enlightenment and progress, and rumors of war will be instantly laid. From East to West the nations would breathe freely and the federation of the world for peace would no longer be a dream. Every thoughtful American knows as well as Secretary DANIELS that, the covenant once and forever rejected by the United States, it will fall to pieces and the old order of suspicion, distrust and preparation for the wars that cannot be averted will return. The first American line of defense, the navy, will have to be made so strong that not only no enemy but no combination of hostile Powers will be feared.

SECRET TREATIES.

The President's observations on the Treaty of London, in his note on the Adriatic question dispatched on March 4 and made public yesterday, lay down an excellent canon of conduct to which our Government has on the whole, though with one or two exceptions, been faithful. It was our definite policy in the Peace Conference, he says, not to be bound by secret treaties whose existence was not previously known to us. We were willing to approve them only when they seemed intrinsically just. If objection can be made to this reasoning, it is only on the ground that we ought to have made sure that the Allies told us of all the secret treaties when we went into the war, and that is something easier said than done. Secret treaties have been coming up so frequently since the armistice that we cannot yet be sure that we have been confronted with the last of them.

And it may well be, too, that in those days all Governments were more concerned as to how they were going to win the war than how they would dispose of the fruits of victory. In the Spring and early Summer of 1917 the first allied missions were in this country, headed by men of authority. That was the time to insist on full information. But that was also the time when we were beginning to realize that the Allies were in a bad way and we were not yet sure how well we could make war. It was not a time to start disputes over the terms of treaties whose eventual fulfillment must have seemed very doubtful.

As for the reasons of those who made the treaties for not communicating their substance to our Government, they were not very commendable on the most charitable interpretation. So long as we were being called upon for "unlimited assistance and untold treasure," in the President's phrase, we had a right to know what our partners expected to get out of victory. And yet it seems that until lately our Government had received no official information as to the content of the Treaty of London. Practically all its terms, to be sure, had been unofficially known to the world ever since the Bolsheviki published it in January, 1918, and a good deal of it had been shrewdly suspected before. As the President observes, the "exigencies of military strategy" alleged by the allied Premiers were no reason whatever for refraining from confidential communication of the treaty to our Government.

The real reason why the treaty was not made public was that it assigned to Italy territories which the Serbs, an allied nation, regarded as belonging to their own people and properly to be assigned to them if they could be separated from Austria. A good many Jugoslav troops in the Austro-Hungarian armies had already refused to fight against the Serbs and Russians, and the Allies knew that if the terms of this treaty were made public this large racial group in the Dual Monarchy could be counted on to fight hard on the Italian front to escape a new and no more welcome foreign ruler. And, in fact, the purpose of secrecy was defeated by the fact that the substance of the treaty was soon widely suspected, so that the Croats fought desperately on the Isonzo when they surrendered in large numbers on the San.

The President shows no determination to insist on the unworkable idea of the buffer State and hopes that the Italians and Jugoslavs can settle the boundary between themselves. But he opposes the use of British and French influence to coerce the Jugoslavs into accepting an unwelcome settlement, insisting on the principles of the December agreement as those which in general must govern the arrangement finally made. Against this the Italians will probably hold out, and it becomes a contest in waiting power. Somebody will have to yield eventually, and it is to be hoped that direct discussions between the two interested parties will find the way to agreement before the strain has continued much longer.

THE NEW YORK UNIVERSITY ENDOWMENT FUND.

Not until 1931 will the University of New York, or rather its oldest department, the College, be a hundred years old. The stately home of the College of Arts and Pure Science and the School of Applied Science on University Heights is one of the beauties and "show places" of the town, and, therefore, better known, perhaps, to strangers than to the incurious urban race. The Medical College at Bellevue Hospital, the Law School, now nearing its nineties, and the School of Commerce and the School of Pedagogy at Washington Square, the original site of the university; the Wall Street division of the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, in Trinity School Building, are well separated—the university is divided into four parts, scattered, like Harvard, but in a much more densely populated region, and the New Yorkers have less local patriotism, less of "the piety of the native place" than the "old" Bostonians.

How many New Yorkers know that New York University is educating one-quarter of all the young women and young men of the city now receiving higher education? More and more it is attracting students from outside, yet it still remains pre-eminently New York's own, sharing that distinction in various degrees with Columbia and the College of the City of New York. How many New Yorkers are aware that New York University, with a student population of about 8,600, has an endowment of less than $2,000,000, just about the same as that of Swarthmore, with 800 students? Harvard, with less than 4,500 students, has an endowment, now growing nobly by the generous gratitude of its friends and graduates, of more than $28,000,000. Columbia has less than 2,000 more students than New York and over $31,000,000 more endowment.

Last Fall the university was forced to exclude from its privileges more than five hundred persons eager to enjoy them. It didn't have the room, the equipment, the teachers necessary. It is doing splendid and fruitful work, but on a ridiculously meagre capital. It asks, and it deserves, a great addition to that capital. It wants immediately $6,450,000; and here let it be said that the tuition fees, which have been raised, must climb no higher. This is a genuinely democratic university, more than half of whose students pay their own tuition fees with the money they earn. Something like two millions will be used to increase the salaries of the Faculty. At present a professor, however distinguished, gets less than an engineer on a freight or passenger engine of the great railroad systems. For sorely needed and additional buildings and equipment $1,800,000 is to be spent, and two university schools are to occupy the whole of that immense Washington Square structure where now they are restricted to three floors.

The sum of $2,650,000 will be used as a general endowment. A brood of deficits, present and to come, an honest and inevitable product of the habit of all universities to give so much more than they get, will be wiped out. The money is sure to be well used. The graduates and friends of the university, the friends of higher education in New York, should raise this $6,000,000 odd without much trouble. Appetite comes with eating; and one good drive deserves another.

Not so many years ago the first painful impression received by the traveler returning from Europe was of the bad manners of guards and conductors. Instead of easy politeness he found a rude and strident assertion of equality. At the final analysis, of course, this was a confession of inequality, for no one is at pains to assert the thing that is generally conceded. But times have changed. Among those who have returned from the war no remark has been more frequent than that public manners have noticeably improved. And now the President of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company announces that if it were not for "the snob, "the nagger and the constitutional "grouch" who are occasionally encountered among passengers the courtesy record of the conductors "would automatically go to 100 per cent."

This is a matter in which Mr. RITCHIE is, in the nature of things, an optimist; yet at the worst his percentages cannot be so many points out. One reason for the change is suggested by the occasion of his remarks. He is giving prizes for proposals from the public as to improving the service. Village wits have come forward with pleas for a barber shop, a community powder puff and a periscope to enable the conductor to keep an eye upon conduct on the roof; but for the most part the suggestions are sensible and will doubtless be adopted—express service, commutation tickets, route signs distinguishable by their colors and such like. Service companies generally have realized that the comfort and convenience of their patrons is an asset well worth intelligent thought and pains.

In some measure the change is doubtless due to the war. Two millions of our young men have undergone discipline in service and have come to realize that, far from being "undemocratic," fidelity to the job in hand and a respectful touch-and-go relationship with all comers are the very essence of a truly republican spirit. The same priceless lesson has come to other millions of war workers at home. As a nation we have very largely learned that we are all human and that such differences as appear between man and man are, oftener than not, founded upon genuine differences of ability and character. When any real work is doing, the officer gains in his respect for the private, the private for the officer. No one is so odious to all hands as "the snob, the nagger and the grouch."

This is indeed the ancient democratic spirit, as clearly recognized in the prairie corner grocery as in the New England town meeting. Even before the war it was recognized by the more truly American among us. On the old Broadway cable car—as long ago as that—a lady who was reading a book held a rose in one hand and her fare in the other. When the conductor came she absently presented the rose. "This would suit me perfectly," he said, "but I'm "afraid it would not satisfy the com-"pany." Any European would have resented a fancied insolence; but, being as truly American as the conductor, the lady understood and told the story with native relish.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Their Skill Remains to be Proved. "Pending bills at Albany," writes one of THE TIMES correspondents, "that aim to relieve part of this pressing [rent] problem should receive the unqualified support of the entire public, press and pulpit." That is a large statement, and it is made in the tone of him who assumes the impossibility of contradiction that goes with a self-evident truth.

And impossible, certainly, is it to deny that the problem is "pressing." It is that and more, and its solution would receive from public, press and pulpit an approval that would be enthusiastic as well as unqualified. But to aim at the attainment of a desirable end is not the same thing as attaining it, and, as regards some of the Albany marksmen, doubt of their skill prevents present support of their efforts.

Most of their bills propose the imposing on landlords and on real property of restrictions without legal precedent and of obvious economic unsoundness. They would ruin or at any rate make unhappy the owners of rentable houses, and there would be in that a certain satisfaction for those who are or believe themselves to be the victims of profiteering in its most obnoxious form—that of taking ruthless advantage of a fellow-man's desperate necessities. But revenge is a poor substitute for the discovery or invention of a remedy for cruel ills, and what public, press and pulpit really want is not so much, or not at all, the harrying of landlords as a restoration of the conditions when everybody could find a place to live at a reasonable rent.

When somebody introduces at Albany a bill the enactment of which justifies hope as to its efficacy, it will promptly get all the support it needs.

Whence Cure Really Must Come. Experience teaches as clearly as that overrated and expensive teacher teaches anything that the solving of the rent problem will not be done at Albany. Legislation cannot increase the number of houses or decrease a disproportion between the number of those who seek and of those who offer roof-covered space at prices the generality can afford to pay. That must be effected in another way, and in a way, unfortunately, sure to take more time than seems tolerable to people who are looking to Albany—or Jersey City—for a quick and certain cure of their troubles.

The rent situation is not a thing by itself, but a part of a larger, a world-wide, situation. It will be remedied, fundamentally, not by helping or compelling the construction of new houses, but by a reduction of expenditure and an increase of production, everywhere and by everybody. That being true, "unqualified support" is deserved only by the good intentions of those who are introducing drastic and punitive bills at Albany; their proposals awaken more disquietude than expectation.

Take, for instance, the suggestion that newly built housing be exempted from taxation for two years. That has a plausible sound, but its attractiveness diminishes when one stops to think, for such an exemption would not decrease by a penny the amount of taxes that somebody would have to pay, and the somebody, for the most part, would be the owners of buildings already in existence. Naturally, they would pass the increment on to their tenants, and so, the more things were changed, the more would they remain the same—or worse.

This is typical of the other bills, and, while it would be rash as well as unpopular to say that there is no good in any of them, it is not as rash as it is unpopular to say that even the best of them is not as promising of help as a bill would have to be to win the unqualified support of all.

This Appeal Must Be Answered. Many as are the demands for money that mark these days, there must be enough of it still available and ungiven to meet the appeal of the Maternity Centre Association. The amount it asks—$100,000—for this year's work is so small in comparison with most of those requested, and the use to which it will be put is so beneficent, that a refusal by generous New York is very nearly unthinkable.

The work of the association is revealed by its name, and it has proved its efficiency in its chosen field by giving to great numbers of poor women exactly the sort of help they need at the time when they need help most. Sometimes the help takes the form of financial assistance, so welcome at a time when earning power is reduced or lost; sometimes it is instruction in the practicalities of hygiene and sanitation; oftenest it is the supplying of medical and nursing care that means the saving of not one life, but of two, the removal of exaggerated apprehensions, and the making endurable of an experience which without such care is a hardship and hazard of the most serious sort.

The Maternity Centre Association serves more than the individual women to whom its agents go in the time of need and fear. By serving them it serves the whole city. To heed and answer its appeal is therefore a duty as well as a privilege—an economy and a gain.

The headquarters of the Maternity Centre Association are at 18 West Thirty-fourth Street, and it is to that address that checks, made out to Mrs. ARTHUR SCOTT BURDEN, should be sent.

SENATOR WADSWORTH.

Mrs. Whitehouse Says Suffragists Want an Explanation from Him.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When I saw in your paper the other day that Senator Wadsworth said he no longer opposed woman suffrage I had to rub my eyes and look again. I thought: "Surely, here is something wrong. How can it be that Senator Wadsworth, whose consistency in opposing suffrage was the one thing in his opposition which even his enemies had to admire, is no longer consistent?"

Look at his record. He opposed the indorsement of suffrage in every Republican State Convention, or conference, of which he was a member. He opposed the adoption of the woman suffrage amendment in the New York State referendum of 1915. He opposed it again in the New York State referendum of 1917. He voted against the Federal woman suffrage amendment in 1918, when his vote alone prevented the passage of the measure, and he did this in spite of resolutions from his political party and the Legislature of his State asking his support; in spite also of the overwhelming sentiment in favor of suffrage which the electorate of his own State had expressed at the polls in 1917. He voted against the Federal amendment again in the Senate in 1919, when, however, his opposition was no longer effective to delay or defeat the measure.

Yes, Senator Wadsworth has been a determined and consistent opponent of woman suffrage. His party knew, the United States Senate knew, his constituents knew, that he was an irreconcilable. What has brought about so sudden a change? Why is it that the Senator is no longer opposed?

In spite of all he has been able to do, thirty-three States have already ratified the Federal woman suffrage amendment, and ratification by the three additional States necessary for adoption is assured. Women will vote in the next Presidential election, and the women of New York State will vote, also, in the Senatorial election of next November. Senator Wadsworth is a candidate for re-election. The New York State League of Women Voters has determined to oppose Senator Wadsworth's re-election, on the ground that he has failed to represent in the Senate the electorate of his State—that, in fact, his opposition to woman suffrage was based on principles so strong that they led him to defy the principle of representative government.

The opposition to the Senator of this powerful non-partisan organization is not to be despised. Senator Wadsworth must have the votes of women as well as of men if his campaign for re-election is to succeed.

The women voters are asking themselves if his eleventh-hour conversion is a bid for those votes which he now needs and which he tried to the very last to deny to women. They must have a clear explanation, I think, from the Senator before they can see anything in his sudden change but a sacrifice of his strongest principles to expediency. VIRA B. WHITEHOUSE.

Where They Know How.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A letter just received from Montreal says: "What a time you in New York have had with snowstorms! It is the same up here, but we are well able to cope with it. In our very worst blizzard the car service and traffic were never disorganized one hour, night or day. And it was a terrific one. Mountains of snow were piled everywhere. But now a week later we are as tidy as ever, and even the snow piles are cleaned off into the sewers.

Why cannot New York do likewise?
MARGARET HILLSDALE.
New York, March 5, 1920.

Why Were They Enemies?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following is the conclusion of your editorial article in this morning's issue, "Hungary's Turn": "Why should we reward those who fought against us merely because they demand it, and punish those who fought for us merely because they did us a service!"

Allow me to congratulate you for this just sentence, but may I ask you why the same sentence has not been applied to the Adriatic dispute, instead of taking the part of the Croatians and Slovenes, the heroes of the Austrian army and navy who fought us and the Allies to the bitter end—worse enemies than the Hungarians?

Our Policy on Alliances.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In today's TIMES the caption given to the otherwise correct report of my address before the Institute of Arts and Sciences at Columbia University asserts that the United States "made many foreign alliances." In point of fact, of course, it has made but one—that with France in 1778—as a perusal of my remarks will show. What I sought to point out was that on several occasions early American statesmen were prepared to make diplomatic arrangements quite inconsistent with an inflexible policy of isolation, should the interests of the United States at the time have required them. A VERNAL DAY.

I know at heart that there will come a day
In Springtime, when the old alluring call
Will thrill my ears, and I shall fling the thrall
Of care and Winter weariness away—
The call of wandering, and I shall stray
By shady slopes where trilliums grow tall,
And pause beside a lyric waterfall
That tosses down the silver of its spray.

And I shall sense the redolence of earth,
The fragrant breath of every growing thing,
Whether it be or fern or brier or vine;
And though I solve no mysteries of birth,
Yet shall I feel that something is divine

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

MESDAG ART SALE BEGINS.

Pictures from Dutch Artist's Collection Bring $6,217.

There began at the American Art Galleries last evening the dispersal of the private collection and studio furnishings of the late Dutch artist, Hendrik Willem Mesdag, brought to this country as, at the time of his death, Holland was not, owing to the war, able to acquire them as had been the artist's wish. Sketch books of Mesdag, sketches by Mauve, etchings by Millet with many water colors by the modern Dutch artists, including work by Mme. Mesdag, were in last night's sale.

The highest price was given for No. 66, a Willem Maris, "Cow Drinking," which went to Seaman, agent, for $220. A wash drawing by Johannes Bosboom, No. 31, "A Cathedral Interior," went to Mrs. James Harden for $140; Millet's "The Gleaners," a painter etching, No. 53, went to R. Trumbull for $160; Josef Israels's "In a Fisherman's Home," No. 68, an aquarelle, went to Jacob Schmitt for $190. A charming water color, "A Rainy Day," by Gaston Den Duyts, No. 127, was bought by B. Arkell for $145, and No. 130, one of Mesdag's own water colors, "Oncoming Fishermen," went to Seaman, agent, for $160.

The returns were $6,217. The sale will be continued this evening at the American Art Galleries, to be concluded on Wednesday evening, when the larger and more important paintings and fine old tapestries, Mesdag's studio hangings, will be sold at the Plaza Hotel.

MEZZOTINT SOLD FOR $250.

Elizabeth Gulland's Work Leads Harris Sale—Total, $2,388.

In a wide and varied collection of prints, including etchings, engravings and lithographs with colored caricatures and sporting prints, sold by order of Frederick H. Evans, of London, and from the estate of the late Henry O. Harris, at the Anderson Galleries last evening, the highest price was given for a mezzotint in colors, after Sir Henry Raeburn, by Elizabeth Gulland, which went to A. C. Dickens for $250. A rare and fine print, William Blake's "Chaucer's Canterbury Pilgrims," engraved and published by Blake in 1810, went to W. M. Leybrand for $155; Arlent Edwards's colored mezzotint, "Lady Mulgrave," after Gainsborough, went to E. Gotschalk for $65, and another of the Edwards mezzotints, "The Pink Boy," after Gainsborough's famous picture of "Master Nichols," went to F. Meder for $150.

The returns were $2,388. The sale will be concluded to-night.

Advocates and Opponents of Regulation Before House Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Supporters of legislation for regulation of the packing industry concluded presentation of their testimony before the House Agriculture Committee today, and opponents began giving of their side.

Howard Leonard, President of the Illinois Agriculture Association, said enactment of the legislation was desired to end "agitation that has been detrimental to all divisions of the livestock producing and marketing industry."

Resolutions adopted by the Farmers' National Council calling for supervision of packers by a commission and for Government ownership of branch houses and marketing facilities were presented by George P. Hampton, managing director of the council.

I. C. Thurman, Vice President of the Oklahoma Livestock Producers' Association, declared Federal regulation of the packers was unnecessary and likely to be harmful to both producers and consumers.

"If you had let the packers continue competing with wholesale grocers you would have had cheaper foods for consumers," he said.

Approval of the packer divorcement decree was expressed to Attorney General Palmer today by a delegation of farm organization officials.

SEEKS FEDERAL PROBATION.

National Association Urges Bill Providing System for U. S. Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—A committee representing the National Probation Association and others interested in a bill to provide for the use of the probation system in the Federal courts, appeared before the Attorney General today. They supported the bill introduced by Representative Lonergan, which provides that United States District Courts may suspend sentence and place convicted offenders under the supervision of probation officers.

Unlike the judges of State courts in practically all the States, as well as the judges of the District of Columbia, the United States District Court judges have no legal power to suspend sentence or place an offender under probation. This means that young boys convicted of all sorts of offenses, like stealing from the mails or post offices or from freight cars in interstate commerce, for which probation is successfully used in all State courts, have to be sentenced and serve terms in Federal prisons or reformatories.

PRESBYTERY HERE PRAYS.

No Business Is Transacted at an Unusual Session.

The Presbytery of New York held a meeting which was an innovation yesterday afternoon in the Fort George Presbyterian Church, 186th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue. No business was transacted, but instead the time was spent in prayer.

The Rev. Dr. A. Edwin Keigwin presided. Prayers were offered for his father, the Rev. Dr. Algert N. Keigwin, who is gravely ill. There were also prayers for the Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, who is ill at the parsonage, West End Avenue and Ninety-first Street.

DISCUSS INTERCHURCH PLAN

Religious Education Department Holds First Meeting.

The Religious Education Department of the Interchurch World Movement met for the first time yesterday morning in the Pennsylvania Hotel. Editors of religious periodicals and Sunday school publications throughout the country were at the meeting. Dr. Hugh Magill of the National Education Association, Washington, D. C., and Professors W. C. Bagley and George Strayer of the Teachers College, Columbia University, spoke on the great need of religious education.

URGES NEWSPRINT SAVING.

Steenerson Repeats Warning to Publishers to Reduce Issues.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Chairman Steenerson of the House Post Office Committee has written to newspaper publishers calling attention to the committee's request that they reduce consumption of newsprint paper 10 per cent. because of the acute paper shortage.

The publishers are requested to furnish information as to the amount of paper consumed by them in the four months ending March 1, 1920, and for the same period the year before, and are reminded that the committee has before it various bills to restrict the size of publications because of the paper shortage.

Christens Destroyer with Cider.

BATH, Me., March 8.—A bottle of sweet cider was used by Miss Sallie M. Tucker of New York to christen the torpedo boat destroyer Preble, which was launched at the yards of the Bath Iron Works today. The destroyer is named for Commodore Edward Preble of Portland, who served in the navy in the civil war. Miss Tucker is his great-granddaughter.

WOULDAMERICANIZE GOVERNMENT FIRST

Franklin D. Roosevelt Declares Congress and Executive Departments Need It Most.

CALLS FOR REORGANIZATION

Urges Better Pay for Federal Employes and Greater Discretion for Department Heads.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, has written to Representative R. Walton Moore of Virginia a letter in which he asserts that radical improvements should be made in the organization of the various executive departments of the Government, with a view to increasing its business efficiency as an up-to-date going concern.

Mr. Roosevelt takes practically the same stand as Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior, who in a letter to President Wilson recently criticised the shortcomings and red tape of the Governmental system in Washington as he had found it after serving seven years in the Cabinet and prior to that in other Government positions.

Mr. Roosevelt declares that while he believes the American people favor business efficiency in the conduct of Governmental affairs, he is satisfied, after seven years' experience in Washington, that Congress and the Government executive departments need Americanizing "more than any of our other institutions." His letter follows:

"Replying to your letter of Feb. 28, I hope you will succeed in getting some action in the matter of improving the organization and business efficiency of the executive departments of the National Government. Seven years' experience in Washington, and a certain amount of study of history, prove to me conclusively that there is a tremendous field for improvement in three broad and distinct particulars.

"First—There exists an overlapping and duplication of administrative work in the different departments. New activities have grown up in or been assigned to departments with little regard to good business methods. A large part of this work should be reassigned, and much of it now scattered between different departments should be consolidated in one.

"Second—Departmental methods of administration should be made uniform. For instance, no two departments have the same accounting system. In this same category there is equal need of reform in the method of making appropriations by Congress. The appropriation measure for the different departments shows a ridiculous hodge-podge of subdivisions, restrictions, &c., with a complete lack of uniformity.

"Third—Congress must make up its mind to give adequate pay to Government servants and to allow greater latitude and discretion to the executive heads of departments in the fixing of rates of compensation. Without any reference to the secretaries and assistant secretaries in the different departments, it is a fact that the administrative officials directly under them are now paid salaries which prevent the best men from staying in the Government service, and which makes it impossible to obtain good men from the outside.

"The result is apparent all the way down the line. It means that the younger men have no incentive to give their best energies, for there is no future to look forward to, and they see in many of their superiors, men who have been willing to stay on because of lack of ambition, and a willingness to remain in a rut.

"I do not hesitate to say that I could run the Navy Department more efficiently in every way with 15 per cent. fewer employes if I could have authority to take the salaries of these employes and add the amount, in my discretion, to the pay of those who are experts in their own line of work and who would command far higher pay in private employ. I have in mind the men who are making good, but will not stay under present conditions.

"I know you will pardon me if I tell you quite frankly that I believe America stands, as a whole, for business efficiency in the conduct of its affairs, and that in this respect the Congress of the United States and the executive departments of the Government need Americanizing more than any other of our institutions."

STILL BAR ENEMY ALIENS.

Only a Few Germans Are Admitted Under Special Rules.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The admission into the United States of a few Germans has led to a mistaken public impression that the Government has removed restrictions upon the entry of enemy aliens.

In advance of the official conclusion of peace, it was said today at the State Department, no enemy aliens may come to the United States except reputable business men admitted on temporary permits for purely business purposes, dependent German parents, more than sixty years of age, having naturalized children in this country, and American born wives of Germans who have relatives here.

CLARK HEADS COMMISSION.

Chosen Interstate Commerce Chairman After Others Decline.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Edgar E. Clark was elected Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission today after Commissioners Wooley and Eastman had declined the place because of opposition they had expressed to the railroad law.

The bill conferred wide powers on the commission in regard to rate making and supervision of the consolidation of individual roads into national systems. Both Mr. Wooley and Mr. Eastman advocated a continuance of Government control, and they felt that the commission should be headed by a man in sympathy with the provisions of the new legislation. Mr. Clark then was elected Chairman unanimously to succeed Chairman Atchison.

JAPAN DENIES RUMOR.

Never Bought Victory Over Russia, London Embassy Asserts.

LONDON, March 8.—The Japanese Embassy here today issued the following statement:

"Referring to the news circulated in the last few days to the effect that Japan bought the victory over Russia in 1904-05, the Japanese Embassy declares this is entirely groundless. Moreover, we suspect there is some foul play involved in the rumor.

"The story, of course, is so preposterous and chimerical that it hardly deserves a formal denial, but in view of the fact that several papers printed it, it is well that it should be noticed."

APPEALS SHIP INJUNCTION.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Dissolution of the temporary injunction restraining the Shipping Board from selling twenty-nine of the former German liners taken over by the Government during the war was asked in a petition filed in the district Supreme Court today by Chairman Payne of the Board.

The injunction was granted on Feb. 24 on application of William Randolph Hearst, who sued in his capacity as a taxpayer.

SEMINOLE SUN DANCE AGAIN AT PALM BEACH

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 8.—The Seminole Sun Dance, an annual fête inaugurated a few years ago and since grown to large proportions, attracted a large crowd of society people to West Palm Beach this afternoon. There was a concert by the band of the University of Florida, addresses by Mayor Dunkle, and by William J. Conners of Buffalo, and a baby parade, which was of great interest.

The judges were Mrs. Pierre L. Barbey of Tuxedo, Mrs. Robert Dunn Douglas of Llewellyn Park, Mrs. John C. King of New York, Mrs. S. Ross Campbell of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Thomas T. Reese of Palm Beach. Mr. Conners, who has bought a farm of several thousand acres west of this resort, has been made President of the Sun Dancers, Inc.

A feature of today's program was the leap of an aviator from one plane to another in midair. Tonight there was a fine display of fireworks and outdoor dancing in masquerade costume, a diversion which many people from the Winter colony made up parties for and joined in.

Lawrence Fuller left today for Philadelphia with the satisfaction of having led the Philadelphia baseball nine organization here to its third victory over the New York team just before departing. It was the final society baseball of the season, Philadelphia defeating New York, 6—2, on the Poinciana diamond. After the first two innings New York was outclassed in spite of heroic efforts to score during the remainder of the game. As late as the seventh inning William Thaw, 3d, tried to steal third base and was pegged out by Rodman Wanamaker, 2d. Previous to this Thaw had purloined the second sack, but decided to go over the top again for the third objective.

To round up the New York team, Charles Amory was borrowed from the Massachusetts colony. He and Charlie Schwartz, New York, played real baseball. As was the case in preceding games, Philadelphia had too many ball players in the lineup. Bert Bell invited another 'Varsity player into the game to play first base, and Mike Howell of Cornell rounded up a stonewall infield. Philadelphia outhit New York 6 to 2. The big town batters had no luck with Bell's pitching, and when they did hit there were Roy Coffin and Bill Clothier and Bell of the defense ready to throw the base runners out.

The lineup:

Benefit for Hampton and Tuskegee.

The New York Fifteenth Infantry colored band and the Hampton Quartet will appear at a benefit performance tomorrow evening in Carnegie Hall for the Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes. Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Mrs. Henry Clews, Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, Mrs. Richard Derby, Mrs. W. Fellowes Morgan and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt are among those acting as patronesses.

Dance in Aid of Blue Ridge School.

The annual dance for the benefit of the Blue Ridge Industrial School, Green County, Va., will take place at the Vanderbilt Hotel on March 8. The proceeds will go to help the mountain boys and girls to learn the art of making better homes and developing the sparsely settled districts in the Blue Ridge Mountains. Mrs. Stuart G. Gibboney is Chairman of the Dance Committee and the patronesses include Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, the Princess Troubetzkoy, Mrs. John E. Berwind, Mrs. John A. Drake, Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius Mrs. de Acosta Lydig, Mrs. William G. McAdoo, Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Mrs. Walton H. Marshall and Mrs. W. Willoughby Sharp.

Daughter to Mrs. Byron R. Newton.

A daughter was born on Friday last to Byron R. Newton, Collector of the Port, and Mrs. Newton in the Flushing Hospital. Both mother and child are doing well and the newcomer has been named Margaret. Just a month previous to this birth Miss Irene Newton, a daughter aged 18, died.

Brig. Gen. D. H. Brush Dead.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 8.—Brig. Gen. Daniel H. Brush, U. S. A., retired, died here today at the age of 71. The General served under Custer in the Indian wars and commanded troops in the Spanish-American War and in the Philippines. He was graduated from West Point in 1867, was made a brigadier general in 1908 and retired by operation of law in 1912.

Daniel R. Brush of Chicago, an ex-army officer, and Major Robert Brush of the Adjutant General's Department are his sons.

Col. Henry L. Harris.

Will Testify at Anti-Saloon League Investigation of Signing Pledges Under Threat.

BILL FOR 10 PER CENT. WINE

Two Rigid Enforcement Measures at Albany Sponsored by League to be Abandoned.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8—A host of lawmakers who have served in the Legislature during the last three years and were compelled under threat of opposition to sign pledges to support "dry" legislation will be called as witnesses in the prospective investigation of the New York Anti-Saloon League and William H. Anderson, its State superintendent.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier of New York, sponsor for the resolution to investigate Mr. Anderson and the dry league which the Assembly adopted a week ago tonight, pointed out this evening that with the Socialist Assemblymen on trial and threatened with expulsion for signing pledges to subordinate their legislative actions to the will of an outside agency, there was every reason why the activities of Superintendent Anderson should no longer be immune to attack.

"We have raised the point against the Socialists that such condition is in direct conflict with the mandates of the State constitution, but what about the man who procures such pledges from candidates for the Legislature under threat that if they be not forthcoming he will use the moneys wheedled out of credulous church members to bring about their defeat?" said Mr. Cuvillier tonight. "I will have scores of witnesses to prove that this is exactly what Anderson has been doing for years."

Mr. Cuvillier said he would ask Chairman Louis M. Martin of the Assembly Judiciary Committee, which under the Cuvillier resolution will conduct the investigation, for a subpoena duces tecum with which to bring the books of the Anti-Saloon League before the committee.

"I propose to have those books subjected to close scrutiny and will ask the committee to follow every lead and clue indicated by the entries," said the Assemblyman. "If any one is seized with the idea that this is not to be a thorough investigation he had better change his mind. We are going to learn something, not only about the League's money-raising methods and the secret sources it has tapped in emergencies when large sums were needed in a hurry, but also about how the money was spent."

Even more indicative of the pronounced change of sentiment in the Republican Legislature toward prohibition and "dry" propaganda than was the adoption of the Cuvillier resolution a week ago was the report tonight that both the rigid enforcement bill sponsored by the Anti-Saloon League and another enforcement measure backed by the Republican leaders of the Assembly would be abandoned. That would wipe the legislative slate clean as far as bills providing for rigid prohibition enforcement are concerned. Both the Anti-Saloon League bill, which was introduced by Senator Thompson of Niagara, and the other bill, presented by Assemblyman Gage of Wyoming, were in effect the Volstead act, adapted for State use.

There are several liberal enforcement measures pending, too, the latest introduced tonight by Colonel Ransom Gillett, a Republican, representing Columbia County. The Gillett bill provides legal sanction for the sale of 10 per cent. wines and 3½ per cent. beer. It would almost let champagne by. The bill is said to have the backing of ex-service men, of which there are thirty-five, a respectable nucleus of support in the Assembly.

The proposed inquiry into the League is arousing more than State-wide interest. Ministers in various States surrounding New York who have come into contact with the methods of the League have written Assemblyman Cuvillier congratulating him on his stand.

W. A. Gardner, General Manager of the Allied Tobacco League of America, with head offices in Cincinnati, Ohio, has written the Judiciary Committee, suggesting his availability as a witness against the League. "I make this offer," he says, "because of the un-American methods by which the League has invaded and dominated politics."

Assemblyman Cuvillier tonight also made public a letter from the Rev. W. N. Webber of the Emmanuel Church at Great River, L. I. in which he suggests that if the Judiciary Committee takes up this investigation it might be well to look into the matter of the circulation of The American Issue and The Reform Bulletin as to whether they are conducted in accordance with the United States postal regulations.

until it came to his attack on "an element in the Catholic Church." Then he read very carefully from his notes and supplied copies to reporters after the meeting.

"The Anti-Saloon League is the agency of the churches that mean business on the liquor question," began Mr. Anderson, in his statement about the Catholic Church. "It is the function of the League as such agency to enable its constituency to get results, or show why they cannot," he continued.

"Much of its activity consists in turning on the light, particularly on wet politicians. And it sees no reason why it should stop when they happen to be Catholics any more than when they are Protestants, as have been most of the men the league has fought hardest in New York. There is a certain element in the Catholic Church which everybody knows is in politics up to its neck, but which most people have been afraid to say anything about because they are expert in muddying the water by claiming that the Church itself has been attacked. It is these individuals, and not the Church, that we intend to turn the light on.

Qualifying Paragraph.

"No honest newspaper will print any of the rest of this statement without this qualifying paragraph, which makes clear that neither I nor the Anti-Saloon League has ever attacked the Catholic Church or Catholics as such. I have voted twice in three years for Catholic Democratic candidates for the Assembly because they were right on prohibition. I never have and never shall make any statement that any unprejudiced person can fairly call anti-Catholic. But I will not keep quiet about Catholics who ought to be shown up just for fear I will be falsely accused of an attack upon the Church. Many Catholic priests and a host of Catholic people were and are for prohibition, and the great body of the membership of the Catholic Church, even among the foreign-born, are loyal and law-abiding. I believe that most Catholics, even though not personally in favor of prohibition, do stand for upholding the prohibition law, not because it is prohibition but because it is the law. But the Protestants and the Jews have no monopoly of lawless disturbers or designing schemers.

"But these commendable things that have always been freely admitted do not obscure the fact that there is an element in the Catholic Church, both clerical and lay, whose activities in the long run will not prove either creditable or beneficial to that Church, who are endeavoring to break down prohibition enforcement. They are the same folks who sought by manipulation to defeat the enactment of prohibition. But we preferred to make our position impregnable by waiting until prohibition had become the law of the land, and assaults upon it constituted an attack upon law and order, before definitely calling attention to their activity. Now that it is up, we shall continue till the hysteria has subsided and the public has the real facts in shape to consider them calmly and intelligently.

"There was a great shriek last week over my alleged attack on the Catholic Church, which so-called attack was a statement that most of the Catholic leaders in this region are in sympathy with the attempt to break down the prohibition law. The justification for this statement is found in the fact that on the same day that this letter was sent to the pastors, March 4, His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, gave out a statement proposing to break down the prohibition amendment and emasculate the enforcement law by permitting the manufacture and sale of beer and wine. This coincidence of date shows both that we knew exactly what certain Catholics were thinking and doing on this question, and also that we were good guessers as to when to tell it. The suggestion of the Cardinal to do this and yet maintain the spirit of the prohibition amendment does not obscure the fact that his proposal is nullification, because beer is an intoxicating liquor; nor obscure the fact that this is the program of the brewers and would result in bringing back the saloon. The Cardinal's proposal would mean not to preserve the spirit of a living amendment, but to preserve a dead amendment in 'spirits.'

Calls it "Fog."

"The New York papers published this statement of Cardinal Gibbons just the day before they published the charge that I had attacked the Church by telling that it stands for just what the Cardinal proposes. Apparently it is all right for Catholics to propose that the American Constitution be nullified by act of Congress, but very reprehensible for anybody to call attention to the fact that they favor such a program. It is just this kind of fog that we intend to focus the light upon until the air is clear.

"A leading New York paper on Friday said in its headlines that Cardinal Gibbons 'Assails Dry Law,' and on Saturday morning said in its headlines 'Anderson Attacks Catholic Church' because I said that the leaders of the Catholic Church were in sympathy with the effort to destroy the prohibition victory. And this paper is aggrieved when it is charged with being either stupid or malicious. The most eminent Catholic in America has corroborated my statement.

"In the light of the specific declaration of Cardinal Gibbons for beer and wine it is no wonder that the Catholic Archbishop of New York declined to deny the statement that the Catholic Church in New York is in sympathy with Tammany in its program of repeal and its brazenly announced purpose of nullification pending repeal.

"If the Catholics as citizens or the Catholic Church as such wish to bring about the repeal of the prohibition amendment that is their privilege. But if that is their intention they should not complain over being compelled to work in the open as the advocates and defenders of prohibition have worked and are working.

"However, any attempt to trample upon or evade the law while it is the law is an assault upon the Constitution and our American system of Government, and an offense against law and order, whether perpetrated by Protestant, Jew or Catholic.

What the League Intends.

"The Anti-Saloon League intends, wherever it finds Catholics working, as such, against prohibition enforcement, to call that fact to the attention of the public. If such activity is praiseworthy and commendable our telling of it will benefit the church. If such activity is not proper then our action will benefit the public. In neither case has any Catholic any just ground for complaint.

"The time is coming, if it is not already here, when the Catholic Church in America will have to decide whether it will whole-heartedly stand for an honest test of the prohibition policy adopted by the American nation as provided by the Constitution, and for genuine enforcement of that policy so long as it is the supreme law of the land, or whether it will stand with those who by political and other means are trying to bring the amendment into disrepute through violation of the law.

"We believe that when confronted with such an alternative the Catholic Church will stand with the law, and for Americanism of the sober brand which will give the best opportunity to everything that is genuine and true in religion. But if it should take the other alternative the forces behind prohibition will not hesitate a single instant to meet the issue head-on, for while it might win temporarily in New York City, it cannot win in the nation or even in New York State as a whole if such an issue is ever joined.

"The Catholic Church is a great and powerful organization which has done a tremendous amount of good and is capable of a vast amount of good in the future, but if it should ally itself with the brewers who were enemies of the country; if it should take a position in favor of bringing back the liquor traffic which has been the foe of true morality and has not a single attribute to redeem it; if it should array itself against the American conscience which has determined that democracy shall not fail an intent and waiting world on a moral issue, then, in the extremely improbable event that it should take such an untenable position, the Catholic Church would find itself shorn of power as completely as Samson was stripped when he dallied with sin."

Anderson Criticised.

Criticism of William H. Anderson for his letter upon Catholics and prohibition is expressed in resolutions adopted on Sunday by the Men's Bible Forum of the First Congregational Church of Plainfield, N. J. The resolutions say:

"We do not believe these charges, we do not credit them, we believe them unfair, unfounded and untrue as made in such wholesale fashion.

"We consider such methods of attack absolutely wicked, un-American from any viewpoint, unrepresentative of those who sympathize with the Anti-Saloon League, and destructive of the only thing which will keep and enforce the Eighteenth Amendment, i. e., unity of public opinion and good will toward this experiment in social welfare.

"We, therefore, a body of Protestant men, desire to publicly condemn all efforts to divide public opinion on sectarian lines, and call upon all fair-minded Americans to strenuously maintain the American mindedness we brought out of the great war, and to discuss all public questions as citizens, not as sectarians."

Three hundred bottles of liquors, including cognac, rum, cordials and wine, were taken to the seizure room of the Custom House yesterday by the three inspectors who search incoming boats for smuggled whisky. This consignment represented the work of the inspectors for last week.

The inspectors yesterday seized 140 bottles of rum which they found secreted on the Manona, of the Quebec Steamship Company, which arrived last week from Barbados. No one claimed the rum.

Two barrels of whisky and five cases of brandy were taken yesterday from a truck which put into the garage of John Fitzgerald at Mamaroneck, because of the bad roads. Edward B. Doulens, a Deputy Sheriff, of Norwalk, Conn., was taken into custody, and two other men escaped. The liquor was being transported from New York to South Norwalk.

RHODE ISLAND FIGHT ON DRY ACT OPENS

State Assails 18th Amendment as Revolutionary—Government Defends It as Basic Law.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Rhode Island's legal attack on the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution was argued in Supreme Court today, the complainant assailing the amendment as revolutionary and an invasion of State rights and the Government defending it as a legitimate addition to the nation's basic law, over which the court held no jurisdiction.

Throngs attended the session of the court to hear the argument. Many persons waited outside the doors throughout the morning to obtain admittance.

Herbert A. Rice, Attorney General of Rhode Island, opened for the opposition, and William L. Frierson, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, replied for the Government. Other arguments will be heard tomorrow, as well as appeals from Kentucky and Massachusetts involving the same questions.

Mr. Rice charged there was in progress a "constitutional revolution through amendments."

"I see more danger in the doctrine urged by the Government than any doctrine urged by the demagogues during the World War," he said. "The rights assured the people under the Tenth Amendment were never intended to be taken away."

Mr. Rice argued that the prohibition amendment resulted from a misconception of the law by Congress and that the Federal Government had no authority to make such a change in the Constitution as the amendment provides. Declaring that "amendment" means a correction, he said the terms of the prohibition amendment are clearly outside the purview of the Constitution.

Says Amendment Corrected Error.

"What about the Thirteenth Amendment abolishing slavery?" inquired Justice Pitney.

"That was a compromise amendment, and corrected an error in the Constitution," answered Mr. Rice.

Justice Brandeis asked what power could bring about the conditions imposed by the Eighteenth Amendment.

"There is no power in the United States Constitution to make such a change, unless it could be done by unanimous consent of the States and the people of the United States," Mr. Rice said. "There is no power and there never was intended to be such power for encroachment by the Federal Government upon the powers of the States."

"Wasn't slavery supported by the police power of the States?" Justice McReynolds asked.

"Yes," replied Mr. Rice, "but it was a police power to regulate."

Mr. Rice told the Court that the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments "were written into the Constitution by force" and not with the voluntary assent of the Southern States.

Assistant Attorney General Frierson argued that there was nothing revolutionary in the adoption of an amendment that lays down a "fundamental rule of law" that applies to all States.

"The case does involve the question as to whether a State can come into a Federal court and enjoin the enforcement of a criminal law on the ground the law is unconstitutional," he added. "I have never understood that this court, at the instance of a State, could be constituted into a forum in which to debate the respective political rights of the two Governments. If that is the case, any State can come in and do that before the property rights of individual citizens have been injured.

"We have here the bald question as to whether a State can invoke the jurisdiction of a court to protect its citizens, who are citizens of the United States, who have violated an act of Congress from orderly prosecution in the courts."

The court granted permission for the filing of briefs by Charles E. Hughes, on behalf of twenty-four States, and by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, supporting the amendment, and by Elihu Root, in opposition to the amendment, on behalf of the United States Brewers' Association.

Denies Power of Congress.

Mr. Root in his brief contended that the so-called Eighteenth Amendment as mere legislation was not within the authority vested in Congress and the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States under the Federal Constitution; that Article V. of the Constitution did not authorize any amendment which directly or in principle tended to impair and destroy the reserved police or governmental powers of the several States and their right to local self-government; that two-thirds of Congress did not deem the amendment necessary; and that the amendment had not been ratified by three-fourths of the States.

"If this amendment is valid," the Root brief said, "the principle which it embodies and the tendency which it establishes and legalizes would authorize the most far-reaching and revolutionary alterations in our governmental system.

"The right to manufacture, sell and transport in local or intrastate commerce tobacco, condiments, coffee, grain, meat, cotton, or any other products, which three-fourths of the several States at any time deem objectionable, could then unquestionably be prohibited by constitutional amendment.

"The right of the States to establish and enforce social distinction between the races and prevent their intermarriage, which a number of our States firmly believe vital to their peace, order and happiness; the right of the States to regulate any other domestic relation; the right of the States to regulate strikes and lockouts; the right of the States to levy and collect their own taxes for their own purposes; the right of the States to forbid the use of child labor or regulate the hours of labor in the factories within their respective borders; the right of the States to enact employers' liability and workmen's compensation laws for the benefit of their inhabitants—in a word, the entire right of each of the States to regulate the life, conduct and intrastate affairs and business of citizens in accordance with its own needs and its own views—may all be destroyed by the action of two-thirds of a quorum of both Houses of Congress and the concurrence of the three-fourths of the Legislatures of the States, representing it may be, a minority of the people of the United States.

"It is an inevitable conclusion that, if the so-called eighteenth amendment, which directly and deliberately deprives the several States of a substantial portion of their respective police powers and revenues be a constitutional exercise of power, then another amendment may constitutionally sweep away every remaining vestige of the police powers of the State, that is to say 'the powers of Government inherent in every sovereignty to the extent of its dominions * * * the power to govern men and things within the limits of its dominion.'"

HITS BALL HARD AND FAR

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 8.—Manager Huggins of the Yankees today had to crowd all of his practice into one period. The cold weather was the reason. He waited for the sun to warm up the shivering community and then called his Yankees for rehearsal lasting from 11 to 1 o'clock. They were on the jump while they were about it, and the noisiest, liveliest and most spirited practice since arrival took place.

Everybody was out. Fewster, Hannah, Meusel and Collins, the new right-handed pitcher, late comers or late arrivals, were in the ranks, which were considerably swollen. The boys had lots of vim and dash and vocal range.

A good deal of interest centred in the first appearance of Meusel, the big Jack-of-all-trades from the Pacific Coast. Meusel is long-legged and boyish and recalls Harry Heilman of the Detroits. He played both the infield and outfield a while, and the railbirds, heads cocked, owl wise and hypercritical, declared he showed to better advantage in the infield than in the outfield. This opinion, as an indication of what may be expected of him, amounts to just naught.

Huggins said he wouldn't undertake to pass any opinion from seeing a man for the first time. Meusel handled himself right nimbly and easily at third, and as a third baseman would be the biggest extant. Some think him too big for the position, but then Devlin and Bradley and Denny, past adepts of the far corner, were not Lilliputians.

Truck Hannah did not do any catching, but did hop about a lot in bunting and gathering foul flies. He is lighter than he ever has been as a Yankee and was spry and sure of all sorts of high twisting flies knocked for his especial practice and benefit. Warren Collins, the Texan, warmed up and rather surprised the others with his steam. He had more than they looked for from a man just over the influenza.

Huggins had a considerable array of pitching talent on the crest. He worked them in this order: Shore, McGraw, Smallwood, Miller, Shawkey, De Vitalis and O'Doul. Shore reported the work done by him during his tenancy of the knoll as satisfactory and encouraging, and it really appears that this big man will deliver more than he did last year. Shawkey was pitching to batters for the first time and made his stay brief.

Muddy Ruel appeared behind the mask for his first formal spell of catching. Sam Vick hit the ball with more accuracy and drive than any of them, though Meusel made a good impression in the hitting practice. The ball when he hits it goes with force and far though not swung at hard. His practice drives averaged longer than Ruth has been getting. Carl Mays had a group of fielders, mostly pitchers, in front of him while he bunted to them, and the noise made by this squad as they yelled and pranced was heard across the river in Jacksonville proper.

Tomorrow Huggins will have his first practice game. The infield of the regulars will consist of Pipp, Pratt, Peck and Fewster, and in the outfield will be Bodie, Ruth and Vick, with Ruel catching. The second team will have an infield composed of Meusel, first base; Biemiller, second base; Rice, shortstop, and Ward, third base; an outfield composed of Gleich, Geiser and O'Doul, with Hoffman, catching. Smallwood, McGraw, Quinn, Miller and Mays will do the pitching.

ROBINS IN LONG WORKOUT.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 8.—This was about the warmest afternoon the Dodgers enjoyed since they arrived here more than a week ago, and Manager Robinson took full advantage of the welcomed bright sunshine and put his squad of athletes through a session which lasted more than three hours. The rotund leader put an end to the Johnstons and Konetchys by bringing the big first baseman over to the team which was named after Jimmy Johnston, and for the first time in a scrub game the Dodgers' new infield, composed of Koney at first, Olson at second, Ward at short and Johnston at third, worked together. The sides were christened the regulars and the yanigans.

A lively contest, which lasted seven innings, was played, and when the proceedings were brought to an abrupt ending the regulars were on the heavy end of a 4 to 2 score. The winners fought an uphill battle and overcame the yanigans' early advantage. Four rookie pitchers were assigned to the mound during the fray. Schreiber and Miljus pitched for the regulars and Mohart and Conlon were the yanigans' slabsters.

Before and after the game Manager Robinson put the infielders through a strenuous fielding session. The rotund leader clouted many hard drives to members of the team's inner works and several fancy stops and throws were made. Jimmy Johnston handled himself well around the far corner.

Two members of the club, Al Mamaux and Zack Taylor, are on the sick list and did not take part in the workout. Grimes, Wheat and Myers, the missing athletes, have not yet reported.

RED SOX GET MARSANS.

Cuban Outfielder Signs Contract to Play with Boston Club.

BOSTON, March 8—The return to organized baseball of Armando Marsans, the Cuban outfielder, formerly with the Cincinatti Nationals, St. Louis and New York Americans, is announced from the Spring training camp of the Boston Americans at Hot Springs, Ark. Marsans signed a contract with a Red Sox agent at Havana yesterday, it was stated. The arrangement by which the local club obtained Marsans's services from New York was not made public.

TIGERS START BASEBALL.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 8—Princeton's 1920 baseball season officially got under way here today, when sixty candidates for the team reported to Bill Clarke, the head coach, in the cage this afternoon. With the opening game less than a month distant, prospects are not promising in view of the condition of the outdoor field.

The squad was headed by Captain Maury Trimble. Blair Lee, who was captain-elect of the team when he left for war service, reported with the outfielders. A number of veterans were on hand, as well as many men from last year's freshman nine. Joe Scherer, hero of the Yale-Princeton football game last fall, is with the first base candidates. Another man who reported was "Lefty" Howett, who was a crack third baseman here before the war. With three infield positions open, he stands an excellent chance of making the team.

Football Officials Oppose Suggested Changes in Game

BOSTON, March 8.—Football officials who conferred today at the Boston Athletic Association recommended that the Committee on Rules make no radical changes in the game when it meets in New York next Friday. The officials opposed limitation of the game to a specified number of plays. They recommended that the goal after a touchdown be retained and that the distance between the goal posts remain as it is. Several suggestions looking toward an interpretation of the rules by the committee were adopted. It was voted to organize a New England board of officials. Among those present were Fred Butterfield, Joseph B. Pendleton, Fred W. Burleigh, W. S. Gannell, Edward Sherlock, Dr. Edward J. O'Brien, and Nathan A. Tufts.

FLETCHER REPORTS AT GIANTS' CAMP

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 8.—Arthur Fletcher, field captain of the Giants, is the latest player to join the ranks and when "Fletch" put on his uniform this afternoon the New York roster of players was complete with the exception of Mike Gonzales, who is now on his way here from Cuba. Gonzales isn't a holdout, as he signed a contract last season before he went home. He has been playing baseball in Havana this Winter. Gonzales does not need the training the other players need, as he is already in shape and he had McGraw's permission to report late.

Fletcher was detained at his home in Collinsville, Mo., by the illness of his wife. The Giant shortstop went out to the park this morning with Manager McGraw, but it was so chilly he did not put on his uniform. He simply ran about the field to limber up and did not attempt any real fielding or batting practice.

Matty supervised the work of the young pitchers and he spent some time with young Ren Kelly, the pitcher from the Coast who has taken Matty's eye. On the first week's showing of the youngsters, Kelly has impressed Matty most. Kelly is a big, powerful right-handed thrower. He is a brother of George Kelly, who is ticketed to play first for the Giants. Matty says young Kelly has speed and curves, bit more than this, he has control, which is the thing which most of the young flingers lack.

Allan Sothoron, the leading trick ball pitcher of the Browns, who are training at Taylor, a few hours' distance from here, says that the new rules prohibiting freak deliveries will not prevent the use of the so-called "sailer" this year. Sothoron says that as soon as the ball is hit once by the bat it leaves a mark on the smooth cover of the ball and this one bruise will enable the pitchers to use this spot in throwing ball floats so mysteriously that the batters imagine it is floating up at them. Sothoron believes that pitchers such as Cicotte and Eller will be able to use the so-called shine ball without rubbing the ball on their uniforms. The Brown star says that if batsmen think they are going to have an easier time making hits this year they are mistaken, for it is going to be just as difficult as ever.

The cold spell of the last two days which has nipped the budding fruit trees and flower gardens has its effect on the members of the New York Club and many of them today are troubled with slight colds. The weather moderated this afternoon and McGraw divided his squad into two teams and they played a snappy seven-inning encounter. The regulars were lucky to get a tie score with the recruits. The recruits were leading by a score of 2 to 1 until the end of the seventh, when Lew McCarty was sent in to bat for Paul Johnson, the pitcher. McCarty doubled and scored when Staatz singled. For the recruits Moyer and Bates got three-base drives and for the regulars Snyder and White got doubles.

The lineup of the teams was:

COLUMBIA SQUAD REPORTS.

Coakley Has 31 Baseball Men Out for First Day's Practice.

Coach Andy Coakley's hopes that seventy-five candidates would report yesterday afternoon for the opening baseball workout at Columbia were temporarily frustrated by a confusion in practice orders as given out by the managers, and the mixup resulted in only thirty-one men reporting at the gymnasium cage.

Johnny Hauck, last year's Captain, was one of the first of the veterans to appear and he jumped into the workout with enough energy to convince the spectators that he would be on deck again this year. Another conspicuous candidate was Frank Canapary, who was deposed as football Captain last Fall by Fred Dawson. Canapary seeks the vacant place at third.

Tommy Farrell was the only one of the veteran quartet of pitchers to make an appearance. The total number of twirlers out was eight, these including three freshmen—Evans, Moore, and Gillespie.

The workouts will be held daily from 2 to 5, and hours will be assigned to the various players according to their schedules of classes.

HARVARD BEGINS CAGE WORK

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 8.—Thirty-six candidates reported for fielding positions on the Harvard 'Varsity baseball team this afternoon. Short speeches were made to the men by Coach Jack Slattery and Captain Emmons.

The work in the cage consisted primarily of limbering up, and finished with a six-lap jog around the board track on Soldiers' Field. Starting tomorrow, the squad will report in two sections, so the head coach can weed out the men more easily.

Among the members of last year's team who were out today were Kenneth Perkins, third base, who is a candidate for the outfield; Babe Frothington, Dick Hallowell, Jeff Jones and Lee Evans. Arthur Conlon, Leonard Hallock and Frank Crocker were the members of last year's freshman team on hand.

RULE CHANGES UNLIKELY.

Al Sharpe Does Not Think Football Suggestions Will Be Accepted.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 8—Dr. A. H. Sharpe, director of athletics at Yale University, in an interview today on revision of football rules expressed his belief that the rules committee would not give serious consideration to suggestions that the number of plays rather than time should govern the length of a game. The intercollegiate committee will meet in New York Friday to discuss fully the changes in rules which have been put forward by college coaches and others.

JACKSON DEFEATS DUNDEE ON POINTS

Has Better of Six of the Eight Rounds in Spectacular Bout in Jersey City.

Willie Jackson, Bronx lightweight, fighting with volcanic fury, hammered his way to a convincing victory last night over Johnny Dundee, the fiery little Italian lightweight, in their eight-round bout before a crowd of 6,000 rabid spectators in the Arena, the 4th Regiment Armory, Jersey City.

Jackson, forcing matters continually from start to finish, battered Dundee effectively with both hands in a varied attack which had the Italian bewildered. Though outslugged in the majority of rounds, Dundee lost none of his courage, but only fought faster when stung hardest.

This combination, Jackson consistently forcing matters, and Dundee being buffeted about in a veritable gale of blows, resulted in one of the most spectacular and sensational lightweight bouts ever held in this vicinity. From start to finish the boxers lashed away at each other, Jackson with the greater effect, while the crowd sent up a thunderous approval which almost rocked the foundations of the building. Now the spectators were straining their vocal muscles urging Jackson to knock out Dundee, as he did three years ago in Philadelphia. Again the frenzied gathering, jamming the armory to its capacity, roared in encouragement as Dundee, retreating under fire, lashed out with snappy left hook to the face, or wicked right drive to the body.

Jackson Has Six Rounds.

Jackson, through his brilliant offensive, carried off the laurels in six of the eight rounds. The Bronx lad, flailing away with both hands, with one thought uppermost in his mind—the accomplishment of a knock-out victory—showed to advantage in every round except the fourth and eighth. In the closing session Dundee, evidently with the realization that he was being decisively outpointed, sought with one tremendous final effort to turn defeat into victory. He discarded every thought of defense and mixed blow for blow with Jackson. The latter, eager to send over a crushing blow, missed many of his punches, but landed enough to keep the honors of this round evenly divided. Dundee, crashing blow after blow home over Jackson's left leads, thrilled the crowd with his fighting in the fourth session and earned that round, the only one in which he showed clearly to advantage.

In every other round Dundee ran second. In fact only his indomitable courage enabled the sturdy little Italian to withstand the gruelling punishment to which he was subjected. With that doggedness that is characteristic of him, Dundee showed the heart of a lion, a jaw made of sterner stuff than the toughest leather, and a body which, it seemed, was lined with steel. These attributes and his remarkable inherent fighting quality kept him on his feet even when it seemed inevitable that he must succumb. Peculiarly enough, not a drop of blood was spilled, despite the terrific mixing for the entire eight rounds.

The boxers started off in whirlwind fashion in the opening round and there was no letup thereafter. Jackson, assuming the offensive, forced Dundee before him with crushing rights to the jaw, driving the Italian to the ropes, and outslugging Dundee in a hurricane melee in mid-ring which brought the crowd, yelling, to its feet. Dundee, unaccustomed to a defensive fight, sought to return the attack, lashing out indiscriminately with left hooks to the face which only had the effect of making Jackson fight harder.

Dundee Almost Toppled.

After taking two rights to the jaw in the second round, Jackson crashed over a right to Dundee's jaw which sent the Italian back on his heels. Returning, Dundee punched blindly, trying to stem his rival's furious attack, but the Italian was wild and ineffective. The third round was a repetition, Jackson shifting his attack at times to the stomach and sending Dundee to the ropes with crushing blows.

Great Crowd Gathers Despite Efforts at Secrecy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 8.—Georges Carpentier, the heavyweight boxing champion of Europe and challenger of Jack Dempsey for the world's championship, was married this morning to Mlle. Georgette Elsasse at the Town Hall of Montparnasse, District of Paris. The religious ceremony will be performed at a Paris church tomorrow.

All attempts, which were more emphasized than insisted on, to keep the ceremony secret failed utterly, and an enormous crowd fairly mobbed the bride and bridegroom as they drove away to a luncheon given in their honor by Deschamps, Carpentier's equally famous manager.

The marriage raised the question among French followers of the sport as to whether a man fights better or worse when he is married.

There is no question, however, that Mme. Carpentier will unnerve her husband by her presence when he battles for the world's championship. "I could not bear to see any one hit Georges," she has declared. "I cannot understand why women go to see boxing matches."

Descamps declares that after his fight with Dempsey Carpentier will retire from the ring. After a few days' honeymoon, Carpentier and his bride are to sail for America, where the boxer has arranged to fight in front of the movie camera.

VALGER SHADES MURPHY.

Frenchman Has Edge in Three Rounds and Other Three Are Even.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8.—Fighting under wraps, Benny Valger shaded Jimmy Murphy in the feature bout at the Olympia Club tonight. Three of the rounds were even, while Valger had a shade the better of the other three. Benny did not fight in his usual form for some reason or other, probably because he was saving himself for his contest with Joe Welling, to be held at the National Club on Saturday.

Sunday Baseball Is Upheld.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8—The Supreme Court today upheld the decision of Judge Staake of the Philadelphia court, permitting Sunday baseball in Fairmont Park, the city playground. Sabbatarian associations and clergymen appealed from Judge Staake's decision. The proceedings aroused much public interest.

Boxer Protests the Decision After Being Declared Winner

APPLEBY IS WINNER IN HANDICAP MATCH

Overcomes Heavy Odds to Defeat Lewis in Billiard Tilt for Poggenberg Cup.

Playing the closing innings with all the finesse and expertness for which he is noted, Francis S. Appleby defeated Claude R. Lewis in the opening game of the handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament for the J. F. Poggenberg Cup at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. The score was 250 to 101. Being a Class A player, Appleby was called upon to play for 250 points, while Lewis, being a Class C player, was playing for 115. As a result of the handicap it is apparent that the match was closely contested and Appleby was far from winning as easily as the score might indicate at first glance. In reality Lewis was only beaten by fourteen points instead of losing by 149.

At the start of the game the player who recently finished fourth in the national Class A championship tournament at Boston was out of stroke. He could do little with the ivories, and it seemed that he was doomed to defeat. In the twenty-fourth inning the score was 91 to 87 in favor of Appleby, and there did not appear to be a chance for him to make his needed 159 points before Lewis was able to click off twenty-eight points. Yet that is just what Appleby succeeded in doing.

In his last eight innings Appleby made 159 buttons, averaging nearly 20 for this spurt. During this dash along the green cloth Appleby showed some of the best balkline billiards witnessed in an amateur contest this season. He concluded the game with an unfinished burst of 46 points, during which he gave an exhibition of open table and close billiards liberally interspersed with nurse shots and massés that repeatedly caused the big gallery to break into applause. All of his last six shots were hard ones. Several of them were almost fancy shots, but he was playing at his best and he tore them off as if they had been the simplest of ball-to-ball billiards.

The score by innings:

F. S. Appleby (250)—1 0 3 0 0 0 7 3 14 0 3 21 13 2 2 0 0 1 0 4 15 0 0 2 0 0 5 11 12 34 6 42 3 46. Total—250. High run—46. Average—7 12-34.

C. R. Lewis (115)—0 3 7 3 2 0 17 0 1 7 0 3 2 10 0 6 1 0 8 18 4 0 3 1 5 0 0 1 0 0 2 6. Total—101. High run—17. Average—3 2-33.

NATIONAL THREE-CUSHION BILLIARD STANDING.

Player.	W.	L.	H.R.	P.C.
W. Blumenthal	3	0	4	1.000
H. Frisch	2	0	6	1.000
J. Primakow	1	0	4	1.000
J. Cosgrove	2	1	5	.667
F. G. Owles	1	1	7	.500
H. Frantzen	1	2	5	.333
C. Maxwell	0	2	4	.000
G. E. Van Arsdale	0	4	5	.000

There are some who claim that Morpheus was the first three-cushion billiard player. There are others who assert that Rip Van Winkle was playing a match all the time he was away. At any rate it is generally admitted that the man who wrote "Home, Sweet Home" never played three-cushions. A man who plays three-cushions hasn't time to think of home, and the spectators think of nothing else.

So it was when Henry Frantzen and George Van Arsdale met in a match in the national three-cushion championship tournament of the American Amateur Billiard Association at Joe Thum's Academy last night. For 126 innings these two brave souls battled, and, at the end, the survivors in the gallery testified that Frantzen had won by a score of 50 to 43. They were 126 innings of the most listless and uninteresting billiards that have been perpetrated in the current jamboree. Not once during the entire proceedings did either player call a deliberate safety, yet the game might just as well have been played in the wastes of Texas, so much "oil" was dicovered by the rivals.

Frantzen's high run was 6, and he also had two clusters of 4. Van Arsdale's best was a collection of 3. To print the score by innings would be like publishing a photograph of a porous plaster. The scorekeeper remarked after the game he never knew there were so many ciphers in arithmetic.

OFFER TROPHY FOR U. S. PRO GOLFERS

British Linksmen Take Action in Recognition of Assistance During War.

A British prize medal, to be competed for at the P. G. A. championship in this country, is the latest phase of the good feeling in golf which cements England to the United States. Alex Pirie, Secretary of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, yesterday received a letter from England, with the information that a trophy is being made in commemoration of the help the pro golfers of this side gave to the English pros during the war.

Robert Perrins, Secretary of the Professional Golfers' Association of England, in his letter, explained that the medal is to be put up for competition at the P. G. A. tournament in this country in August. Under the conditions it will become the permanent property of the pro winning it twice in succession, or of the pro who wins it for the third time. It will accompany the award of the Wanamaker diamond medal, which goes with the P. G. A. championship. The Wanamaker medal has been held by Jim Barnes during the two years of the P. G. A. events.

Perrins's letter to Secretary Pirie follows in part:

"I have further pleasure in informing you that on the proposition of Mr. J. H. Taylor, our Chairman, the Executive Committee unanimously resolved that our association should present the P. G. A. of America with a challenge gold medal, to be played for at their annual championship as a small recognition of the generous help and assistance which was rendered to our association by the American P. G. A. during the war. It was suggested that any of your members winning the medal in two consecutive years or three times in all should become the owner of the medal, and I have accordingly given instructions to the makers to prepare such a medal."

The help and assistance during the war referred to in Perrins's letter was the action of the professionals of this country in sending contributions for tobacco, cigarettes and other gifts for the English pros who served at the front. Arthur J. Balfour, who is President of the British association, has continually shown interest in the activities.

GAMMONS IS MEDALIST.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 8.—Four flights qualified today in the Palm Beach Amateur Golf Championship, which developed the best cards in tournament play here this season. The medalist was John A. Gammons, President of the Wannamoissett Country Club of Providence, R. I., whose card of 70 represented par golf.

He was out in four over threes, using only eight putts in the first 7 holes. Running down a lucky approach gave him a 2 on the eighth.

WOMEN'S SCORES ARE HIGH.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 8.—Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago won the medal in the qualifying round of the Belleair Women's Golf championship, which began today. Miss Cummings scored 97, but might have done better had she not mussed up the long sixteenth with an eight.

Those qualifying were:

Jay Gould again won the squash tennis championship of the Columbia University Club yesterday afternoon, when he easily defeated Fred S. Keeler in the final round by scores of 15—3, 15—4, 15—4. The speed of the world's court tennis champion was entirely too much for the slower-moving and softer-hitting veteran, and in general the winner captured his points by merely smashing the ball up and down the court with the full power of his wrist and forearm. The entire match was over in thirty-three minutes, which is almost record-breaking time for a final.

In the first two games Keeler was clearly outclassed, the first being over in nine hands and the second lasting only ten. In the final session, however, the loser gathered all his resources together and succeeded in holding the champion off for seventeen hands before succumbing to inevitable defeat. Changes of pace and clever placements were Keeler's chief assets, and his generalship often drove the far faster Gould into costly errors. The latter lost the majority of his points by hitting the ball so hard that it struck above the line on the back wall, and some of these shots were so close that the Keeler telltale had to make the decisions.

The challenger was exceedingly unsteady at the start, and a streak of ungovernable wildness sent Gould into a long lead with no less than 7 aces in his first hand in. This proved to be the longest run of the match, the champion failing to score more than 4 in a row thereafter. A 3 and a 4 sufficed to complete the first game after Keeler had registered 3 singles.

In the second game both players went scoreless for two hands, after which Gould made his service count half a dozen times in succession, completing his 15 while Keeler was gathering 4 hard-won points.

In the final session the tallies were slow in coming, although Gould put a 3 to his credit on his second service. Keeler was unable to pick up more than one ace at a time, going scoreless for the first five hands, and Gould was content to make his points singly and in pairs up to the finish at 15—4.

In the Class B event Harold Kellock yesterday entered the semi-final round by defeating F. S. Simonds in three well-played games by score of 10—15, 15—11, 15—8. The loser's speed gave him the opening game and had him well on the way to victory in the second, but Kellock's superior knowledge of court tactics came to his rescue, and, after squaring the match by a narrow margin he won handily in the rubber.

Class B, Third Round—Harold Kellock defeated F. S. Simonds, 10—15, 15—11, 15—8.

FAST TIME IS MADE IN SKATING TRIALS

Finalists Picked for Metropolitan Quarter and Half Mile Championships.

Preliminary and semi-final heats for the Metropolitan A. A. U. indoor skating championships at a quarter and half mile brought out some close contests last night at the 181st Street Ice Palace. In the quarter, Baker, Boyd, Kieran and Murphy will fight it out for final honors, while in the half the championship rests among Hearn, Baker, Boyd, Reiner, Murphy and Gershal.

Jimmie Kieran figured in the fastest heats and the closest finish in the 440-yard dash. In his preliminary heat Kieran defeated William Murphy in 49 4-5 seconds, and the same two speeders finished in the same order in the first of their semi-final encounters. The two were not more than a foot apart at the end of this heat, which was skated in 49 2-5 seconds, excellent time for a small track. In the grand semi-finals, Murphy and Kieran were drawn in separate heats, and both finished second, Baker winning from Murphy and Boyd from Kieran. Harvey Carter and Irving Reiner finished third in the two grand semi-final heats, but did not qualify.

Finals of these two events, as well as of the 220-yard dash and the mile race, in which the preliminaries and semi-finals were contested two weeks ago, will be held at the 181st Street rink on March 22, and to the same program there will be added a special three-mile handicap race.

TOMES IS SQUASH WINNER.

Two of the highest ranking entries in the Winter handicap Class B squash tennis tournament of the Harvard Club met yesterday afternoon in the second round, and the result was the elimination of F. S. Whitlock by A. H. Tomes in straight games, scored 15—10, 15—5. The latter was runner up in the national Class B championship this season, while his rival had reached the semi-finals of the same tournament, losing to the eventual winner of the event, William Adams, Jr., by the narrowest possible margin. It was, therefore, an unusually interesting meeting, and served to establish the significance of Tomes among the coming stars of the game.

The summaries:

First Round—H. Munroe (plus 6) defeated G. J. Emmett (plus 6), 15—1, 15—10.
feated F. S. Whitlock (minus 5), 15—10,

Leader, Brocco. Record 577 miles and 9 laps, made by Clark and Root in 1914.

While ten thousand enthusiasts stood up and cheered wildly or otherwise gave vent to their emotions, Maurice Brocco and his partner, Charles Deruyter, composing the Italian-Belgian team, stole a lap on the field of fourteen pairs in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden last night. For this they won the $1,000 prize offered by the management for the team that would accomplish this feat and at the same time placed themselves in an excellent position to win the race.

The lap was stolen while the teams were in the ninth of the series of ten sprints which comprised the schedule for the evening. Up to that time Brocco and his partner had not scored in a srint and had been unplaced among the first six teams in each instance.

Sudden Brocco appeared high up on the Madison Afenue curve and with a great rush of speed swept down on his field and passed the riders before anyone sensed what he was up to. Before the first of the riders could bestir himself into action, Brocco was nearly half a lap out in front and peddaling for his life.

Garden a Roar of Noise.

Deruyter relieved him and kept up the furious pace and, after a lap or two, while the crowd began to lealise what was happening there was pandemonium in the big arena. Hats were thrown into the air, staid, mild-tempered men forgot and gave free reign to their enthusiasm.

The thirteen other riders on the track began to chase the leader. They changed pace makers with every lap and soon the track was one mass of riders, with one bunch whirling on to catch the leaders and the other bunch out to relieve their partners.

For a few laps the main group of riders lost track of the pair who were stealing the lap, and while Brocco and his partner were steadily gaining the others acted as though they were bewildered. There is no doubt but that the entire field was taken by surprise.

Deruyter was the one who finally drew up on the field and closed in to clinch the lap. He held the track for six laps to do this and, riding like a man inspired, he gained on such great sprinters as Alfred Goullet and Oscar Egg. When he finally drew up and rode into the bunch he was a tired but happy rider and the crowd fairly went wild.

By stealing the lap Brocco and his partner won both of the last two sprints, and until they are caught by the field will continue to win every sprint in which points count, regardless of the position in which they finish in each of the tests.

At the conclusion of the sprints last night the Italian-Belgian team was far back in the matter of points gained in sprints, but if the riders can hold their lead for the next two or three days they will gather enough points to put them far ahead. The other riders were tired completely after the chase, which lasted several minutes, and there was no attempt by any of them to gain back the lap.

Four Teams Twice Lapped.

In all this excitement four teams were twice lapped. These were Bello and Madonna, Weber and Staehle, Bowker and Bowker, and Byron and Markey.

In a jam that was started at midnight by Spiessens in an effort to regain the lap stolen by Brocco and his partner two of the teams lost another lap each. These were Bowker and Bowker, and Markey and Byron. They are now three laps behind the leaders.

The series of sprints left Oscar Egg and Eddie Madden leading in points, with Goullet-Magin second and Spencer-Drobach third. In the actual standing of the race, however, these teams are all one lap behind the leaders.

The riders were far behind the record at midnight despite their sprints and the stolen lap. They appeared to be only slightly concerned with the records, and when not forced to put on speed were content to take it easy and just keep in motion.

Spencer-Drobach	61	Brocco-Deruyter	15
Buysse-Spiessens	50	Lang-Chapman	14
Kaiser-Hill	38	Byron-Markey	8
Dupuy-Hanley	31	Bello-Madona	4
Coburn-Kopsky	28	Bowker-Bowker	0

Maryland House Passes Prince George Bill by 62 to 24.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 8.—The House tonight, by a vote of 62 to 24, passed the bill creating a racing commission for Prince George County to regulate the Bowie track. Should this bill pass the Senate and the Statewide Racing Commission bill, regulating all four tracks, Pimlico, Havre de Grace, Bowie, and Laurel, and imposing a tax of $6,000 each day during each meeting, become a law, the Prince George County bill, which provides for a daily $1,000 tax on the Bowie track, would be nullified.

The race track people construe tonight's vote in the House as a test vote indicating the defeat of the bill against race track gambling and the passage of the Statewide Commission bill.

A. U., materialize. Mr. Obertubessing last night announced that he has arranged a meeting for the latter part of the month, at which local followers of A. A. U. sports will discuss the prospects for such a league.

TO HOLD RACES OVER AGAIN.

Dissatisfaction Among Express Cruiser Owners Prompts Decision.

MIAMI, Fla., March 8.—Dissatisfaction among the owners of the express cruisers that competed in the annual motor races here last week has led to the decision by the Racing Committee of the regatta to hold the five races over again, starting Wednesday.

A piece of flannel, wrapped around the timing apparatus of the Altonia, owned by A. C. Newby of Indianapolis, which forced that boat to drop out, has caused talk of irregularities.

18-Year-Old Schoolboy Is Regular Human Grasshopper

At Moses Brown School in Providence, R. I., there is a remarkable standing broad jumper who will probably gain a place on the American Olympic team which will compete at Antwerp next Summer. He is Irving Reid, an 18-year-old lad, and he has cleared 10 feet 4 inches in competition and recently in a practice jump is reported to have cleared two inches further.

He will compete in the national indoor championships at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory on March 13. William H. Taylor, America's leading broad jumper, won the title last year with a jump of 10 feet 5¾ inches. The year previous the winner cleared only 10 feet 2½ inches.

HALL PROVES BEST IN FENCING SERIES

After fighting his way through a field of nine fencers, six of whom were present or past title holders, Sherman Hall of the New York A. C., national foils champion, won the three-weapon competition of the Amateur Fencers' League of America at the N. Y. A. C. last night. With the victory went the gold medal offered by Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, President of the league.

Arthur S. Lyon, the present national sabre title holder, representing the Fencers' Club of this city, carried off second prize, a silver medal. Third honors, a bronze trophy, went to Steddiford Pitt of the N. Y. A. C., who won the intercollegiate championship when he was at Columbia University in 1914.

Besides the three winners, the other competitors were George H. Breed, Fencers' Club, former national foils champion; Leo Numes, N. Y. A. C., former national épée champion; Major Harold Raynor, Washington Fencers' Club, intercollegiate foils champion in 1912, and J. B. B. Parker, former intercollegiate title holder.

The finals saw the unique situation of one title holder beating another with the latter's own weapon. In the sabre finals Hall routed Lyon by 5 touches to 3, and by beating the latter at his own game obtained the one bout needed to win. He clinched the issue a few minutes later by outpointing Numes, 5 to 2.

Four fencers of the original ten survived the preliminary rounds and entered the finals, which consisted of six bouts in each weapon, foils, sabre and épée. The successful quartet was Hall, Lyon, Pitt and Numes. Of his nine matches in the concluding round Hall won six, three with the foils, two with the sabre, and one with the épée.

Lyon's unexpected defeat in the sabre clash with Hall was disastrous to the Fencers' Club representative and spoiled his only chance to forge ahead of the foils champion. Lyon's final bout score was 5, and Pitt was a close third, with 4.

Others entered were Colonel George B. Vidmer, Washington (D. C.) Fencers' Club; Leon Schoonmaker, Fencers' Club, and Louis M. Fleisher, Fencers' Club of Philadelphia.

ARNOLD WINS AGAIN DESPITE HANDICAP

Carries Added Weight to Second Successive Victory in New Orleans Feature.

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—Although carrying additional weight as a penalty for his winning effort last week, C. A. Applegate's Arnold scored his second successive victory at Jefferson Park today by capturing the Bonet Clare Handicap, a sprint at five and a half furlongs, in which he again gave a flash of his best speed. He led home Mahoney by a length, after a hard ride in the stretch, and the latter just saved the place from Ticklish by a nose. It was an exceedingly cold day for New Orleans and there was a flurry of snow during the afternoon.

Arnold's victory today was the more impressive because he was obliged to take up two more pounds than in his last race, his impost being 126 pounds, and to all except Tacola he gave away much weight, Marmite carrying but 92 against the burden on the winner. But the consistency with which Arnold has raced here, this being twelve times that he has finished among the first three in as many times at the post, caused him to well backed despite the weight. Arnold has raced with better horses than he met today, but not often with as much weight as he carried this time. He was sent to the post a 13 to 5 favorite, with Ticklish the second choice.

It was not an easy victory for Arnold, for he was forced to extend himself all the way, though he ran as if in fine condition. But he had to contend against first one and then another of his rivals, which alternately challenged him.

Jockey Wida had a good day in the saddle and rode three winners, besides finishing second in one event.

The Silks Being Liquidated.

According to a leading factor in the silk market, the goods being liquidated by small jobbers consist of weaves quickly manufactured, such as crepe de chines and georgettes. A large part of this merchandise, he said, is composed of cheap and inferior materials made up when goods were eagerly sought and buyers were willing to overlook many faults in construction. He explained that retail stores as well as jobbers have a surplus of materials, and garments manufactured from them, that were made up "at a price." Suffering from this surfeit of inferior goods, it has become necessary to sell them out at reduced prices. Meanwhile, the better grades of silk are not subject to price weakness and, as soon as the situation becomes more settled, the manufacturers look for the end of what they consider merely a temporary lull.

An exhibition of the various uses to which cartridge silk may be put was opened yesterday at the Bush Terminal Sales Building and will be continued for two weeks with daily sessions from 10 to noon and from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Models designed by the leading couturiers were shown on living models and included sport suits, negliges, riding habits, cloaks, suits and dresses. Men's, boys' and children's clothing is also shown. There were between six and seven hundred manufacturers, designers and department store representatives who attended the exhibition yesterday. The purpose of the display was to show how well the material "makes up."

Prices High, but Not Paid.

In discussing the price situation in silks, a wholesaler stated yesterday that while some of the smaller manufacturers have bought raw silk at the former record prices, that is, up to $18, none of the larger producers took chances at that level. He stated that dealers in the raw material can expect a very quiet demand until the price gets down to $12.50. At that figure, he explained, a large part of the material was bought that was put into goods for last Fall, and very little for Spring goods was purchased at $16 and upward.

While prices kept advancing and the tendency on the part of consumers was to take the highest priced articles, the retail stores, it seems, paid little attention to descreasing sales units. As a leading retailer explained it, the "easiest way" for the stores was to congratulate themselves on record sales totals. With signs of more normal conditions ahead, however, the number of sales is once more becoming of first importance and, in this merchant's opinion, the retail trade from now on may be expected to indulge itself in an "orgy" of reduction sales in the effort to build up the number of customers.

How the Mill Man Feels.

Although the mill representative is a rarity who will concede that prices for woolens are due for a drop, there is often a hint given of the secret opinion of these sellers. For instance, after rehearsing the various reasons why materials cannot decline in price for some time to come, a selling agent announced yesterday with all frankness that he was "not in the market for a new suit." He explained that, while his supply of clothing was beginning to show the effects of wear, he had no intention of buying another suit at the prices being asked. The disparity between the arguments he advanced for the product he sold and his ideas on clothing prices did not seem to be evident to him.

Feathers on the underbrims make up one of the popular new trimmings of women's hats for Spring. Little "clumps" of ostrich are tacked on the underbrim over the ears of the wearer. Pretty fluffy bands of ostrich also outline some of the underbrims, the flues being tightly curled in order to prevent shadowing the eyes. In the case of one attractive copper-colored dress hat seen here, a bandeau raised it slightly from the hair, thereby giving more depth to the brim in order that a long ostrich quill of the same color could be laid on the underside and be finished off with a curly little tip. Another novel hat, of fine black neapolitan straw, is made with the brim partly curled under at the edge. A fluffy ostrich band follows the under line of the brim and a second band of ostrich is similarly placed above it.

Gray Goods Sales Quiet.

Sales were again limited in the local market for gray goods yesterday, the feature of the printcloth end of the business being the disposal of March-May lots of 39-inch 72-76s at 26½ cents. This construction is said to be getting much of the demand that used to go to 80 squares. Other printcloth business included March deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 64-60s at 23 and 22 cents, respectively. Fine-yarn cloths were inactive, and about the only thing of interest in the sheetings was the selling of 5.50-yard goods, for this month's delivery, at 16 cents. Buyers paid 40 cents for March lots of 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens.

Our Machetes Helping Out.

American-made machetes, those instruments which were used with such deadly effect during the Cuban revolution against Spain, are now helping the world to solve its problem of sweetening its coffee and icing its cakes. In peace times the chief duty of the machete is to cut sugar cane, which, because of the density with which it grows and the toughness of the stalks, cannot be harvested by an ordinary cutting machine. The machete, which is really a knife with a long blade—often a yard long—set in a short handle, not only cuts the cane with a single slash, but is also used to trim the leaves and chop the long stalks into lengths that can be handled easily. Thousands of these knives are now being shipped by American cutlery manufacturers to plantations in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Java.

Manufacturers Are Not Pleased.

While things appear smooth enough on the surface, rumor has it that there is a strong undertone of dissatisfaction among the broad silk and ribbon manufacturers against certain sellers of raw silk in this market. This feeling has crystallized as a result of the issuance by the Silk Association of America of figures showing the amount of the raw material on hand in local warehouses while prices were being forced up on the strength of reported shortages in the primary markets. Only recently, for instance, the contention was advanced here that avalable supplies in Yokohama were from 16,000 to 17,000 bales less than at that time a year ago, but at the same time, according to the association's report, there were abo 44,000 bales of Japanese raw silks in storage here. In the absence of comparative figures on silks in storage here at the same time in 1919, the manufacturers do not know ust how strong a case they have, but the feeling is th there has been an unwarranted boosting of prices.

Dressmakers' Supplies Booming.

One of the things which the higher cost of women's ready-to-wear garments has done has been materially to increase the demand for dressmakers' services. While not a great deal of money is to be saved by patronizing most of them, due to the increased cost of their own services and that of their helpers, as well as the higher prices for materials, trimmings, &c., the feeling seems to be among women that better garments can be obtained in this way than in purchasing them ready made. The increased patronage of the dressmakers is evident, in turn, in the larger sales of the dressmakers' supply houses. It was said yesterday that not for years, if really ever before, has this business been as active as it has in the last few weeks. With Easter not far away, even more activity is expected in the next two or three weeks.

UNIFORMITY

THE fur of animals is never free from irregularity. The back differs from the belly—the neck from the haunch—no two parts possessing identical characteristics.

They all wear differently. They are all graded and priced differently, according to the furrier's skill and judgment.

Shelton Looms Synthetic Furs are UNIFORM throughout—every yard wears alike. And yet they are practically indistinguishable from animal furs.

U. S. COURT YIELDS TO DEFIANT SILENCE

Judge Hand Decides He Was Punished Enough "for Peculiarly Obstinate Temperament."

After spending two years in Ludlow Street Jail for refusing to give information to a Federal Grand Jury against Jeremiah O'Leary in May, 1918, John Gill, ex-President of the Bricklayers' Union here, was ordered released yesterday by United States District Judge Augustus N. Hand.

"While this witness has apparently persisted in his course because of a peculiarly obstinate temperament, he has already been severely punished," said Judge Hand, "and I am not inclined to keep him longer in confinement just because he appears to be extremely unreasonable. I can see no benefit to the administration of justice in punishing him further. He is, therefore, discharged on the ground that he has been sufficiently punished for his contumacy."

Judge Hand said that Gill first was brought before him on June 19, 1918, and, telling of the case, cites this record of the Court of Appeals:

"John Gill testified before the Grand Jury that in the Spring of 1918 he took an automobile trip to Newburgh, N. Y.; that a man named Willard J. Robinson, known to him as Bobbie Lewis, was with him; that the said witness, John Gill, was then asked before the Grand Jury whether a man named Arthur Lyones did not also go along, and that said witness declined and refused to answer the question; that the said witness did not claim that the answer to the questions would tend to incriminate or degrade him and did not claim any privilege whatsoever."

The Grand Jury returned indictments charging conspiracy to commit treason and espionage against Jeremiah O'Leary, John T. Ryan of Buffalo, Willard Robinson, Emil Kipper, Albert Paul Fricke, Lieut. Commander Hermann Wessels of the once Imperial German Navy and the Baroness Maria von Kretschmann. The prosecution of Wessels, known also as Carl Rodiger, was taken over by the Navy Department and his trial by court-martial is to begin at the Brooklyn Navy Yard in a few days.

WANTS POLICE PISTOLS OUT.

Magistrate McAdoo Says Weapons Should Be Easier to Draw.

Chief Magistrate William McAdoo announced yesterday that he had advised the Police Commissioner to authorize the uniformed members of the department to carry weapons in belt or holster, similar to military form.

The custom of policemen of carrying revolvers in an inside pocket and always beneath buttoned and belted-uniform coats, said the Magistrate, had cost the lives of numerous policemen, because they had been unable to reach a weapon quickly in swift attack.

COPELAND TO FIGHT PLAGUE

Says Port Will Be Well Guarded Against Foreign Diseases.

Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland said yesterday he agreed with Surgeon General H. S. Cumming that there was grave danger of an invasion of typhus, bubonic and other plagues from the Levant, but that danger was lessened by the fact that resistance to disease is higher in this country than in Europe. The Surgeon General pointed out this menace upon his return Sunday from a tour of inspection abroad.

"For at least eighteen months I have recognized the importance of guarding the port against a possible invasion of typhus, smallpox and bubonic plague," said Dr. Copeland. "During the last eighteen months, with the exception of three or four cases of typhus and a dozen of smallpox, these diseases have been unknown in this city. It is proper, of course, for Surgeon General Cumming to call to the attention of the country the possibility of an invasion of disease from abroad. At this time every means of defense should be employed, for grave danger does exist.

"The importance of watchfulness at the port cannot be overemphasized, for were a case of cholera to slip through and get into the watershed country and contaminate the water, any epidemic we have had would seem like a Summer picnic in comparison. We do not intend that such a calamity should happen."

There are more cases of enceptalitis lethargica, or sleeping sickness, in New York than ever before, Dr. Copeland said. "Since Jan. 1 there have been 175 cases of sleeping sickness, with 40 deaths," he added.

$100,000 a Year for Geddes; New Envoy Received by King

LONDON, March 8.—The British Ambassador at Washington will hereafter receive £20,000 yearly. His salary will be £2,500 and entertainment allowance £17,500.

The Government arranged the finances of the office on the basis of depriving itself of income tax to give the Ambassador an adequate income. The previous salary (£10,000) was largely eaten up by the income tax. Of Sir Auckland's £20,000 only the £2,500 is taxable.

EX-KAISER'S COUSIN PUT UNDER ARREST

BARRED FROM RESTAURANT

Cooks and Waiters in Hotel Where Prince Started Riot Refuse to Serve Him.

BERLIN, March 8.—Gustav Noske, Minister of Defense, has ordered the provisional arrest of Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, cousin of former Emperor William, and Baron von Platen for an assault upon Captain Roughevin, a French officer with the interallied mission in this city, at the Adlon Hotel on Saturday night.

Prince Joachim is said to be already under arrest at the police prefecture.

According to the newspapers this afternoon, the French Chargé d'Affaires and General Nollet, chief of the French Military Mission in Berlin, had a conversation with the Foreign Minister today regarding the Hotel Adlon incident. The Foreign Minister is said to have expressed his regret over the incident, and promised that the culprits would be punished.

It is added that a high Foreign Office official today visited Captain Klein, one of the French party in the hotel at the time of the disturbance, to inquire as to his condition.

The heads of the Interallied Commissions have decided to refer the Adlon episode to the Supreme Council at London for official action. They deem this advisable rather than to permit the incident to remain the subject of negotiations between France and Germany.

Newspapers of all shades of opinion express regret over the happening at the Adlon. The conservative organs point out that the Prince was responsible for giving the signal for the attack, which is termed by the Welt-am-Montag the "Hohenzollern victory at the Adlon."

The caption placed over the account of the incident by Die Freiheit is "Prince's Knavish Escapade." It alleges that for weeks an increasing effort has been manifested in Nationalist circles in Berlin to revive the spirit of 1914 and provoke collisions with persons holding opposing views, especially representatives of the Entente.

The Kreuz-Zeitung refers to the affair as an "unpleasant" one and thinks it needs a more searching investigation. The comment of Vorwaerts is: "Such disgusting scenes could not have happened in a workingman's public house," while the Morgen Post says: "The urgent warnings of competent quarters against such things deserve serious attention."

Prince was Leader in Riotous Scene.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 7.—Prince Joachim Albrecht, cousin of the ex-Kaiser, was in the Adlon Hotel restaurant Saturday night, when he became the "hero" of a riotous scene such as he apparently had been longing for for some time. time.

This Prince, who is one of those persons who harbors the hallucination that Germany won the war, has been in the habit of giving a gratuity to the orchestra in the restaurant to induce the musicians to play "Deutschland Uber Alles." When he had thus got the tune to be played Saturday night, two French officers in civilian clothes, one accompanied by his wife, did not stand up. When it was seen that they were not standing, cries of "Stand up" began to be shouted.

Then the outwardly dignified Prince Joachim became the chief actor in the scene. He began to shout in a most provocative fashion. Others joined in, and the music soon was drowned by shouts of "Stand up!" "Put them out!" and other remarks of an insulting character. A champagne bottle flew dangerously across the room, and candles, with which the restaurant is lighted after 9:30 P. M., and wine glasses, some of which the Prince's hand sped on their way, soon were flying in all directions.

This wild mêlée was evidently to the Prince's taste. Leaving his place, he began a rush toward the French officers' table. Already, however, the Frenchmen were being attacked by other "patriotic" roughs, in numbers of about six to one.

Happily there were a few Germans present who were disgusted by the scene. They stopped the Prince's rush, telling him to control himself and to remember at least that Germany lost the war. "No!" yelled the angry royal personage. "We won it."

By this time the guests were rushing out of the restaurant, and the Frenchmen might have suffered more had not several waiters made a cordon around them. As it was, one officer had his clothes badly torn, while the other received a bruise on his forehead.

This provocative playing of "Deutschland Ueber Alles," generally at the Prince's request, in a restaurant where there always are many foreigners has been going on some time, and the performance has more and more assumed the shape of a nationalistic demonstration, so that something like Saturday night's scene was bound to happen.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm's cousin already has made himself objectionable in several other hotels, and if he goes on and gets himself put out, as in this case, he soon will find it difficult to discover a restaurant in which to dine.

It is remarked that the Pan German press does not say much regarding this exhibition of Pan Germanism. Only the Deutsche Zeitung ventures comment, in which it says Noske's action is an unheard-of faux pas in favor of the French. Democratic and Socialist papers are angry, indeed.

"It will be the people, of course, who will have, as always, to pay for Hohenzollern escapades," says the Welt am Montag. Vorwärts bluntly declares the Prince was drunk. "It has been said," the Socialist organ declares, "that the Hohenzollerns are poor. Yet this scion of the tribe apparently has enough money to enable him to drink expensive wines," and the journal suggests that provision of funds for such ornamental people should have good behavior as a condition.

Of course, Prince Joachim has issued denials, but too many persons observed his outburst to leave any doubt regarding the main facts.

The Freiheit sneers at the Prince as having had his scene and then not having the courage to stand by his acts. "The people," adds the independent Socialist organ, "have had enough of this, and it's time for the Government to take energetic measures."

Years ago Prince Joachim, who still inhabits his big palace in Wilhelmstrasse, left the Prussian Army on account of his morganatic marriage with an actress. He joined again and was wounded in the great war.

Not long ago this same Prince made something of a scene in the Adlon restaurant by roundly swearing at "Jews and war profiteers," with whom, he maintained, the restaurant was filled. On another occasion his friends had to prevent him from heaving heavy candelabra at a maimed British ex-flying officer who did not stand up when the national hymn was played.

Wouldn't Cook for Prince.

Monday—Prince Joachim had the audacity to appear again in the hotel on Sunday afternoon in quest of luncheon. He was met at the entrance of the restaurant and was informed the cooks refused to prepare any dishes for him and the waiters would refuse to serve him. With many expressions of his opinions, couched in anything but princely language, Prince Joachim beat a retreat.

It is reported today that Foreign Minister Noske ordered the "preventive arrest" of the Prince and his right hand man, Captain von Platen. There may be a diplomatic sequel to Saturday night's scene, as such an impudent provocation hardly can be overlooked by the French authorities, even though the two officers whom the Prince and his friends insulted were in mufti.

There is much discussion here today regarding the incident. It is maintained that "Deutschland über Alles" is not the national hymn of the German Republic or even of the German Empire, and that if there is any national hymn it is "Heil Dir im Siegerkranz," which is sung to the tune of "God Save the King."

It appears now that another prince had his Pan-German blood so roused by wine and music that he could not resist taking part in the fracas of Saturday night. He is a Prince Hohenlohe. His chief contribution to the riot was to take off his shoe and belabor the Frenchmen with it. A Count Metternich did much to calm the storm. "You," he said to Prince Joachim, "you call yourself Prince! Why, it is you and your family who have been Germany's misfortune."

Avoid Verbosity

The New York Times urges all advertisers to be concise in their announcements. Verbose text often defeats its purpose and occupies more space than the importance of an announcement justifies.

Owing to the shortage of newsprint paper and the limitation The Times has placed on its pages, many columns of advertisements are frequently omitted. Much disappointment that results can be avoided by the careful preparation of concisely worded announcements.

Today 67 columns of advertising are crowded out.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, candidate for the nomination as President on the Republican ticket, who was one of the group of Republican leaders who fought the late Theodore Roosevelt in 1912, believes that the factional struggle should be forgotten and not permitted by Roosevelt followers to influence them against his candidacy.

The Senator was scheduled to deliver an address in Topeka, Kan., tonight, and excerpts of his prepared speech were issued here for publication, and attracted no little interest. One of the statements contained in the excerpts is as to the position of Senator Harding, that had he lived Col. Roosevelt would have been nominated by the Republicans at Chicago this year by acclamation.

The hostility of progressive elements in the Republican Party to Senator Harding, partly because of his share in defeating Col. Roosevelt for the Republican nomination in 1912, and partly because it has been alleged that he is the candidate of the Penrose-Lodge faction in the party today, has been the cause of not a few sleepless nights on the part of the Harding campaign managers.

"I magnify no posthumous claims to an intimate friendship with Col. Roosevelt, and could have no title to his political mantle, even if such bestowal were possible in this Republic," says Senator Harding. "On the other hand, I vigorously opposed him in 1912, just as he typically opposed the regular wing of the Republican Party, to which I adhered.

"My concord with Col. Roosevelt came shortly after our party's defeat in 1916. He invited me to a conference, and I gladly responded. We did not dwell long on the differences of 1912. That was an old story. He thought his course was justified, and we jointly deplored the result, but he did insist we must all get together and save the country through a Republican restoration; that the Republican Party was the one agency through which to give highest service, and through the compact of council cooperation was made then and there, and in many conferences afterwards I came to know how deeply he felt the necessity of all Republicans uniting to effect the party supremacy so essential to the nation's good.

"If he had lived he would have been the Republican nominee by acclamation. It is poor proof of devotion and poorer evidence of the inheritance of the political wisdom which marked his matchless career to parade the mistakes of 1912 to inspire a victory in 1920. More, it is not progressive, it is retrogressive. I chose a party and leadership which appraises men and issues of today and thinks not of the differences of yesterday, but the victory of tomorrow."

WARNS REPUBLICAN WOMEN.

Support Party, Not "Personalities," Urges J. R. Sheffield.

James R. Sheffield, former President of the National Republican Club and a candidate for district delegate to the National Convention, spoke yesterday at the last of the weekly meetings at the clubhouse in West Fortieth Street under the auspices of the Republican Women's State Executive Committee, of which Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore is the Chairman. A school will be conducted for the women next Monday and Tuesday, at which Mrs. William Vanamee will be the instructor. George A. Glynn, State Republican Chairman, will address the school on Monday afternoon.

It is poor policy to vote for a "personality" instead of a man with a party backing, said Mr. Sheffield, adding that it would be a "one-man government" if the man without a party were elected. The greatest work of the coming National Convention, he said, was the framing of a platform and not the selection of a candidate.

"In order to establish your right as a loyal citizen, willing to undertake your burdens, you have got to take part yourself in the government," said Mr. Sheffield. "If you are not your own masters in government you will be the slaves of some one else."

FIGHT IS ON IN DISTRICTS

Trouble in the Republican Party in this State, which may lead to an open break in the National Convention, similar to that which divided the party in 1912, when Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Hiram W. Johnson led the Progressive Party bolt, came to a head yesterday when Senator Johnson's campaign managers bitterly complained of the methods of the Old Guard Republican leaders in New York in selecting delegates to the convention.

The Johnson managers declared that the Republican organization was as hopelessly under the domination of the old stand-pat reactionary bosses as it was eight years ago, and was seeking to lead the rank and file of the party into blindly working its will. The same methods, they said, were being employed in other States, and that the party bosses hoped to have such complete control of the Chicago Convention as to prevent any expression of popular sentiment and bring about the nomination of a man of their own selection.

In support of this contention Angus McSween, Eastern campaign manager of Senator Johnson's candidacy, pointed out that the district delegates nominated by the Republican State Committee from the New York districts were for the greater part the same men selected in 1912 and 1916. "Everybody knows," commented Mr. McSween, "what the country though of their accomplishments on those occasions."

The Johnson men are particularly incensed at what they term the "carpet bagging" work of the Republican leaders in New York City. In order to make sure that a number of so-called stand-patters will reach the convention as delegates, the leaders have selected at least a half dozen prominent Republicans all living in the Seventeenth Congressional District to represent other districts in the city. Among the delegates who live in the Seventeenth district, which is known as the "Silk Stocking" district of the city but who will represent other districts are: Chauncey M. Depew, for the Eleventh; former Governor Charles S. Whitman, for the Eighteenth; Jules S. Bache, for the Twentieth; Ogden L. Mills, for the Eighteenth; William Howard Taft, for the Fifteenth, and Robert L. Bacon, for the First.

Call Miss Boswell "Carpetbagger."

Herbert Parsons and Arthur J. Berwind are the delegates for the Seventeenth District. In the First District, which takes in Nassau and Suffolk Counties on Long Island, the Republicans originally selected G. Wilbur Doughty, but he was persuaded to retire in favor of Mr. Bacon, who has a country residence in the district, but whose New York City home is in the Seventeenth District. Miss Helen Varick Boswell is described as another "carpetbagger," as she will be a delegate from the Thirteenth District, although living in the Nineteenth. The Johnson managers have decided not to put a candidate in the field to oppose Miss Boswell at the primaries, because she is a woman. In twelve other districts, however, Johnson candidates will oppose the regular Republican organization selections.

The Johnson managers have picked former Senator William M. Bennett as a candidate for delegate at large to oppose one of the "Big Four" selections of the Republican organization at the primaries on April 6, and his nominating petition was filed at Albany yesterday. He plans a vigorous campaign to show the strength of Senator Johnson throughout the State. In addition to the eleven districts previously announced in which Johnson delegates are to run, two delegates will make the contest in the Eleventh District against Chauncey M. Depew and George Cromwell, former Borough President of Richmond. Besides taking in Staten Island, the Eleventh Congressional District includes a section of the lower part of Manhattan.

Wood Managers Undisturbed.

Just how far the managers of Major General Leonard Wood's campaign share in the Johnson feeling against the New York Republican Old Guard could not be learned, but it was said that since Frank H. Hitchcock has joined the ranks of Wood managers, much of the feeling of dissatisfaction originally felt against the methods of the Republican leaders has disappeared.

Robert L. Bacon was a caller at the Wood headquarters and said he was in favor of the nomination of General Wood. Several prominent Wood supporters in the city have urged the Wood managers to run delegates in New York against the organization's selection, but the local managers are said to be opposed to the plan.

At the Wood headquarters it was declared that after General Wood had conferred last Saturday with Representative Lufkin of Massachusetts, in charge of the Wood campaign in that State, it was suggested that a Massachusetts man should propose the nomination of the General in the Chicago convention to be seconded probably by a Kansas man.

It was announced that General Wood would make a State-wide tour of Ohio shortly before the primaries there on April 17. Word came from William Cooper Procter, national campaign manager for Wood, that the General would receive a majority of the ballots cast in preferential primary in Illinois on April 13 and that the delegates selected by the State Convention on May 10 would be morally bound to vote for Wood at Chicago.

OHIO WOOD MEN ORGANIZE.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—Followers of General Leonard Wood held an organization meeting here today preparing for the canvass for delegates and the preferential vote. Those present reported a constant growth of sentiment in favor of the General.

Warning was sounded against attacks on Senator Harding and on his manager, Harry M. Daugherty. It was declared that such tactics might cause Ohio to go Democratic in the Fall. Women were present in fair numbers, and wanted to know why the Republican Party had not seen to it that the National Suffrage amendment had been ratified. They forced the meeting to adopt a resolution calling upon the General Assembly of West Virginia to reverse its action, and on the Governors of Vermont and Connecticut to summon their Legislatures in special session for ratification.

The women suffered a hard shock when it was announced that a referendum was to be called on the Reynolds Presidential Primary Suffrage act. This will suspend it until November, when the voters will pass on the measure. The women had believed they could vote in the primaries.

Bloomingdale Manager Freed.

Frederick Gluck of Ridgefield Park, N. J., manager of the banking department of Bloomingdale's Department Store, who was arrested on Oct. 1, on a charge of grand larceny on the complaint of Julius Popper, controller of the company, was discharged yesterday by Magistrate Koenig, in Yorkville Court.

Sunday, March 7th, in The American Art Association announcement of coming exhibitions, the name of the "One Time Chairman Board of Trustees Boston Public Library" should have been given as Josiah H. Benton.—Advt.

LONDON, March 8.—J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, discussing in the House of Commons today the decision not to renew the Anglo-French loan in the United States, said that Great Britain in providing her half had no intention of reborrowing outside the United Kingdom any part of the sum required, so that when the loan is repaid Great Britain will have reduced her external debt by more than £50,000,000.

"We shall employ for the purpose," he added, "resources already available in the United States, and to the extent to which they are not sufficient we shall ship gold. We have already made a beginning by buying Anglo-French bonds in the market at a considerable discount below par."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 8.—The financial editor of The Daily Chronicle says that the extent to which gold will be shipped to the United States to repay the Anglo-French loan will naturally depend on the expansion in Britain's exports to the United States between now and October, but that the view generally taken is not more than £50,000,000 of metal in all will go to New York, of which Britain will be responsible for one-half and France for the other.

"It is a little difficult to get at an exact figure," he says, "but stocks of gold in this country, including stocks held by the Bank of England, those held against Treasury notes and those earmarked for special purposes—such, for instance, as the £30,000,000 or so received from Germany—certainly amount to £175,000,000, and may even stand at a considerably higher figure than that of the Bank of France, which holds £223,000,000, including nearly £80,000,000 abroad.

"Having regard to the large expansion in paper currency in both countries, however, it is obvious these gold stocks are none to large, and could not be drawn on to repay the whole of the Anglo-French loan without creating a dangerous position. But both Governments will, no doubt, purchase freely supplies of metal arriving periodically in the open market, and there should therefore be no difficulty in providing the £50,000,000 mentioned."

REPUBLICANS PLAN CONVENTION DETAILS

CONFER ON PLATFORM

CHICAGO, March 8.—Officers of the Republican National Convention, including the Temporary Chairman, who will sound the keynote of the 1920 campaign, will be selected at a meeting of the Convention Committee here May 10.

A. T. Hert, of Kentucky, Chairman of the Committee, made this announcement tonight, after a meeting at which plans for the Convention were laid, the seating arrangement approved, and the apportionment of seats and convention attachés settled.

The Chicago Coliseum will be remodeled to seat 13,187 delegates and spectators, approximately 1,100 more than were accommodated at the Convention four years ago.

After providing for the 984 delegates, the alternates and convention attachés, the remainder of the seats will be divided among the State committees on the basis of representation on the floor.

Under the same plan, the appointment of 2,500 Sergeants At Arms, 400 doorkeepers, 200 ushers, 100 physicians and other convention attachés will be divided.

The entire Convention Committee, save Ralph E. Williams of Oregon and James A. Hemenway of Indiana, was present. Hemenway was represented by Joseph Keating of Indianapolis.

The meeting of the committee was preceded by the regular monthly session of the National Committee, with thirty present.

Chairman Will H. Hays reiterated his declaration, made public Sunday night, that it was the business of the committee to "elect the candidate, not to select him." It was his intention, he said, to stay clear of all politics until after the convention.

More than fifty party leaders held informal conferences to discuss the campaign and possible platform planks. The liquor question and the possibility that one or both of the major parties might take a stand for some modification of the present dry law was the most absorbing topic of corridor gossip.

The League of Nations was a dead issue, so far as pre-convention platform drafting went, leaders declared, for the reason that the position of the Senate on the morning of June 8, when the convention doors open, would determine the position of the party in preparing its platform.

The committee of representative men and women appointed some time ago by Chairman Hays to consider platform planks, was still at work, and would report to the Convention Committee on Resolutions, Hays announced.

GERARD DECLARES POLICY.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Chicago Democrats heard at first hand today the campaign doctrines of James W. Gerard, candidate for the Presidential nomination. Mr. Gerard, who was Ambassador to Germany before the war, was on his way home from South Dakota, where he participated in a political debate. He spoke at the Iroquois Club.

Mr. Gerard declared in favor of universal military training. Other planks in his campaign platform were: The League of Nations, with or without reservations; no curtailment in freedom of speech; opposition to "Government by injunction."

Mr. Gerard said that his trips through the country had convinced him that the people were determined to have a League of Nations "with reasonable reservations."

"They want the League, but they are so sick and tired of the eternal wrangling in that home of intrigue and jealousy in Washington, which is called the Senate, that they have lost interest in it."

WOOD FOR CIVIC TRAINING.

Favors Brief Course to Make More Worthy Americans.

Major Gen. Wood's views on universal training for citizenship were made clear yesterday in a statement from him, given out at his headquarters in this city. In part he said:

"A plan has recently been presented to Congress which provides for four and possibly six months' training for all youths from 19 to 21 years of age. It should be remembered that this training does not in any way increase the young man's liability for service.

"Combined with the military training will be vocational training, an obligation to learn to read and write if the man is illiterate. There will be instruction with reference to our Government, what it stands for, its broad general policy—in brief, Americanization. Combined with this will be training which will tend to correct physical defects, and a general overhauling and cleaning up. This training will not give them military spirit. It will be as much civic as it will be military. It is going to give them valuable instruction in citizenship.

citizenship. It is going to be a tremendous democratizing influence, as it will bring all young men together from all walks of life—sons of the millionaire, the worker, the new-comer—men from every section. The young men of America will learn to know each other and understand each other better."

McAdoo Withdraws in Michigan.

NEWBERRY LETTERS GIVE INSIDE STORY

REVEAL HE KNEW OF FILM

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 8.—The story of the early days of the Senatorial campaign in Michigan in 1918 was laid bare today in the Newberry trial through the reading of scores of letters and telegrams which passed between Senator Newberry, in New York, and his campaign manager, Paul H. King, in Detroit. The correspondence was not admitted in bulk, but Judge Sessions permitted the reading of some as having a bearing on the case. This correspondence, which the defense says is presented to the jury to show there was no conspiracy, no fraud, no wrongdoing, brings in many men of high standing, some in other States, some in Washington and many in Michigan.

The letters showed that Newberry had in mind the making of the moving picture film which the defense's opening statement said was instigated by Thomas P. Phillips. Newberry wrote to King that while he did not think the "navy film" altogether a desirable way to advertise a campaign, yet, if that plan were adopted, he knew several distributing houses which would handle the films. He also said that he did not think that as long as he attended to his duties at New York the Secretary of the Navy would "call him" for engaging in a Michigan political campaign which his friends were managing.

Opposition at home bothered Newberry and his committee, according to many of the letters. They did not fear Henry Ford early in the campaign, because they thought he would not run, but they did fear Chase S. Osborn, Fred M. Warner and Thomas P. O'Brien.

Another interesting feature was the fact that Western Michigan Republicans were not in accord with the campaign. A conference was held, King writes, at the home of Benjamin S. Hanchett, President of the Grand Rapids Railway Company, in which the situation was discussed. Thomas J. O'Brien was urged to run, and when he refused Arthur H. Vandenberg of the Grand Rapids Herald was proposed.

They also reort jealousies among the field workers. Roger M. Andrews of Menominee was disliked, it seems, in the Upper Peninsula, and others were advising that he be kept out of the mining districts. Evidence introduced by the Government showed a trip to New York by Mr. and Mrs. Andrews in the company of Mr. and Mrs. King. This trip is commented upon in one of Newberry's letters to King, and he expressed the hope that the trip was enjoyed by the women.

The committee in Detroit, the letters indicate, felt it necessary for some reason to ask the advice of Newberry in New York as to many details of the campaign.

One letter was about Newberry joining the Loyal Order of Moose. The candidate wrote:

"It appears ridiculous that I should join the Moose."

Newberry wrote to King about putting a "dry" plank in his platform, saying he had renewed his subscription to the Michigan Anti-Saloon League for himself and his brother. King shied from the "dry" plank. Newberry also wrote that he had subscribed to woman suffrage at King's request.

More than fifty character witnesses and two handwriting experts testified. Direct examination continued today, and the cross-examination may not end before Friday.

NEW FRENCH TAX PUTS PREMIUM ON CHILDREN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—The new French inheritance tax will be based upon the principle that the more children a man has the less his estate should be taxed, and the fewer children he has, the higher should be the tax. If a man dies without children the State will take 50 per cent of his estate. If there is one child the State will take 33 per cent. If there are two children to be provided for the tax will be 25 per cent. Should there be three children it will be 18¾ per cent. In case there are four or more children there will be no inheritance tax.

French Government statistics show that half the French army in the world war came from families having four or more children. The same statistics show that one family in five has as many as four children. Furthermore, the families whose estates are largest are not, as a rule, those which have four or more children.

REBUFFS VERMONT WOMEN.

Gov. Clements Again Refuses to Call the Legislature.

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 8.—Governor Clement today again refused a request from woman suffrage leaders that he call the State Legislature in special session to vote on the suffrage amendment. His reply to a delegation of seven women who called on him here asking him to reconsider his refusal was:

"My reason for not calling the Legislature together at this time is because this question changes the State Constitution, and I believe that any change in the State Constitution should be made only after it has been submitted to the voters of this State. This is one of the provisions of the State Constitution."

It was strongly emphasized by various speakers that a definite answer from the Governor was not looked for at this time, but that the committee merely wished to put things in a new light so that he might think over their proposal.

MEXICANS KIDNAP 2 MORE AMERICANS

TWO OTHERS WERE ROBBED

Governor Cox of Ohio Asks Department to Aid in Release of Another Reported Held for Ransom.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—In a bold attack on a railway train in Chihuahua on March 4 by bandits, led personally by Francisca Villa, the State Department was officially advised today, Joseph Williams, an American engineer, employed by the American Smelting and Refining Company at Paducena, Mexico, was carried off for ransom and two other Americans were among the numerous passengers robbed.

"The attack was made by a force of 150 armed men," the department stated in its announcement. "The department's information is that the bandits killed a number of people aboard the train, mainly the members of the guard who engaged the bandits, robbed the passengers generally and set the train afire. Williams is said to have been taken personally by Villa, who in the course of the attack made a characteristic speech threatening to take other trains and to enter towns in that section of the country at will."

The State Department is advised that R. W. Black, an American salesman, who was aboard the train, gave James B. Stewart, the American Consul at Chihuahua, the following account of the affair:

"Two explosions derailed the engine March 4 at 11 A. M. About half the guard of fifty were killed in the fight. Two train conductors were executed. A Syrian was hanged and about five Mexican passengers who were attempting to escape were shot. Joseph Williams, an American, was carried off for ransom, while I and Robert J. Peltier, an American, and all other passengers were robbed and set free. The entire train was looted and then burned."

Arabian Merchant Carried Off.

EL PASO, March 8.—Joseph Williams is held by Francisco Villa for $50,000 ransom, according to passengers from Southern Chihuahua who have arrived today at Juarez, Mexico, opposite here. Williams served in the World War and was returning to the United States for treatment, still suffering from the effects of German gas. M. Nasar, an Arabian merchant, they said, also was made prisoner.

In a fight between Villa's men and guards of their train, they said, ten bandits and nineteen of the train guard were killed and the remaining fifty defenders either wounded or driven off. The train and sleeping car conductors are among the dead, the latter being killed by a shot from Villa's pistol, the passengers said.

When the fighting ceased the bandits herded the travelers to a small hill near the track, where Villa harangued and threatened them with death. Later, according to eye witnesses, he broke into tears and told them he would spare their lives out of respect to the memory of General Felipe Angeles, who was recently executed by Carranza authorities at Chihuahua City.

Williams and M. Nasar were forced to accompany the bandits when they rode away, leaving the other passengers marooned in a desolate country, bereft of their belongings and clothing, which had been taken by the robbers.

According to R. J. Peltier, an American citizen, resident of Mexico City, who said he was roughly handled and threatened with death, the bandits numbered about 300. They stopped the train, he said, by placing a charge of dynamite on the track, which wrecked the engine.

Asks Aid to Free American.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 8.—A telegram was sent today to Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, by Governor Cox, urging him to lend the assistance of the Consular Department for the relief of James M. Arthur of Nogales, Ariz., who, it is said, is held for a ransom by Mexicans. The Governor acted on an appeal from F. E. Avery, father-in-law of Arthur. His daughter telegraphed for $2,000 and the help of the Consular Department. Few details are given.

Arthur is manager of the Mexican Consolidated Mining Company. His father-in-law was ready to send the money, but wished to get further details.

TELLS OF ASSOCIATION TO KIDNAP AMERICANS

Mexican Foreign Office Says It Is Run on a Co-operative Basis and Includes Americans.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Discovery of a "co-operative kidnapping association" having for its purpose "the kidnapping and holding for ransom of foreigners, preferably Americans," is announced by the Mexican Foreign Office, according to advices today from Mexico City.

The statement says this "unique company" is made up of Mexicans and Americans on the border, according to reports from various consular officers. The Foreign Office says the "association" is also engaged in "the ignoble task of creating trouble between the two countries."

Acting on the information presented by the Foreign Office, the War Department has issued instructions to the military commanders in the States of Chihuahua, Durango Coahuila, Neuvo Leon and Tamaulipas to break up the kidnapping organization. The Government says it is believed the promoters are rebel agents, who recently circulated hand bills advertising the "reorganized government of free Mexicans" and announcing a coup planned for May 5.

Because of the frequency of attacks on railroad trains, the Mexican Government plans to erect block houses along the railroad lines, other reports from Mexico City say. The block houses would be of reinforced concrete, with a guard of fifty soldiers in each.

LABOR TICKET FOR STATE.

New Party Disregards Hostility of Federation Head.

Plans of the American Labor Party to organize in New York State and nominate a full State ticket are being developed in spite of the hostility of James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor, it was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the American Labor Party, 123 East Twenty-third Street.

"We are not in the least disturbed by Mr. Holland's newspaper statement declaring that the State Federation will indorse Democrats and Republicans exclusively in the so-called non-partisan campaign," said William Kohn, Chairman of the American Labor Party.

Labor party organizers will go out this week, Mr. Kohn said, to get in touch with trade unions, liberal organizations and groups of farmers up-State in preparation for the State Convention at Schenectady May 29-30.

Prices Realised on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, March 6, 1920, on shipments sold out, ranged from 12.00 cents per pound to 19.00 cents per pound and averaged 16.71 cents per pound.—Advt.

Speaker Gillett, 'Fagged Out,' Allowed by House to Take Rest

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Speaker Gillett informed the House today that his physician had advised him to take a rest.

In order that legislation might not be delayed the House granted Mr. Gillett's request that he be authorized to name a Speaker pro tem. to sign bills while he takes a ten-day vacation.

The Speaker said that he was not ill, but "fagged out."

GIANT NAVY PLANES TO TRY FOR CHINA

FOUR STOPS SCHEDULED

Three Liberty Engines Will Be Coupled to One Propeller—Seek to Beat England.

The United States Navy is rushing preparations to send two giant flying boats from San Francisco over the Pacific Ocean to Manila and thence to Hongkong, a distance of 7,616 nautical miles, according to an announcement yesterday by the National Aircraft Show in the 71st Regiment Armory. The construction of the two seaplanes, which will be nearly twice as large as the N-Cs that made the Atlantic flight, will be started in a few days, it was said. The "hop-off" is scheduled for next month, when climatic conditions along the route are at their best.

The plans of the navy contemplate stops at Honolulu, Wake Island, Guam and Manila. The first leg of the journey, from San Francisco to Honolu, a distance of 2,091 nautical miles, is believed to be the most difficult, but the navy officials believe the new boats will be able to fly this distance in twenty-four hours with favorable weather conditions.

Great secrecy surrounds the project. The navy has learned that Great Britain has begun the construction of a multi-engined seaplane, equal in size to the navy's proposed craft, to fly across the Pacific. The navy therefore is making every effort to win for the United States the honor of "first across the Atlantic and Pacific by air."

The transpacific flight has been made feasible, it was said, through the inventive genius of Edson Gallaudet, an aeronautical engineer, who has succeeded in coupling three Liberty engines to one eighteen-foot propeller, each engine being geared so as to permit the propeller to function at its maximum of efficiency. The seaplanes are to have three separate power plants, each containing three Liberty motors, making a total of nine engines to each plane.

The craft will be triplaned with a wing spread of 140 feet, as compared with the 126½ feet wing spread of the N-Cs. The total wing area will be about 6,000 feet. The hulls will be 67 feet long, twenty-two feet longer than the hull of the N-C4. It is planned to carry a crew of sixteen officers and men in each boat. The estimated cruising radius of the giant flying boat is 2,100 miles, nearly twice that of the N-C boats.

A feature of the engine installment on the planes will be the placing of each unit of the motors in a separate nacelle, or body, thus making possible repairs while in actual flight, something which the navy believes has never been accomplished heretofore. Each nacelle will have accommodations for an engineer. The three propellers each will be driven by two of the geared motors, leaving one in reserve. If one of the active motors should become crippled, the engineer will be able to throw the reserve motor into operation while he makes the necessary repairs.

Enough gasoline to permit a cruising radius of 2,000 miles will be carried, it was said. Under the navy's plans, the planes will be able to transport a load of thirty tons. Half of this will be useful load, or load not included in the weight of the craft itself. The boats will have a speed of eighty-five knots an hour.

The detailed plans of the new boats were prepared jointly by Mr. Gallaudet and naval constructors, and are now in the hands of Secretary Daniels, it was said. Many of the features in the plans were said to have been prepared by Commander H. C. Richardson, who is credited with having been one of the original designers of the N-C planes.

The maps and meteorological surveys for the project have been completed. The latter shows that favorable weather conditions are likely to prevail from Honolulu to Guam throughout the year. Bad weather may be expected between Guam, Manila and Hongkong. The distances between landing stations beyond Honolulu are: Honolulu to Wake Island 2,000 nautical miles, Wake Island to Guam 1,320, Guam to Manila 1,320 and Manila to Hongkong 675.

H. G. WELLS MAY JOIN MISSION TO RUSSIA

LONDON, March 8.—H. G. Wells may go to Russia, according to The Evening Standard, as special representative of labor or socialism on the League of Nations Commission of Inquiry. He would be in addition to the regular representative the British Government will appoint, who will have a special political adviser to assist him.

Nominations will be made at a meeting of the League Council in Paris on Friday, at which Arthur J. Balfour will be the British member. He has already submitted to the Premier a list of names from which the British Commissioner will be selected.

It is understood that the League Council would be very glad to have America represented on the commission and that an unofficial invitation has been extended, but it is not expected Washington will accept.

The Council meeting will probably only last one day and the names of commissioners will be published on Saturday.

SCOUTS WEST INDIES SALE.

Lloyd George Says They Will Not Be Transferred to America.

LONDON, March 8.—Premier Lloyd George, replying to questions in the House of Commons today, regarding the suggestion that the West Indies be transferred to the United States in payment of part of the British debt to that country, stated that there was not the slightest intention on the part of the British Government to barter or sell any part of the British West Indies.

The Premier declared that the inhabitants of the West Indies were loyally attached to the Crown and intensely proud of their membership in the Empire.

ASK FOR 'JOHN DOE' POLICE GRAFT HUNT

"BLUE BOOK" LIST SOUGHT

CHIEF MAGISTRATE SILENT

McAdoo Replies to Hylan Request, but Refuses to Reveal Its Nature.

A strong defense of the Police Department was made by Commissioner Enright in a letter yesterday to Mayor Hylan. He suggested a John Doe investigation into the allegations of graft in the department made following the indictment and arrest of Detective John J. Gunson. Mayor Hylan transmitted the letter to Chief Magistrate William McAdoo saying he would appreciate it if a John Doe proceeding were begun "so that the police can secure the location of the alleged disorderly flats so they can be suppressed."

Shortly after receiving the Mayor's letter, Magistrate McAdoo sent a reply. He referred inquirers to the Mayor for the contents of the letter. The communication was not made public by the Mayor.

When he heard of the request for a John Doe investigation Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, who is handling the case against Gunson, said such an investigation would defeat the ends of justice.

Commissioner Enright in his letter to the Mayor declared that a "relentless campaign" had been carried on against gambling and vice "with splendid results." After alluding to "statements emanating from an Assistant District Attorney, alleging the existence of a corrupt alliance between members of this department and the vicious and criminal element in this city," the letter continues:

"You will remember that some time ago the columns of the newspapers were filled with stories emanating from the same source regarding an alleged "Blue Book" in the possession of this assistant in which it was stated the names of many police officials past and present appear.

"These sensational statements and innuendos constitute a serious reflection upon the personnel of this organization and have a tendency to shake public confidence in the Police Department.

Ask List of Locations.

"These stories, if they are true, should be investigated, and every one found guilty of any misconduct should be punished. I have requested the list of the locations of the alleged disorderly places and the names of the police officers and officials which Assistant District Attorney Smith speaks about, but as yet I have not received it.

"I therefore respectfully recommend that the Chief City Magistrate be requested to immediately hold an investigation and bring before him any members of the District Attorney's office, any member of the Police Department, or any other department as well as other persons who may have any knowledge of unlawful conditions which may require the attention of the law-enforcing departments of the city."

Mr. Enright in closing suggested that the "Blue Book" be suppoenaed.

Mayor Hylan in his letter to Magistrate McAdoo said:

"Dear Judge McAdoo:

"Enclosed find letter from Commissioner Enright, which speaks for itself.

"I will appreciate it if you will take up the matter with the Commissioner and District Attorney, and have a John Doe proceedings started, to the end that the guilty may be punished and that the police can secure the location of the alleged disorderly flats so, they can be suppressed."

Wants Whole Truth, Says Mayor.

Shortly after receiving the letter from Commissioner Enright, Mr. Hylan said:

"I believe that the public is entitled to know the whole truth and that the whole truth should be known, and that no secrecy should prevail. If there have been any transgressions of the law we want to know it and get after the transgressors in accordance with the law. If there are any guilty persons either in or out of the Police Department we want to konw it, and we will not spare them. It does not matter what their position may be."

When he was asked his attitude toward a John Doe investigation, Assistant District Attorney Smith said:

"It would defeat our investigation. It should be a Grand Jury investigation in order to get results and protect the witnesses. Judge Malone who is presiding this month in General Sessions, insists that this investigation shall go through and that there shall be no interference by Magistrates, the Police Department, the underworld or any other outside influence

"We are satisfied that we are going to produce results, and we ask the cooperation of all the decent people of New York. Witnesses will expose themselves in the first instance before a John Doe proceeding. The people know what happened to McAuliffe and to Rosenthal. They had given tetsimony before they appeared before a Grand Jury. They were known as informers."

Detective Gunson pleaded not guilty before Judge Malone in General Sessions when arraigned on the complaint of Rebecca Melyado, who had charged him with obtaining money from her. He pleaded not guilty to a superceding indictment charging bribery and extortion. He acted as his own counsel, reserving ten days in which to make any necessary motions. He was continued on $5,000 bail.

Jennie Burke and Kate Bennett, detained as material witnesses in the case, appeared before Justice Erlanger in the Supreme Court on writs of habeas corpus. Their counsel, Frank Hendrick, told the court the District Attorney's office had refused surety bonds to the amount of the bail. He was told to tender the bond again. The case was adjourned until this morning.

District Attorney Swann said last night that because of past experiences he was not in favor of evidence being made public, as it would be if the John Doe investigation were instituted.

POLICE BANDIT CONVICTED.

Jury Finds Brooklyn Bluecoat Guilty of Robbery.

Michael Russell, a policeman attached to the Fourth Avenue Precinct, in Brooklyn, was convicted yesterday in the Supreme Court, in that borough, of having held up and robbed Nels Anderson, a sailor, of $3 and a watch valued at $15. The jury deliberated for two and a half hours. Justice Fawcett remanded Russell to Raymond Street Jail to await sentence on Friday. Michael Cahill, a friend of Russell, is awaiting trial for alleged participation in the same crime.

Anderson, the principal witness, testified that early on the morning of Nov. 30 Russell met him on Thirty-ninth Street and told him he believed him to be a man wanted for murder. He said Russell shoved him into a hallway and told him to stay there. Later, he testified, the policeman came back and took his watch and money. Anderson then went to the station house and made a complaint, he testified. Russell, in his defense, tried to establish an alibi.

Russell, who is 32 years of age, lives at 229 Hopkinson Avenue with his wife and one child. He was appointed to the police force in 1917.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

Mr. Ziegfeld from Nine On.

The baffling question of how to have an eventful evening without once leaving the dinner table was satisfactorily answered last evening when Mr. Ziegfeld presented at his housetop hall the second of his 9 o'clock revues. The scheme is to gorge yourself on a Ziegfeld dinner and then sit back in a pleasant stupor and watch the unfolding of one of those roof shows of which Mr. Ziegfeld knows the secret better than any one else. He has done it so often you would think other producers would be able to copy him, but no one else can equal him at his specialty of filling a few idle hours with treats to the eye. The visual enchantments range all the way from a garden of hollyhocks rearing their brilliant stalks against a deep blue urban sky to such an apparition as the delectable Mary Hay in a bathing suit.

Some time in the course of the evening a lyrical regret is expressed that all was not as it would be

Had the face of Alice Joyce—

But we cannot have everything in this world, and at Mr. Ziegfeld's show we have some of the comeliest persons extant prancing about more or less clad in as lovely costumes as the stage has ever known.

The proceedings are not devoid of humor, as might be gathered from the presence of W. C. Field (with hat and croquet mallet) and the imperturbable Fannie Brice, remembering several songs and singing them with infinite relish. But it is the eye that is mostly cajoled, particularly by an extraordinary set of what used to be called "living pictures," arranged by the discerning Ben Ali Haggin and overplayed with some magic of lighting that makes the illusion startling.

A blindfolded Indian princess reads (without a tremor) the inmost thoughts of the stout gentlemen and magazine editors sitting along the edge of the dancing floor, a Ouija Board the size of a library table says awfully funny things (such as that Bryan is in the soop, and that the Senate talks too much), and, of course, there is the sacred procession of girls disguised as strains of music, with a preliminary song explaining that certain mel-o-dees are fulla mem-o-rees. Oh, yes, and then there is Lillian Lorraine.

THEATRICAL MANAGERS SAIL

W. A. Brady, A. Hammerstein and Also Adolph Zukor.

The Imperator of the Cunard Line, which sailed yesterday for Cherbourg and Southampton, carried a number of notables of the theatrical and moving picture world.

Among them were William A. Brady, who has contracts to produce American plays in London with his partner, Charles Cochran. He was accompanied by Miss Mary Nash, who will play the leading rôle in "The Man Who Came Back" over there. Others were Miss Maggie Teyte, the English soprano, Arthur Hammerstein, who is going to negotiate for the production of his musical plays in London, and Frank Tours, the musical conductor who is going over for Morris Gest to see the spectacle "Mecca," which is coming to New York in the Fall.

Adolph Zukor, President of the Lasky Corporation and Famous Players Film Company, sailed on the liner to open a big studio in London on April 1, in which he will begin producing the corporation's first British-made photoplay, for American distribution, Marie Corelli's "Sorrows of Satan." He said: "These British-made pictures will be produced with the best acting and directing talent we can obtain. They will be just as fine pictures as the best that have been made in America."

Mr. Zukor announced that upon the expiration of the engagement of Lionel Barrymore in "The Letter of the Law" at the Criterion Theatre the playhouse would be converted into a motion picture theatre, where pictures produced by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation will be shown. The Criterion will be under the direction of Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, who is managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli Theatres.

O'NEILL'S PLAY TONIGHT.

Eugene G. O'Neill's tragedy, "Beyond the Horizon," will reopen tonight as the regular attraction at The Little Theatre, following four weeks of performances at special matinées at two playhouses. The current congestion in the theatres has made it particularly difficult to obtain a house for this play, and John D. Williams, its producer, declared last night that the special matinée had been resorted to in this instance because it was felt that the booking managers would be particularly disinclined to provide a New York house for a tragic play until it had proved itself. The play was held by Mr. Williams more than a year before production, having been originally purchased with the idea that John and Lionel Barrymore would play the two brothers.

Richard Bennett, who created the leading rôle, will continue in the cast, but the abandonment of the off-day matinées will make necessary several substitutions in the cast. Helen MacKellar, Edward Arnold, and Max Mitzel, members of "The Storm" cast, who had been at the matinées, will be replaced tonight by Helen Freeman, Robert Kelly, and Sidney Macy. Miss Freeman was seen here last season as the daughter in "John Ferguson."

WEDS JOHN CLARKE, TENOR.

Miss Mary G. Fitzgerald, the English opera singer who arrived in this country Sunday on the Baltic, was married at the Municipal Building yesterday to John Clarke, now singing the tenor rôle in "Monsieur Beaucaire," at the New Amsterdam Theatre. Mrs. Clarke, who is well known on the operatic stage in England under the name of Ava Gerald, is a grandniece of Charles Dickens.

The only witnesses to the ceremony were Robert Parker and his wife, Isabel Rhys, also of the "Monsieur Beaucaire" organization.

Oscar Nicastro, 'Cellist, Appears.

Oscar Nicastro, 'cellist, who appeared for the first time here yesterday in Aeolian Hall, is a South American of a new stripe, both as to the instrument he plays and as to his country of origin—Uruguay. Born in Montevideo, a capital whose bay and mountain, El Cerro, recall old Naples, Mr. Nicastro went to the Italian city, stayed there to study music and was playing in northern Europe when overtaken by the war. He gave yesterday a remarkable exhibition of skill in trifles in Popper's "Spinning Song," adding among his encores a "Guitarre" imitation of his own. With Francis Moore, he was heard in a sonata of Corelli, a theme and variations, Paganini-Becker, and pieces by Tartini, Faure, Sarasate, Van Goens, Cesar Cui and Kreisler.

Shorten "Richard III." Performance.

John Barrymore's second performance of "Richard III.," at the Plymouth Theatre last night, moved somewhat faster than the first presentation, with the result that the curtain was down at 11.40 o'clock. This was made possible by the elimination of the third scene, at York's castle, and the shortening of several other scenes. Further cuts also will be made, Arthur Hopkins said last night, and tonight and thereafter the performance will conclude at about 11.30 o'clock.

There was an unbroken line of applicants for tickets at the Plymouth Theatre box office during the day, and the advance sale was said to amount to thousands of dollars.

Caruso in "L'Elisir d'Amore."

Signor Caruso opened the seventeenth week of the Metropolitan opera last evening, appearing for the third time in Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'Amore." With the tenor were Mmes. Barrientos and Sparkes, Messrs. De Luca and Didur, and Mr. Papi conducted. There was a large house.

GENEVA, March 7—Child life throughout the world will be profoundly affected by the work initiated at the Congress of the League of Red Cross Societies, held here last week, said Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the league, in discussing the meeting today with The Associated Press.

In addition, the plans for fighting tuberculosis, malaria and other diseases, which have been considered, will greatly benefit the peoples of many lands, he said.

"This first general conference has been satisfactory," said Mr. Davison. "Delegates from all over the world, important people in their own countries, have come to know each other and have gained a comprehensive view of what is being done and what may be done.

"The program of the medical conference held at Cannes has become the common possession of the Red Cross societies of some twenty-seven countries. The congress has agreed upon a campaign for child welfare which, in our judgment, will profoundly affect the health and care of mothers throughout the world. I assume this plan for child welfare will become immediately effective everywhere when once it begins to be applied.

ELSHUCO TRIO APPLAUDED.

Play Beethoven and Tschaikovsky at Last Concert of Season.

Wilhelm Willeke, Elias Breeskin and Aurelio Giorni gave their third and closing concert of the season last evening before an audience that filled Aeolian Hall. They are players of individual reputation and merit, who in associating themselves as the Elshuco Trio chose that name in tribute to Mrs. Elizabeth Shurtleff Coolidge, patron and prize-giver of the annual chamber music festival at Pittsfield, Mass.

The three artists were heard last evening in a program the more rare because brief, two works of ideal beauty contrasting in form and content, Beethoven's trio op. 97, in B flat minor, and Tschaikovsky's op. 30, in A minor. In the Russian composer's episode of a theme and variations there was opportunity for each instrument fully utilized by the performers and recognized by the house in hearty recalls.

CULBERTSON MAKES DEBUT.

Sasha Culbertson, a violinist of modest but romantic history, made his début before a large matinée house at Carnegie Hall yesterday. He took his baptism of fire, so to speak, in Beethoven's sonata, Op. 30, with Emanuel Balaban, an introductory choice of serious music that spoke well for him. He found a showpiece of popular effect, even of humor, in an old-fashioned concerto of Vieuxtemps. The high point was reached in Bach's chaconne for violin alone.

Mr. Culbertson's peculiarly silky tone wove itself around Bach's honest harmonies as cobwebs cling about old wine. His technical finesse appeared in little pieces by Pagnini, in d'Ambrosio's "Serenade," and Roderick Bass's "Fairytale Dreams." Though he comes from the Caucasus, the young man is not of the clan of Russian fiddlers; it was told of him that he was born in 1893 in the Carpathians, that his father was a traveled mining engineer and that he studied with Kubelik's teacher, Sevcik, in Prague and played publicly at Vienna in 1908.

What youthful exhuberance appeared in his playing yesterday could not obscure the fact that here was a young player different from the recent run, still in the rough, but of high promise. His later appearance with orchestra should be interesting.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Golden Days," a comedy, by Sidney Toler, now appearing here in "Sophie," and Marion Short, will have its first performance at Powers's Theatre in Chicago on March 22, with Patricia Collinge as its star. The company will include Helen Lowell, Maude Turner Gordon, Blanche Chapman, Hortense Alden, Nancy Currier, Berenice Harley, Camille Pastorfield, Norma Lee, Norval Keedwell, Paul Kelly, and Adrian Morgan.

It will be presented in Washington on March 29 with a cast including Charles Judels, Jack McGowan, James Marlowe, Alfred Girard, George, Fredericks, Georgia Caine, Florrie Millership and Estaire Kaye.

"The New Dictator" was presented at the National Theatre in Washington for the first time last night. It is a musical version of Richard Harding Davis's "The Dictator," with book and lyrics by Frank Craven and music by Silvio Hein. In the cast are Mr. Craven, Gladys Caldwell, Flora Zabelle, Marion Sunshine and others.

The Friars' Post of the American Legion will give a benefit performance at the Cort Theatre on Sunday night, March 21.

"Martinique," by Lawrence Eyre, will have its first performance in New Haven on March 29.

The stock market had thrills aplenty yesterday, including first a sharp fall of quotations and later a surging advance which exceeded anything seen in any preceding session of the year. The basis of the day's spectacular developments was the decision of the Supreme Court that stock dividends were not subject to the income tax, but supporting influences were not lacking in news affecting the railroads and in the movements of foreign exchange. The great importance which the stock trading community had imparted to the pending ruling on stock dividends for many months was impressed with emphasis upon the market when ticker services through error announced early in the afternoon that the decision had been unfavorable to recipients of such disbursements. Still greater emphasis was disclosed when, the error being corrected, industrial shares advanced from 4 to more than 40 points. Business broadened out rapidly in the last two hours of trading. There was evidence in heavy buying of several closely held stocks that a short interest was in difficulties. At the same time purchases were insistent in parts of the list that had been neglected for the last fortnight, and, altogether, speculative sentiment was made more cheerful by the Supreme Court's action.

Considering railroad stocks, besides the fillup to speculative purchases which came from the stock dividend decision followers of this department found comfort in another ruling by the court. The full worth of the court's direction to the Interstate Commerce Commission to accept current values of rights of way and terminals instead of original costs in arriving at true valuation of railroad property cannot be visualized until definite figures are arrived at. Nevertheless, the ruling indicates that the appreciation of railway realty and the increased replacement costs of terminal facilities must be taken into account in arriving at a basis for fixing railroad revenue and this is decidedly worth while to holders of railroad stocks. The carriers are hardly interested directly in the stock dividend matter. This concerns those corporations which have scored large profits from the production and sale of goods, whose Directors for years past have directed extra income into new property or toward the development of new markets. As the result of extraordinary earnings since the war began, or even before 1914, these companies have accumulated large surpluses and the opportunity now seems to be presented of giving stockholders something to represent part of these accumulations without adding to the burden of the latter through heavy income taxes.

A local banking house was the successful bidder for $1,250,000 South African gold sold at auction in London yesterday and this metal will come to this country. India, which has been absorbing most of the metal at the weekly sales, did not bid, according to advices received here, and it may be that arrangements have been made whereby considerable quantities of the offerings at future auctions may be acquired for import into the United States. Sterling exchange declined sharply at the opening of business, initial dealings being about 5 cents to the pound under Saturday's last quotation. Thereafter, the rate swung forward with strength and at 3.60¾ displayed a net gain of cents for the day. The other exchanges were firm.

Call money lent at 8 and 7 per cent., the former quotation being the rate for renewals of standing loans. In view of the other exuberent influences it was not surprising that money market considerations did not figure largely in stock dealings. However, the fact that stocks were marked up extensively did not alter the credit situation and the pending offering of a heavy total of Treasury certificates bearing 4¾ per cent. interest must be looked forward to as a transaction of importance to banks and private investors.

DEBT CERTIFICATES PAY 4 3-4 PER CENT.

BANKERS FOR HIGHER RATE

R. C. Leffingwell Will Not Talk on More Open Market for Government Paper.

R. C. Leffingwell, First Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, outlining the Government's immediate financial program, told bankers yesterday that the forthcoming issue of Treasury certificates of indebtedness would bear interest at the rate of 4¾ per cent., the maximum rate thus far. The certificates, it is expected, will run for one year as from March 15.

Mr. Leffingwell met local bankers at the Federal Reserve Bank. William Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank; James Stillman, President of the National City Bank; George E. Baker, Jr., Vice President of the First National Bank; Albert Tilney, Vice President of the Bankers' Trust Company; W. P. Conway, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Lloyd W. Smith, of Harris, Forbes & Co., and representatives of several other important banks and banking houses, and Pierre Jay, Federal Reserve Agent and Chairman of the Board of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, were present.

Many local bankers believe the Treasury would advance the rate to at least 5 per cent. because of the general recent advance in charges for all classes of credit accommodation and because of the Government's present low balances kept with the banks on deposit. It has been contented that Treasury certificates were worth more to banks than the interest rate they bore because the Government kept a good part of the proceeds of its certificate sales on deposit with the banks, but local bankers now say that with the Government's deposits dwindling this is no longer the case.

Mr. Leffingwell declines to comment as to whether the Treasury had abandoned its policy of frowning upon the sale, either by institutions or by individuals, of Treasury certificates at less than par. He said this matter was not discussed at yesterday's conference. He would not say what was likely to be done, if anything, to make the market for certificates more open than now. Bankers have expressed the opinion lately that the market for certificates should be broadened as much as possible, so as to build up a widespread demand and distribution for the time when the Government will have to meet maturities of Victory notes and Liberty bonds. The Victory notes, totalling approximately $4,500,000,000, are callable in about two years and will mature within three years.

MOTOR TRUCK EARNINGS.

The International Motor Truck Corporation in its report for last year shows net earnings after Federal taxes of $1,983,468 as compared with $1,245,771 in the preceding year. With reference to the purchase by the company of the Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation the report says:

"On December 17, 1919, your company acquired approximately $8,000,000 assets of Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation under the plan and agreement of July 11, 1919. Profit and loss statement for the year, therefore, reflects operations of the company without any benefit from these assets. New Brunswick plant acquired from Wright-Martin is being put into operation as fast as possible, and with extensions now building at Allentown will increase productive capacity of plants of your company to not less than 9,000 trucks a year."

Offer Province of Ontario Bonds.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago and Harris, Forbes & Co. are offering $5,000,000 Province of Ontario, five-year 5½ per cent. bonds at 93.71 and interest, at which price the yield is about 7 per cent. The bonds mature March 1, 1925, with principal and interest payable in United States gold coin in New York.

Explains Canada's Gold Shipments.

OTTAWA, March 8.—Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, declared in the House of Commons today that the recent gold shipments of the Canadian Government to New York were for the purpose of discharging obligations, not to correct exchange. This method of meeting obligations, he added, had been adopted because the cost was only about one-tenth of one per cent as compared with meeting an adverse exchange rate of from 13 to 17 per cent through other methods.

$1,250,000 BRITISH GOLD COMING HERE

$3,000,000 FROM CANADA

Lot Completes $6,000,000 Operation—$21,000,000 Sent to Argentina Last Week.

The first shipment of gold from London to New York this year was arranged yesterday, when Kuhn, Loeb & Co. secured $1,250,000 of the metal in the London open market. The gold, it is understood, comes from the Transvaal, and it was said yesterday that it was not connected with the shipments which it has been rumored will be made for the account of the British and French Governments as part of the payment of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan, which matures Oct. 15 next.

Early last Fall, shortly after the open market had been established on London, the same firm obtained about $5,000,000 gold, but notwithstanding that the gold coming to the London market has totalled approximately $15,000,000 a month, that was all until yesterday's engagement that America was able to secure. India and some of the South American countries, notably Argentina, were able to outbid the United States and took all that was offered. It was said in banking circles yesterday that the Indian demand had slackened and that the Argentina demand was being filled very largely from the United States.

Last week approximately $21,000,000 gold was sent from here to Argentina, and yesterday it was reported that $2,000,000 more had been engaged for shipment the latter part of this week. It is expected that this week's exports will total close to $10,000,000.

One banker expressed the opinion yesterday that the Argentina demand for American gold would end shortly, for he said that advices he has received recently indicate that the financial situation there is suffering considerably from inflation and that the continued importations of gold are making it worse.

The receipt of $3,000,000 gold from Canada was reported yesterday. This was part of the $6,000,000 engagement announced last week. The first $3,000,000 reached here last Friday. Yesterday's shipment completed the operation, which was said to be solely an affair between the United States and Canada.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Stabilizing Call Rates.

There was a story abroad in the financial district yesterday that "something probably will be done" to stabilize call money rates. The reason, the report stated, is that interior bankers, who have become tired of reading of the very high rates which obtain occasionally without getting these high rates for their own funds, have adopted a policy of withdrawing from the call market whenever the rate gives indication of breaking to around 6 per cent. The interior bankers can now buy acceptances or commercial paper on better than a 6 per cent. basis, and are said to be doing so when call rates go below 7 per cent. As these bankers are supposed to be lending upward of $600,000,000 in the local call market, any concerted withdrawal on their part causes no little embarrassment, and because of this the cryptic statement that "something probably will be done to stabilize the market" was generally believed by those who understood the situation.

These Gold Imports.

A banker who deals in such things does not subscribe to the popular idea that we will receive between $100,000,000 and $250,000,000 gold from Britain and France within the next six or eight months, not so much because these countries would find it difficult to send us the metal, as because he thinks we would be hard put to find employment for it after it arrived. He admits, of course, that it would be a big undertaking for England and France, but that is not his chief objection. He argues this way: A member bank has to keep a 15 per cent. reserve on deposits in this city. Of this, he goes on to point out, the Reserve Bank has to keep only a 35 per cent. gold or legal money reserve. Hence, he says, "we are on a 5 per cent. basis," figuring 35 per cent. of 15 per cent. as approximately 5 per cent. Thus he contends that gold sent here really would be expanded in the ratio of 20 to 1, or so that $10,000,000 gold would make $200,000,000 of credit, while $250,000,000 gold, at this ratio, would mean $5,000,000,000 new credit. And the threat of anything like this, he maintains, would be sufficient cause for us to beg England and France not to send the gold to us.

Sir George's Idea.

It is violating no confidence to say that most American bankers were not impressed by the latest ideas of Sir George Paish, who wants a revolving credit created by having the War Finance Corporation finance exports, the exports to be sold, the proceeds to go to the Reparations Commission, the League of Nations to issue bonds against the proceeds, and American bankers to sell these bonds and turn the proceeds back to the War Finance Corporation. It is not nearly so involved as it sounds, although involved enough. But, as most American bankers see it, the weak link in the chain is that which provides for the sale of League of Nations bonds. Two weaknesses present themselves here: First, what can the League offer as security? And, second, who is going to buy the bonds after—or if—they are issued?

Bears Have Bad Day.

Those who have been playing the market on the short side had a decidedly bad session yesterday and, strange as it may seem, they paved the way to their own discomfiture. It was the decision of the Supreme Court ruling that stock dividends are not taxable which gave the groundwork for a forward movement in the market, but the difficulty arose from the fact that the decision was erroneously reported as holding that such disbursements were taxable. There was a renewal of short selling on a heavy sale as this false word was flashed on the ticker, and prices were depressed quickly. Baldwin, for instance, dipped some three points below its opening price. Word that the first report on the decision had been wrong quickly filtered through the financial district as a result of private dispatches from Washington. Prices began to move forward and the shorts were bidding hurriedly to cover their commitments. The general upturn brought on what some were inclined to term a bear panic and prices bounded forward a point and two points at a time. It was a revelation to many that such a great short interest existed in the market. There has been an inclination to believe that the shorts covered on the way down in the recent decline, but advances such as those that took place in General Motors, Crucible, Baldwin and other of the more volatile issues could not have been brought about by anything but extensive covering operations.

An advance of more than 42 points in General Motors was tangible evidence of the big short interest in this stock. There was nothing about the Supreme Court dividend tax decision which could be construed as especially affecting these shares. There is no prospect of a General Motors stock dividend. The recapitalization recently announced and carried through is the only word that can be expected from the corporation along this line for some time to come. Still, General Motors was the leader of the advance, the shares soaring above 300 and making a gain that was almost as spectacular as the decline that took place in the market break of last Fall. Apparently many were inclined to go short of General Motors in the belief that the shares would eventually react to a figure near that from which the advance of last Spring started. How badly they were fooled is told by the closing price of yesterday.

There was a great display of strength among those shares which it is believed will figure in stock dividend distributions. Among these were Baldwin and Republic, and the Standard Oil issues were prominent among the outside securities. Atlantic Refining, for instance, advanced some 100 points in over-the-counter trading, and Standard of New Jersey, Standard of Indiana and others of the same group made gains of big proportions. Standard of New Jersey was some forty points above the preceding close. The situation among the Standard shares was unusual. When the false report on the Supreme Court decision came forth the stocks dropped quickly, with few bids in the market. When the true report was flashed the bids became numerous, but the offerings dried up almost immediately and practically no stock was to be had at the levels prevailing even in the late afternoon.

Rail Mergers Will Wait.

It is the opinion in some conservative railroad offices that classification of roads and systems into the rate groups as provided in the Transportation act is one of the greatest tasks confronting the Interstate Commerce Commission. So far most of the tentative plans for a grouping of properties to comply with the law have, in the opinion of some railroad heads, been done from the financial angle alone. To be of practical value in the development of the transportation of the country the grouping should be done from the viewpoint of the service to be rendered by the physical properties. Of course it is generally admitted that the question of financial expediency must be considered, but it is believed by many operators that this should come after the grouping has been done from the angle of service and development.

Rails Reflect Court Decision.

The railroad shares gained ground rapidly following the report from Washington that the United States Supreme Court had decided that in its valuation proceedings the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case of the Kansas City Railway must accept the present value of right of way and terminals instead of the original cost. The majority of the rail stocks responded almost immediately to the news, and gains of from 1 to more than 3 points were recorded in a comparatively short time. In the late afternoon there was some indication of profit-taking, but in many instances last prices were the highest. Among the shares which moved to higher ground were Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul, New Haven, Texas Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette and Reading.

LOVETT PREDICTS RAILWAY LAW TEST

Judge Robert S. Lovett, Chairman of the Union Pacific system, who, before the passage of the Transportation act, opposed its provisions covering the seizure of excess railroad earnings above 5½ per cent. on property value, said yesterday when asked to comment on the act:

"It is now law. If an attempt is made to take profits away from stockholders, I fancy that a test of the law will follow."

When asked how soon a test case might be expected, Judge Lovett referred to the act itself, which provides that there can be no recapture of excess earnings until four months after the end of the current year.

While Judge Lovett commented generally on the act and did not speak for the Union Pacific, it is assumed that the Union Pacific will probably be one of the first roads to test the law. The Union Pacific is not the only railroad which has earned more than its standard return during the period of Federal control and it is probable that should it delay in bringing its case, some one of the other so-called creditor roads would bring suit. That Union Pacific is the logical carrier to contend that the subdivision of profits above 6 per cent. is unconstitutional is the general belief in financial circles.

The belief is growing in some railroad quarters that the Transportation act when applied by the Interstate Commerce Commission may prove disappointing. It is not the consensus of opinion that the commission will so interpret the law and apply it as to rehabilitate those railroads which, before the Government assumed control were perilously near the financial rocks, at the expense of the national transportation system and the shippers who produce the business vital for the life of transportation.

The situation as a whole is considered as vastly improved over the dark and unpromising days at the close of last year, but it is realized in conservative quarters that the railroads have a long, hard road to travel before they will be out of all danger. Credit has to be restored, the Interstate Commerce Commission is on trial, labor must co-operate and the railroads themselves must put forth their best efforts, say local operators, if the problem is to be successfully met and solved.

Yesterday the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the Kansas City Railroad, which was that the Interstate Commerce Commission in its valuation proceedings must consider present-day values of terminals and right of way instead of original cost, was regarded favorably. This was interpreted as a victory for the roads, inasmuch as several railroad corporations were behind the suit.

As the result of the news the rail shares gained considerable ground in yesterday's market, last prices being the highest in many cases.

Earnings Under Private Control.

Local railroad managers who have made an analysis of railroad earnings, both in the period of Federal control and in the year preceding that control, say there will be some surprising changes in the earnings statements of many of the carriers, beginning with March. While they say that the changes will be large in some instances they also say that they may not be so noticeable in others, as it will take time for the lines from which traffic was diverted to win back the business taken away from them in order to expedite the general movement of traffic and help win the war. In some instances development work was contemplated embracing the construction of new lines. Manufacturers had planned to build their plants on those lines. When the Railroad Administration made it plain that the tracks would not be laid the manufacturers naturally sought building sites adjacent to existing railroads and the expected new business from those sources was lost to the road which had expected to extend its mileage. Such business will not be regained, and it is now a question as to how long a time will elapse before such construction will be resumed.

STUTZ MOTOR CAR REPORT.

The Stutz Motor Car Company shows net profits for last year, after all charges and Federal taxes, of $997,148, or the equivalent of $9.97 a share on the 100,000 shares of capital stock of no par value. In the preceding year the amount available for dividends was $594,047, or the equivalent of $7.92 a share on the 75,000 shares of stock then outstanding. The latter amount, however, was before Federal taxes were paid out of the 1919 surplus to cover 1918 taxes. With these deducted from 1918 earnings the net for dividends in that year would have been reduced to the equal of $5.35 a share.

The net sales for the last year were $7,274,249, as compared with $3,536,557 in the preceding year. The balance sheet shows an improved position with regard to cash in hand. Inventory is placed at $1,497,884, whereas the same item was $904,857 in the preceding report.

SCHOOLS HELP ARMENIANS.

Contribute $10,000 to Near East Relief—Dirigible to Aid.

Contributions by the public schools of Greater New York to the $4,000,000 drive in the Metropolitan area for funds to aid suffering Armenian refugees have reached $10,000, according to a statement yesterday at the headquarters of the drive, at 259 Madison Avenue. This does not include sixty schools, which have pledged a minimum of $35 a month each on the "adopt-an-orphan" plan. The schools are filling little pasteboard barrels for the Near East Relief. The best filled barrel came from the Horace Man School for Girls, with $1,000.

The giant navy dirigible B-10 is to sail over the city dropping appeals for the fund three days this week. She will make her first trip today.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Reflecting the seriousness of the fuel oil situation, the Geological Survey announced today that the demand for crude oil in January was about 4,750,000 barrels greater than in December. This demand, the announcement said, will require a continued increase in domestic production and in Mexican imports, together with heavy drafts on the stocks on hand which now are none too large.

Warning that the public must begin to determine what are the most essential uses of petroleum and its products, the survey showed that although daily production was 50,000 barrels greater in January than in December, consumption exceeded the total to such an extent that 700,000 barrels had to be withdrawn from stocks on hand despite an increase of imports over exports of 2,500,000 barrels.

To meet its urgent fuel requirements the Shipping Board will accept bids offered last week for 1,500,000 barrels at prices ranging from 75 to 99 per cent. above those of last year.

In making this announcement Chairman Payne said he believed market conditions would improve before it would be necessary for the board to make additional purchases to fill its requirements of 12,000,000 barrels for the next six months.

Clears Lehigh of Discrimination.

A jury in the Federal Court yesterday acquitted the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company of a charge of violating the Elkins law by discriminating in favor of Charles Schaeffer & Son, hay and grain dealers, during the hay embargo in 1916. It was charged that the discrimination injured the other members of the Hay Exchange. It was proved that the arrangements made by the defendants with Schaeffer & Son tended to relieve the congestion of freight at the time and generally benefitted the trade.

Internal Gold Loan of 1909

Coupons are payable March 1 and September 1 at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York in United States Gold Coin ($24.32½ for each £200 bond coupon)

A cumulative semi-annual sinking fund is provided which would retire the entire issue of £10,000,000 by 1945 at not exceeding par, at which figure these bonds are callable. As they can now be purchased at materially lower prices, the fund will necessarily retire the issue prior to that date.

Of the entire issue of £10,000,000, £2,000,000 have been listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The unlisted bonds at present are selling at materially lower prices than the listed bonds, to which they are substantially similar in other respects.

We offer, subject to change in price, unlisted numbers of this issue, for delayed delivery, at $680 and interest per £200 par value ($973), at which price the annual yield on the investment is about 7.30%,

Should the investor hold his bonds until the sinking fund redeems them at par he would receive $973 for each $680 invested, in addition to his annual coupons of $48.65 for £200 bond.

BRITISH MONOPOLY OF MONEY IS FEARED

French Want America to Avert It by Sharing in Credits to Europeans.

APPEAL TO SELF-INTEREST

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—America's co-operation in Europe's financial troubles is not only desirable, but necessary. It is necessary for France because otherwise she will become, financially speaking, the vassal of England, who in America's absence would become undisputed mistress of the European money market. It is necessary for America because otherwise her exports will be reduced until production slackens and a crisis results. America helped the Allies in their war, she cannot refuse to help them now.

That is a summary of the French view of the European financial situation as expressed in a Temps editorial commenting on the economic manifesto of the Supreme Council in London. Recently the Temps published a cryptic editorial alluding darkly to the rivalry between the pound sterling and the dollar, and concluding with the statement that France declined to pay tribute to any one, either for freight or goods. Today's article clears up the mystery. If America continues to hold aloof, says the Temps, England will have everything her own way, and the need of France will force her to accept whatever terms England cares to impose.

Meanwhile the fall in the value of the dollar as against that of the pound is the first effect of England's declaration of financial independence, and should be a warning to America of the reduction of American exports which will follow from the British policy. The latter, says the Temps, is really in the nature of a boycott of American goods.

Unlike previous boycotts, it is in no way due to hostility, but is based upon the sound commercial principle of declining to do business in the market that, owing to unfavorable exchange, is the dearest. Doubtless England will be disappointed in her hope of getting any considerable quantity of raw materials from the market that is cheapest of all, namely Russia; but that will not materially alter her intention, and that of the rest of Europe, to buy as little as possible from America.

The latter can mitigate the consequent reduction of her export trade only in one way, and that is, by taking her part in the combined financial reorganization which England is trying to conduct. In other words, America must bring herself to the granting of loans or credits for European purchases, which will not only encourage, but enable European nations to buy goods in America. The well informed financial editor of the Journal des Débats makes the same point from a slightly different angle. Referring to the report—which he refuses to believe—that England and France intend to repay the loan of 1915 in gold, he says that as far as France is concerned it would be exceedingly imprudent to reduce any further gold reserve, which is already dangerously low in proportion to paper. He thinks it probable that England shares this view, but says that, anyway, France can settle her debts only by establishing new credits. That her creditors should insist that this money be devoted to industrial reconstruction pending the receipt of the sums due from Germany is right enough, but they should recognize the fact that it is to their interest that the said credits should be forthcoming.

It is evidently the opinion of both writers that France cannot at present hope for financial independence. They might add that the same observation applies to the rest of the European belligerents, except Great Britain. The question they now ask is whether America will allow England to be Europe's unquestioned financial suzerain, or whether she will take a hand in the game herself. For many reasons, France would prefer the latter. The first and most obvious is that it would introduce much-needed competition by removing England's financial monopoly.

Security Oil Corporation Bonds.

E. R. Riggs & Co. are managers of a syndicate which is being formed to underwrite $5,000,000 collateral trust, 6 per cent. gold bonds of the Security Oil Corporation. Each $1,000 bond will carry with it ten shares of the stock of the corporation. The bonds are secured by the deposit of the 6 per cent. sinking fund notes of the Empire Gas and Fuel Company, a subsidiary of the Cities Service Company. It is planned to use 10 per cent. of the proceeds from the sale of the Security Oil bonds as working capital to drill for oil on leaseholds selected from leases owned by the Empire Gas and Fuel Company.

Five Railroad Bond Investments
CHICAGO

CERTAIN investments have stood the test of security of principal and regularity of interest payments under the most adverse circumstances. Among these are the underlying mortgage bonds of large and well-managed railroad systems.

We have prepared a booklet, with detailed mortgage maps, describing five such bonds—the obligations of five of the strongest American railroad systems. Each company has an uninterrupted dividend record of 15 years or longer.

The railroads—the arteries of our national life—are more vital than ever to the country's economic development and we believe that their fundamental values will not be impaired.

These five railroad bonds, covering some of the most important mileage in the United States, are, in our judgment, intrinsically sound securities and at present prices offer unusual investment opportunities.

The booklet describing these bonds will be sent on request

FINAL RUSH TO PAY INCOME TAX STARTS

EXPERT ADVISERS PROVIDED

The final influx of money, checks and money orders for Federal income tax payments started yesterday at the offices of Internal Revenue Collector William H. Edwards, with the beginning of the last full week for filing returns. Collector Edwards estimated the final returns in the Manhattan district would total $1,500,000,000.

Expert tax advisers are stationed at all of the branches to aid in the preparation of returns. For the guidance of the public Collector Edwards gave out the following statement relating to the payment of taxes:

"Payments by cash, check or money order will be received on the sixth floor of the Custom House; at 28 West Twenty-third Street, and at 126th Street and Lenox Avenue. Checks and money orders only will be received at a new office which has been opened at Broadway and Reade Street. No cash will be received at that office.

"Taxpayers will facilitate the work of this department if they make their payments by check or money order sent by mail. Cash payments of income taxes should not be sent by mail. Cash sent by mail always is at the owner's risk, and if lost or stolen the sender may find himself facing penalties for failure to pay his tax on time. A taxpayer will find it more practical to purchase a post office money order or draw a check for the amount of the tax, payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue. The first payment, due on or before March 15, should be attached securely to the completed return and forwarded or delivered to the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue. The first payment must cover either the entire tax shown due or at least one-fourth of the tax due.

"Income tax experts who will aid in the preparation of returns from now until March 15, the final date for payment, also have been assigned as follows: Lord & Taylor, Industrial Bank, Chemical National Bank, Central Trust Company, United States Mortgage & Trust Company, National Park Bank, Chatham & Phenix Bank, Corn Exchange Bank, Wanamaker's, Irving National Bank, Gotham National Bank, Bank of the United States, Franklin Simon & Co., Harriman National Bank, Central Mercantile Company, Citizens' National Bank, Garfield National Bank, Colonial Bank, Irving Trust Company, Columbia Trust Company, Central Union Bank, Stock Exchange, Hearn's, American Trust Company, Commercial Trust Company, B. Altman & Co., Macy's, McCreery's, New Netherlands Bank.

"In figuring up his earnings for income tax purposes a person must take into consideration all items of taxable income, and each item itself must be accurate in amount. Guesses and estimates must be avoided, for the return is made under oath. If in doubt on any point as to income or deductions, a person may secure free advice from the Internal Revenue Office."

COTTON MARKET HAS UPWARD TREND

GAINS FOR DISTANT MONTHS

A continuance of wire trouble, which had blighted the cotton market on Saturday, again held the volume of trade within narrow limits yesterday and, to a less marked extent than on the earlier day, robbed the price fluctuations of much of their significance. The Liverpool cable was open and allowed some slight participation from that quarter, but most of the Western and New England wires were very uncertain and those going through the South were none too reliable. Thus, the market was again placed largely at the mercy of the local trading element.

The opening was quiet and without feature, but soon after the start of business strength developed and lifted prices steadily. From then on there was good undertone and, with the exception of a few pauses, rather than actual reactions, the trend was upward. By midafternoon the market was up 35 to 45 points and for about an hour it hung at those levels. Then in the last few minutes there was another spurt, mainly in sympathy with the strength of the stock market, which took the distant months up 30 to 40 points more, allowing them to close at net gains of about 70 points over Saturday's closing figures. The near months did not do so well, finishing with gains ranging from 38 to 45 points.

The March contract was surprisingly quiet and moved only nominally. Its range from one extreme to the other was only 13 points and at the end of the session it was up only three points. In trade circles it was said that a good deal of the speculative interest in March had been switched to May, and even to later months, but there still is a precarious situation in the spot option and the chance that a "squeeze" will develop before the contract expires.

Exports over Sunday were unusually large, amounting to 36,968 bales on Saturday, and 55,153 bales on Sunday and yesterday, a total of 92,121 bales for the week-end. A week ago the week-end exports were only 53,700 bales and for the full week last week they were only 128,126 bales.

HYLAN REPLIES TO HEDLEY.

Says City Can Take Subways in 90 Days if Contracts Are Violated.

Replying yesterday to the statement of Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, that the city could not take over the subway until the time stated in the contracts—1968 for the original subway and 1929 for the others—Mayor Hylan said that the city could take them all over in ninety days if the company violated the contracts. He stated that the courts violation on the part of the company such as the giving of inadequate service for instance, and that Corporation Counsel Burr had already served the necessary notice upon the company.

Characterizing Mr. Hedley's attitude as "most amazing," the Mayor said:

"His cry has been that the Interborough has not been making money, and yet he does not want to give up the property. Corporation Counsel Burr gave them notice they were not living up to their contract, and if they were not making money, why doesn't Hedley turn over the subways to the public and stop talking. He admitted, I understand, on the last day of the examination before the Board of Estimate that the company was not giving good and efficient service, and if that is true its contract is being violated.

"If the company doesn't comply with its contract the courts will probably turn the lines over to the city at the expiration of the ninety days. The public utility interests must from this on give their attention to rendering service to the people and not to the manipulators of the stock market."

Interborough Consolidated Corporation

Interborough-Metropolitan Company
Collateral Trust 4½% Gold Bonds

Interborough Consolidated Corporation was adjudicated a bankrupt on March 28, 1919. This Committee is advised by its counsel that the Bankruptcy Act provides that "claims shall not be proved against a bankrupt estate subsequent to one year after the adjudication," and that the Courts have held that this period cannot be extended. This Committee considers it advisable that in addition to any proofs which may be filed by the Trustee under the Trust Agreement securing your bonds, proofs of claim be filed by the bondholders and, accordingly, the Committee has filed proofs on all of the bonds which have been deposited with it, constituting a majority of the entire issue outstanding. A substantial minority of the bonds, however, have not been deposited with the Committee or otherwise proved.

It will also be difficult for the Committee to cause the stock of Interborough Rapid Transit Company to be sold in enforcement of the Trust Agreement, and to acquire the stock for the benefit of the depositors, while so large an amount of bonds remain undeposited.

The Committee has therefore extended to March 15, 1920, the time within which bonds may be deposited without penalty. After that date deposits will be permitted only upon such terms and conditions as the Committee may impose.

Bondholders are urged immediately to deposit their bonds with GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, the Depositary of the Committee. Against such deposits the Depositary will issue its negotiable certificates, which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

YOU GET YOUR MONEY ANYWAY—AND PROMPTLY

WHETHER WE COLLECT YOUR BAD DEBTS OR NOT

AND you know when you get it. That's what a Credit Insurance Policy in the "London" means. No doubts, no worries, no losses on covered accounts.

No amount of precaution on your part can absolutely prevent credit losses, but the "London" can and does pay them—and "loss" in this connection is construed to mean any account covered under the Policy that the debtor does not pay at maturity.

Why wait for another account on your books to become a "loss"? It won't obligate you to ask us for particulars.

For Filing
Corporation Tax Returns

Announcement is made from Washington that corporations are allowed until May 15th for filing final tax returns. Tentative returns are still required by March 15th.

With this extension of time we can undertake the preparation of tax returns for some additional clients, placing at their disposal the services of an organization which has had extended experience with this class of work.

Many returns have been hastily prepared for filing within the original time limit. If this is true of corporations in which you are interested, you should make tentative returns before March 15th and take advantage of this extension for a careful review, which, on account of the amounts involved, should be made before the final returns are filed.

TELLS SAFETY BOX RULES.

Official Says Bank Has Limited Responsibility Toward Customers.

Alexander C. Walker, President of the Colonial Bank Safety Deposit Company, defendant in a suit for $30,000, brought by Rose A. Block, alleging negligence in keeping jewelry of that value which she left in a safety box, explained to THE TIMES yesterday that the bank had no way of knowing what was in boxes rented to its customers.

"We have no knowledge whatever of the contents of any of these boxes, and we do not want to know what they contain," he said. "As a matter of fact, it is none of our business."

Asked what means customarily were taken to protect valuables President Walker explained that when a customer applied for a box, proper means of identification were procured, and a key was given to that person, or perhaps to other persons authorized by the customer to have access to the box. The responsibility of the bank ended, he said, when it saw that none other than the authorized persons obtained access to the vault. In cases of alleged loss from safety vaults, the burden of establishing such loss fell upon the person renting the box.

ASKS NOMINATIONS FOR NEW RAIL BOARD

LISTS TO GO TO PRESIDENT

President Will Choose Nine Members Divided Equally Among Public Workers and Railroads.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The sixteen railroad unions and the Association of Railway Executives were directed tonight by the Interstate Commerce Commission to make nominations for labor and capital, respectively, to the Tri-Partite Board, created by the Transportation act, which will attempt settlement of disputes without strikes.

Each side will name not fewer than six men, to be submitted to President Wilson, who will choose the board of nine, divided equally between the public, the workers and the corporations.

In promulgating the regulations to govern the naming of delegates, the commission said the unions had been chosen to represent labor because the "overwhelming majority," more than 90 per cent. of the railroad workers, were included in their membership and the unions had been recognized as authorized to speak for the "several classes" of employes. Similarly, the Association of Railway Executives was asked to nominate representatives of the railroad managements and owners, because approximately 95 per cent. of the railroad mileage was included in the association. Most of the carriers not included in the association have assented to the presentation of nominations by the organization.

Unions in Three Groups.

For the purpose of making the nominations the unions were classified into three groups, as follows:

Group 1—Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Switchmen's Union of North America.

Group 2—International Association of Machinists, Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers, Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Sheet Metal Workers, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen and the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Group 3.—Order of Railway Telegraphers, Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Shop Laborers, Railway Signalmen, Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen and Oilers, and Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Freight Handlers and Express and Station Employes.

Each group must name at least two members. The commission explained that it had aligned the sixteen organizations so that each group represented employes doing labor of a more or less similar character, and "as nearly as possible representative of and conversant with the interests of all of the classes embraced in the subdivisions."

HENRY GRAVES QUITS AS CHIEF FORESTER

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Henry S. Graves, head of the Federal Forestry Service, has resigned to return to private life. Mr. Graves headed the Yale Forestry School before entering Government service operations conducted by the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

The poor pay of scientific men in the Government service was given by Mr. Graves as the necessity compelling him to leave the position of Chief Forester. His letter, announcing his intention to tender later his formal resignation, was read today by Secretary Meredith to the Senate Agriculture Committee in support of his contention that the Government would have to offer greater inducements if it wished to attract and retain high-class men.

Mr. Graves set no date for leaving the service as he has made no definite plans regarding his return to business. He made it clear that he expected to devote his activities in the future to furthering the work he has been directing for the Government, notably the campaign for right handling of forests not included in the public domain.

Mr. Graves's letter to Secretary Meredith said, in part:

"The responsibilities and burdens of the position which I have held for ten years, if carried out with efficiency and real leadership, necessarily impose a heavy strain on one's strength. No man can expect to carry them indefinitely without ultimate loss of power.

"I feel that I have already made considerable sacrifices to a sense of public duty. Since the pecuniary returns afforded professional and scientific men in the Government service inadequately provide against the exhaustion of the working powers which must inevitably take place in time, and entail sacrifices from which employment elsewhere is free, the only course consistent alike with self-respect and a regard for the public interests seems to me to be retirement from office before efficiency has been impaired.

"Present conditions, which amount to a heavy reduction in the rate of compensation in practically every branch of the Government service, emphasize this point of view."

PICTORIAL REVIEW CASE UP.

Secretary on Trial on Charge of Income Tax Bribe Offer.

The trial of Jay A. Weber, Secretary of the Pictorial Review Company, who was indicted in June last on a charge of having offered to Nathaniel W. Gropper, an agent of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, a bribe of $25,000 to certify to the accuracy of the income tax returns made by the company, was begun yesterday before Federal Judge Cushman.

When Weber was arrested it was said the return made by the company failed to show about $500,000 earned by the company in 1917, and that it was the intention of the Government to examine all of the returns made by the company since 1913 and compare them with the company's books. Yesterday was spent in trying to get a jury. It is expected that the taking of testimony will begin today.

The "Swamp" contributed two important transactions to yesterday's budget of realty sales, deals being closed for improved parcels on Gold Street and Jacob Street.

William H. Whitney & Co. sold for J. C. Colgate and others the six-story building at 10 Gold Street, on plot 21.7 by 105.10; also the five-story building directly in the rear known as 211 Pearl Street, having a frontage of 21.10 feet or Pearl Street and a depth of 132.3. These properties have been in the seller's family for forty years. The purchaser is Harry Aronson, who recently acquired the block front on Gold Street from John to Platt and has become an active operator in this neighborhood. He also bought some time ago the Potter Building at 38 Park Row, through the same firm of brokers.

The Charles F. Noyes Company resold for Max Marx to M. Dworetzky, a leather dealer, 5 and 7, 9 and 11, and 15 and 17 Jacob Street, covering a total plot of about 11,500 square feet. With this resale Mr. Marx has now disposed of the fourteen individual properties purchased by him from the Central Leather Company at this point. Ninety-eight and 102 Gold Street and 53 Frankfort Street have been sold to a large concern that is going to erect its own building; 92 to 96 Gold Street has been purchased by Louis Goldstein; 9 Ferry Street by the Manufacturers' Leather Company, and 11 and 13 Ferry Street sold to D. John Thow; 15, 17 and 19 Ferry Street, corner of Jacob Street, to Louis Eskwith and 1 and 3 Jacob Street to Lewis & Rosenthal.

Some blocks to the northwest William A. White & Son sold to Smith & Holden, wholesale produce dealers, the four-story building, 22.9 by 49.6, at 199 Duane Street. The buyers have occupied 201 Duane Street, corner of Washington Street, for about twenty years. This building was recently sold by the same brokers, to C. V. Smith & Co. for occupancy.

DENY ANY HARDWOOD TRUST

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 8.—Denying allegations of the Government that the "open competition plan," operated as a statistical auxiliary of the American Hardwood Manufacturers' Association was a conspiracy in restraint of trade, attorneys for the more than 300 defendant lumbermen named in the Government complaint in their answer today defended the plan as wholly within the law.

They contended that the mere fact that the dissemination of information relating to basic facts concerning the industry might result in individual action to raise or lower prices did not constitute a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

The answer was presented at the opening of hearings before Federal Judge McCall on the application of the Government for a temporary injunction. The Government was represented by Assistant Attorney General Ames, Henry C. Mitchell, a special assistant Attorney General, and W. D. Kyser, United States District Attorney, and the lumbermen by L. C. Boyle, former Attorney General of Kansas, E. Carroll Todd, a former assistant to the Attorney General of the United States and Harry B. Anderson, and W. H. Fitzhugh of Memphis.

Specific denial was made of the charge in the Governemnt bill that a conspiracy existed to restrain interstate commerce and maintain hardwood lumber prices or that the plan recommended or contemplated oral agreements among the members to eliminate competition.

Douglas Gibbons & Co. sold for James L. Breese 141 East Fifty-sixth street, a three-story dwelling, 19 by 100; also the adjoining similar house at No. 143 for Sydney Breese and others to a prominent New Yorker. Both properties will be remodeled into American basement dwellings by the new owners.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for Mrs. Constantine Taussig the five-story American basement dwelling at 36 West Eighty-fifth street, on a lot 16 by 102.2, near Central Park West.

Pease & Elliman sold for Mrs. A. J. Phillips the three-story and basement dwelling at 68 West Twelfth street, on a lot 19.4 by 163.3, to a buyer who will occupy. It was held at $45,000.

Shaw & Co. sold for Joseph T. Low 531 West 141st street, a three-story dwelling, 12.6 by 99.11, to the Reyvan Realty Company; also for Mrs. J. F. Phayne to Mrs. Regina Danziger 105 West 121st street, a three-story dwelling 15 by 100. The house is arranged for two families.

ASTOR SALE TODAY.

For the first time in the history of the Astor estate, a large number of properties belonging to a member of that family, and held in the trust estate of Henry Astor, are to be sold by public auction. This great sale, consisting of 141 parcels, will be held in the Hotel Astor beginning at 11 o'clock this morning, and will continue until each parcel to be sold has been awarded to the highest bidder. J. Clarence Davis and Joseph P. Day will conduct the sale.

The Henry Astor estate sale is replete with features, one of the most important of which, considering the existing housing situation, is the offering of ninety-three three and four story dwellings, sixty of which are to be sold subject to leases expiring at early dates. In the case of the remaining thirty-three dwelling houses, the sites only are to be sold, subject to ground leases, expiring on various dates between May 1, 1920, and May 1, 1921, some with renewal privileges.

Another feature of the sale is the offering of the sites upon which the Astor, Bijou, and Morosco Theatres have been erected. In addition there are thirty-eight tenement houses, with and without stores, seven factory buildings, and six vacant lots to be knocked down to the highest bidders. With but few exceptions the 141 parcels to be sold are variously located between Forty-fifth and Fifty-second Streets, Broadway and the Hudson River. Some of the most important and valuable of these properties front in Broadway, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Avenues, including a number of corners.

Other Manhattan Sales.

Charles Wynne and Louis H. Low sold to a client of J. Nimhauser for occupancy the five-story business building at 32 East Twenty-second Street, on a plot 26.3 by 100, between Fourth Avenue and Broadway. Steel & Mayer, marine insurance brokers, have bought from the Broadway-John Street Corporation, Elias A. Cohen President, 3 Cedar Street, a five-story building, 21.9 by 48.2, held at $60,000. The seller acquired this property, together with Nos. 5 and 7, a few days ago. No. 3 will be remodeled for the exclusive occupancy of the purchasers. The Charles F. Noyes Company was the broker.

The estate of Henry Froment has sold to the Frandor Realty Company, represented by Gettner, Simon & Asher, attorneys, 53 West Twenty-fourth Street, a six-story store and loft building on lot 20 by 100, between 5th and 6th Avenues. It was held at $90,000 and rents for about $18,000 annually.

Lexington Avenue Sale.

Bradford executor, to the Stability Realty Company the property at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street, consisting of six four-story and basement private dwellings, on a plot fronting half a block, or 100.4 feet, on the avenue and 80 feet on the street. This plot has been held since 1877 by the Beekmans, who also own considerable other property in the neighborhood.

LEASES AT 25 BROADWAY.

Prominent Firms Take Space at Large Rentals.

The identity of several of the tenants in the new Cunard Building, in course of construction at 25 Broadway, became known yesterday. For some time there have been rumors of large leases, but nothing official was reported. Among the tenants will be the Owenoke Corporation, with which P. A. Rockefeller is identified and whose private offices will be in the building; the International Motor Truck Corporation, W. A. Harriman & Co., the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship Lines, The Consolidated Steel Corporation, Robertson-Cole Company, and Todd Shipyards Corporation. William A. White & Sons were instrumental in interesting the Robertson-Cole Company and Brown-Wheelock & Co. acted for the tenant in the lease to the International Motor Truck Corporation. All of the other leases were made by Bernard Wakefield, who is managing the renting of the building.

An innovation in the renting of office buildings was the making of leases for twenty-one years, so that the contracts call for payments of some $2,000,000 during the term. It is expected the building will be fully rented twelve months before the date of completion, which is May 1, 1921. The Cunard Steamship Company will occupy the lower three floors of the building with the exception of some banking space on the corner of Broadway and Morris Street, which has been leased to a national bank, whose name for the present is not disclosed.

The same brokers several months ago leased for Todd & Robertson to Von Lengerke & Detmold large store and basement space, in the Equitable Trust Company building at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-fifth Street, which the tenant will occupy on May 1, 1922, at the expiration of the present lease to the Y. M. C. A. The space taken at 414 Madison Avenue will be vacated by Douglas L. Elliman & Co. about May 1, when they will move to new quarters in their building now nearing completion at 15 and 17 East Forty-ninth Street, where they will occupy the first three floors. The remaining space has been leased for executive offices. Among the tenants are the Pyrene Manufacturing Company, Bernard M. Baruch, the National Security League, James Duane Taylor, Inc., and others.

The Application of Thoroughness

BASING an action or a decision upon complete knowledge is the only sound principle. Superficial knowledge invariably leads to errors.

In tax matters, Certified Public Accountants are examples of this sound principle. Their close study of the tax requirements and their close application of its principles for their varied clientele have given them a thorough working knowledge.

And this knowledge they place at the service of those organizations who require comprehensive tax service.

INVITES JOHNSON TO BERGDOLL TRIAL

NO REFLECTION INTENDED

D. C. Gibboney of Philadelphia, counsel for Grover C. Bergdoll, denied that his telegram sent yesterday to Representative Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota inviting him to visit Governor's Island was intended in any way as a reflection upon the court of officers now trying Bergdoll for desertion. The message read:

"Hon. Royal C. Johnson, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

"Noting your advocacy of the revision of courts-martial procedure in Congress and desiring to aid you, I suggest that you will find valuable material in support of your contentions if you will attend the court-martial trial of Grover C. Bergdoll, now in progress at Governor's Island, New York.

"D. C. GIBBONEY of Counsel for Bergdoll."

Representative Johnson is one of the authors of the Johnson-Chamberlain bill now before Congress calling for a revision of court-martial procedure. In THE NEW YORK TIMES on Sunday Mr. Johnson is quoted as saying that the present court-martial system is "atrocious to a Prussian degree," that "80 per cent. of all men tried are convicted after a trial that would be a farce if it were not a tragedy for its victims," and that "under such a lawless system proper regard for law and justice disappears."

"In law schools we have a system of most courts to acquaint students with court procedure," said Mr. Gibboney yesterday, "and it occurred to me that Mr. Johnson might find it advantageous to watch a military court in actual operation. That is why I telegraphed him; there is no other reason behind my message."

Harry Weinberger, of counsel for Bergdoll, made another attempt yesterday to have the case thrown out of court on the contention that Bergdoll never had been inducted into the military service because the name of the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania on Bergdoll's notice of induction was affixed with a rubber stamp and not signed with pen and ink. The Court having denied this motion Saturday, Weinberger seized another opportunity yesterday when Frank D. Beery, Adjutant General of Pennsylvania, testified that Major Murdock of his office had his authority to use a rubber stamp on induction notices. Weinberger moved to have this testimony stricken from the records, but the court adjourned to announce its decision this morning.

Lieut. Col. Charles C. Cresson, Trial Judge Advocate, ridiculed Weinberger's assertion that when the State Adjutant General signs an order he must do it "with pen and ink" and not allow his name to be stamped to the document by "some underling of a clerk or some fair-haired stenographer." During an exchange of personalities Colonel Cresson accused Weinberger of misleading the court.

Miss Mary Gibbs, chief clerk of Local Board 32 of Philadelphia, testified she made out Bergdoll's questionnaire which was signed by John P. Dwyer, editor of The Philadelphia Record and Secretary of the draft board. She saw the card mailed in a post box, and it never came back, she said.

Weinberger asked whether she had discussed the case with Mr. Dwyer. Miss Gibbs said that all Mr. Dwyer told her was to "tell the truth" on the stand.

The Government produced a letter carrier who said he delivered Bergdoll's questionnaire the middle of July, 1918, to Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, the accused's mother.

Weinberger requested that the Adjutant General of the army be subpoenaed to produce all records and correspondence relating to the action taken against all draft evaders between June and October, 1918. Another subpoena was served on Charles Romig, formerly a "bodyguard" of Bergdoll.

WIFE KILLS CAPT. DOSTER

Then Wounds Herself with Revolver at Columbus, N. M.

COLUMBUS, N. M., March 8.—Capt. Wade Doster, attached to the Medical Corps at Camp Furlong, here, was shot and killed early today in a Columbus hotel by his wife, who then turned the revolver on herself, according to military authorities. She is expected to recover.

Mrs. Doster had deliberately planned the deeds, according to officers who said tonight that a note found under her pillow asked that Captain Doster's parents in Berkeley, Cal., be notified.

The investigators said that Mrs. Doster some weeks ago left her husband and went to California after having intercepted a note addressed to him from another woman.

LONDON, March 8.—The trial of Charles Diamond, editor of The Catholic Herald, charged with inciting to the murder of Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and others in an article in his paper, began at the Old Bailey Court today. The trial is an outgrowth of the attempt to assassinate Viscount French on Dec. 19 last.

"It is a political charge made by my political enemies," he added.

Former 305th Men Danve.

REFEREE TO UNTANGLE ARNSTEIN DEPOSITS

Court Orders an Investigation Into $18,000 J. W. Arnold Account in Pacific Bank.

Judge Learned Hand yesterday in the Federal Court ordered Seaman Miller, referee in the involuntary bankruptcy proceeding against "Nicky" Arnstein, to take testimony to determine whether the fugitive from justice is the same person who has $18,000 on deposit in the Pacific Bank under the name of "J. W. Arnold." Saul S. Myers, counsel for the National Surety Company, petitioner in the bankruptcy, requested the court to order the bank to turn over the account to Edwards H. Childs, receiver.

Counsel for the bank opposed the application on the ground that no proof had been submitted that Arnstein and Arnold were one. The bank merely seeks to protect itself, the lawyer explained. Judge Hand concurred directing Myers to produce evidence that "Arnold" is Arnstein at a later hearing.

Papers filed in the Federal Court yesterday, following the appointment of J. S. Smith of Washington, D. C., as ancillary receiver for David W. Sullivan & Co., formerly of 10 Wall Street and Washington, show that the liabilities of the firm amount to $387,080, including $7,280 due employes, $252,240 in Stock Exchange securities and $127,560 in margin accounts of customers. The assets, the papers allege, amount to $659,360, of which $595,940 is declared to be in stocks and negotiable bonds. The firm also has $26,495 in banks. Smith was appointed receiver in Washington several days ago in a bankruptcy proceeding there.

Arnstein did not appear in court yesteday.

RED PAMPHLETS SEIZED.

Communist Headquarters Raided—Asks for Boy Held Six Years.

Detectives from Police Headquarters, accompanied by agents of the Military Intelligence Service, yesterday visited the national headquarters of the Communist Labor Party, in East Twelfth Street, and confiscated pamphlets entitled "Revolution in the Church." The pamphlets, according to a recent radical inquiry in Washington, constitute radical literature.

Mrs. Rebecca Rothenberg called at the immigrant station at Ellis Island in an effort to obtain freedom for her son, Isaac Rothenberg. The boy was excluded from the country in 1914, having failed to pass the medical test. He has been at the island ever since because of lack of transportation to Russia. His mother said she had established herself in business here in the last five years and that she was financially able to care for her son, now 17 years old. No decision was rendered yesterday in the case.

MANAGING a home and managing an estate are two widely different things, as many a widow has discovered to her sorrow.

Settling an estate may call for an immense amount of work, particularly if the founder of the estate dies before putting his affairs in order.

Even after the property has been duly apportioned and disposed of according to the terms of the will, endless supervision may be necessary.

You know how difficult it is for some people, inexperienced in business affairs, to keep track of a simple checking account. How can you expect them to keep track of the complicated transactions of handling an estate left in their hands?

This difficulty is overcome when property is placed in the hands of a trust company for administration.

You can insure able administration of your property, in your family's interest, by appointing the Mercantile Trust Company executors and trustees under your will.

This business arrangement, which is very simply made, insures sound management of your estate from the moment the Mercantile steps in.

In particular, it enlists on the side of your heirs the friendly interest and cooperation of our permanent TRUST COMMITTEE, whose members are selected by the Board of Directors from its own personnel, on the score of special fitness.

This Committee meets at regular and frequent intervals to scrutinize trust investments made in the interest of Mercantile clients. The President of the Company serves with the Committee ex officio. We shall be glad to explain any details.
